We have just received from the North Carolina Agricultural Society a striking little booklet that specialist. is a bright gem in its class. It is tiny, but full of fa is and figures about North Carolina and her Great State Fair that will be held for the fifty-first time at Raleigh on October 17. 18, 19, 20, 1611. There are only eight small pages and a neat, very tasty cover, all of a size to fit in the ordinary envelope. Cuts show a bird's eye view of the Fair Grounds while the Fair is going on and Lincoln Beachy flying in his Curtiss aeroplane over Niagara Falls.

There is an appreciation of North Carolina that carries a North Carolina that carries a point in every paragraph, a fact MRS. in every sentence, clothed in a style as attractive as the story it tells, and all in one small page. The marvelous progress of the State is told in a comparative table of crop figures for 1905 and 1910, and a similar alinement of statistics of the manufacturing industries. In addition there are comparative values of farm land and buildings, implements and machinery, labor and ferti-

On the drive back to Greensboro Settle told the officers that the negro accidentally shot himself and that he was perfectly innocent of any connection with it. He seemed unable to appreciate his position and when told that he might be forced to go to jail for the night declared "I would take a pistol and blow my brains out first." Later arrangements were made to have him remain in a hotel pending the coroner's inquest. He reiterated that he was perfectly innocent of any crime, but when the time arrived accompanied the officers to
