St. Louis, Feb. 14.—To help make up the deficiency in his pay roll which could not be supplied in an attempt by the congregation to raise his salary, the Rev. Daniel Eckert, pastor of the Union Mission church at Woodriver, has donned overalls and is working in a carpenter shop of the Standard Oil Refinery.

Mr. Eckert went to Woodriver from Mount Vernon, Ill., where he was ordained a United Brethren minister.

He was married about three months ago and lives with his bride in Woodriver.

Two Vessels Ashore Off Virginia Coast.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 13.—Batting blindly against the fury of a north-east gale, in a blinding snowstorm two steamers went ashore tonight a few miles from the Virginia coast. One of them is the British steamer Katherine Park and the other is an unknown tramp steamer. The Katherine Park stranded off Smith Island a few miles from Cape Charles. The unknown vessel struck the beach near the Cape Henry lifesaving station, almost in the same spot where the naval collier Sterling went ashore several years ago.

Life savers, despite the high seas and the blinding snowstorm, succeeded in launching a boat on drenched the side of the Katherine Park. They offered to take off her crew but they declined to leave, her captain thinking there was no danger and hoped to float his ship without assistance.

When the storm increased and the seas became higher, the helpless craft blew signals of distress. She needed assistance. Life savers sent a request to the Norfolk Navy yard for a revenue cutter and the Onondaga was ordered to the scene. The Merritt and Chapman Wrecking Buz Rescue, which had been standing by the sunken steamer, also went out to the side of the helpless vessel.

Last reports from the scene stated that the steamer was well up on the beach; that high seas were breaking against her side and bounding over her decks.

The unknown steamer ashore near Cape Henry was discovered about 10 o'clock last night by life savers who were patrolling the beach. Efforts were made to launch a lifeboat and send assistance to the steamer, but at last reports this had not been successful.

The stranded craft is well in towards shore, but the life savers could not identify her tonight.

Frame Up Sought in the Gore Case.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 13.—Counsel for Mrs. Minnie Bond, who is suing Senator T. P. Gore for $50,000 damages as the result of an alleged assault in a Washington hotel, today rested their case. James R. Jacobs, who was expected to be one of the principal witnesses will be used in rebuttal, it is announced.

Efforts were made today to impeach the testimony of Dr. J. H. Earp and T. E. Robertson, who testified yesterday. Earp was asked if he had not told Dr. D. M. Beatty, of this city, that they were going to "get Gore." He denied making such a statement. He was asked if he had not told a man named Cope of El Reno, that the case was all a "frame up." This Earp also denied.

When Robertson was called to the witness stand he was asked if he, Jacobs and J. F. McMurray had not met in McMurray's room soon after the indicted in Washington and discussed the best method of placing the affair before the public if they had not planned to prosecute Gore, and failing in that to place the matter before the ministerial alliance of Oklahoma.

"Nothing of the kind ever happened," replied Robertson.

Counsel for Mr. Gore claimed ground for impeachment of Robertson was laid in these questions. In reply to questions Robertson said he had been paid $150 by Jacobs but that Jacobs owed him money and it had nothing to do with the Gore case.

Robertson was asked if Smith Chambers had not said to him, in the presence of Fitzpatrick and Jacobs "what is it all about?" and if he did not reply "we framed it up." The witness made no reply.

Argument over the question by the counsel resulted in Judge Clark ruling

Explosion Kills New Bern Woman.

New Bern, Feb. 13.—Mrs. S. D. Watson is dead and Mrs. W. R. Weeks is in a local hospital suffering from injuries which are expected to prove fatal as the result of the explosion of a can of gasoline at the home of the two women, 183 Queen street, this morning.

The two women had arisen and were preparing to start a fire with which to prepare the morning meal. A can of gasoline and a can of kerosene were sitting near the stove and, thinking that she had the kerosene can, Mrs. Weeks turned this up and began to pour the contents into the stove. She had taken the wrong can and immediately there was a flash and the room was filled with flames.

Mrs. Watson was horribly burned. Before the blaze could be extinguished both women's clothing were burned from their bodies and their flesh roasted. Physicians were summoned and medical aid rendered the sufferers and Mrs. Weeks was sent to the hospital for treatment. Mrs. Watson died a short time later.

Dr. Ebersole on Mouth Hygiene.
Dr. William G. Ebersole, one of the leading physicians of America in a public address asserts that the neglected human mouth full of decaying teeth and sore diseased gums is producing greater havoc in the human family today than all the other diseases together. He also tells of the Millions of Dollars That Are Being Spent Annually to Prevent the Contamination of Food, Water and Air from Disease Germs, of the Great Number of Cattle That Are Being Continuously Destroyed by Government Inspectors When Found Infected with Certain Diseases; and of the Rigorous Inspection of All Food Stuffs; of the Fabulous Sums Being Spent in Securing Water Supplies Free from Micro-Organic Life and of the Great Efforts That Are Being Made to Render the Air We Breathe Free from Detrimental and Death-Producing Influences. Again of the Tremendous Effort That Is Being Made to Bring These Three Things, Food, Water and Air to the Human Organism Free from Micro-Organic Life, Which Would Produce Detrimental Effects in the Physician Man.

Then he asks the question: "What have we gained, have we not destroyed every disease germ in these three sustainers of life, and before they are to fulfill their mission from a life sustaining standpoint they must pass into and through the human mouth and there be permitted to become contaminated with just the kind of germs we have been spending our millions to destroy.

Then he states that today the world is fast awakening to the importance of the mouth bears to the health and strength of mankind and furthermore asserts that with healthy, well cared for mouths, used for the purpose and as God intended them should be used; we need fear but little from the ravages of disease.

"As said above, the public knows the danger from whiskey but I do not believe it has any appreciation of the danger of cocaine. Whiskey, when taken in excess, renders its victims helpless. Cocaine makes him wild, reckless and absolutely fearless.

We understand that physicians in our town are guilty of giving prescriptions for dope and that these prescriptions are often for large quantities of this stuff.

POETICAL REVIVAL NOW GOING ON.

Interest is being taken in the poetical revival which is now going on over our country. Many people are appreciating good poetry as never before.

A revival of interest in poetry is upon us, as a fact. However, we may care to explain it, and whatever may be our judgment as to its dignity and quality.

Meanwhile some of the facts are worth examining. In this country the movement is not nearly so advanced as in England.

WHISKEY IN ITS PLACE.

By L. Hawkins.

Good in its place! Where is that place? Thou fend that's cursed the human race.

Show me the place where you have been, And there's the place where crime is seen; Show me the place your presence blights, And there's the place for brawls and fights.

Go see the graves that you have filled, Go see the blood that you have spilled; Then tell me that there is a place Where you should show your demon face.

Go ask the drunkard's wretched wife, What's been the terror of her life; What turned her raven locks to snow And laid her wretched husband low.

See how she looks, by man forsaken; See her by want a sorrow shaken; See her hide, in deep disgrace Then say no more about your place.

Go hear the orphan's cry for bread, Go hear the widow mourn her dead, Go see the drunkard's haggard face, And ask of them where is thy place.

Ask the pauper, at the poor house door, What makes his heavy heart so sore, He'll say, while tears run down his face, Because he had for you a place.

Go see the place where demons lurk; Go watch them in their devilish work, As they with knives each other chase And there, vile whiskey, is thy place.

There's where the gallows finds its food, There's where the prison gets its brood, There's where crime and poverty embrace, While rushing on their head-long race.

A Blind Man's Troubles.
 Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, has been a hero of ours. Not because he has bucked hard and continuously the lines of resistance to a political ambition. Not because he belongs to the extreme radical wing of his party. Overweening political ambition is ordinarily an unlovely thing. It is a peculiarly self-assertive ambition. A man can be obsessed with the ambition to accumulate a fortune, and still confess himself a humble sinner and a common human being; he who with deliberation sets some high public office as his distant goal dare not really confess to anything. And the points of community between radical and demagogue are so numerous that the radical is not, for his radicalism, an especially attractive sort of person, except to those he especially wishes to attract—however good an unnecessary radicalism may be.

It is his strength and courage that invest the Oklahoman with the attributes of heroism, or our eyes. To be blinded seems to us almost a crushing blow; and he has seen. He has the memories of a boy of eleven, of the world of beauty, of light, and color, and form. It must seem to him but yesterday he saw, he lived in the world in which other men live; and there is to be no tomorrow. Here is ground for enough of grief, of despair, to blunt ambition—to blot it out.

To us it appears a fine quality of manly courage that has impelled this man to discount his affliction, and go on caring intensely about things, the possession of which must needs be of little value, compared to what he has lost and can never again possess. Even if he is guilty of the thing charged against him, he is in tough luck—we say this without any desire to minimize the nature of his offending. In such a contest with a woman, man is on a ground uneven enough, at best. Another man, in the same circumstances, and with all the will in the world to be tempted and to fall, might nevertheless have been saved by a pair of eyes. Eyes are useful in a case like that.

We have no disposition to say that the $50,000 she asks will more than compensate Mrs. Bond, the plaintiff, for damage done to her character. The facts that Mrs. Bond once married a man who had a wife, married him again after he had divorced the other woman, divorced him and married again, do not prove that her character has not been injured. The fact that she has mixed much in politics and kindred diversions proves nothing against her—we should hope so, indeed—in these days of uplift and feminism. The fact that a machine politician from Oklahoma, an enemy of Gore's was in a handy position to serve as a witness in the case, proves nothing against Mrs. Bond. And whether he was or was not trapped by an adventuress, in league with a bunch of predators, has little to do with the essential issue as to the steadfast uprightness of this radical statesman. Nor is there anything conclusive in the further fact that the Senator's domestic life has been supposed to be a beautiful romance, he being deeply devoted to and especially dependent upon his wife, whom he calls "my eyes." Nor yet is the main issue affected by the fact that it seems inhuman, repulsive, ghouliah, that a pack of men should thus harry a blind man. Politics know no sentiment, except what it capitalizes.

Granting that Gore may be guilty as charged, and that it may be fully established, he is going to pay more heavily than men expect to have to pay for a very human side-stepping. If he emerges a ruined man, $50,000 is not going to come in future as easy as it has in the past—and but a short while ago one of Gore's difficulties was poverty. His ambitions will have turned to ashes in the tasting, and his honors will be mocking memories. Except for its domestic scope, his life will be empty indeed, unless he has the courage to build up another interest to form and follow new ambitions.

One moral that might be drawn in anticipation of the triumph of his enemies—and we hope they are to be confounded—is that a blind man has no business in politics. A man needs at least six senses to play the game and continue to win.—Greensboro News.

The man who buys the cloth in the bolt and makes your suit at home, has a number of bolts to show you and let you pick the suit you want. Another feature about GOLDSTEIN is he makes all the suits at home and has you to fit them on before they leave his shop. By doing this, you always get a much better fit.

February 22nd, a Remarkable Issue.

The issue of The Philadelphia Sunday Press for February 22nd, will contain some remarkable articles and stories.

Edgar Allan Forbes has another of his Panama Canal articles in this issue. Nothing that has been written brings out so clearly the actual situation in the construction and the completion of the Isthmus as this article does.

Paul West has a Vaudeville Premier yarn entitled "Read What Maxey Does Then."

"The Hand of Angeline," is one of the best Hapsburg Liebe stories of the Tennessee mountains yet published.

Among the other features there are "Tales of The Road," by salesmen; an article on the Radium Fields, and "Love Insurance," Earl Dear Biggers' most interesting story.

To Cure a Cold in One Day
Take LAXATIVE-BROMO-QUININE. It stops the Cough and Headache and works off the Cold. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. R. W. GIBSON'S signature on each box. 25c

Alamance, Route 1, Feb. 16.—

Since our last writing the death angel poised his wings over the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Durham, and took their only baby, Arthur Lee, to live in heaven. He was found dead in bed Sunday morning. He was a sweet little babe of about five months. Thus the little flower was plucked on earth to bloom in heaven.

Mrs. J. R. Smith is sick at this writing. We hope she may soon be well.

The congregation at Shiloh was small Sunday on account of the very rough weather.

Rev. W. J. Hackney spent Saturday night with Uncle Buck Faucette.

There was no school at Oakwood Friday on account of the rough weather.

Mr. Will Gilliam is going right ahead with his building. Guess he will soon be ready to move in.

Oakwood School is going to have a box party and entertainment Saturday night, the 28th. Everybody come and bring your pocket-book.

Mrs. Elbert Lewis spent a few days with her father, David Matkins last week.

Some of No. 1 farmers have been trying the Reidsville market with tobacco. Think the prices are very good.

Route Eight News Items.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wyatt, of Mebane, spent Sunday in Burlington at J. M. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Isley, of Union Ridge, spent a day or so on No. 8 last week, visiting at Rev. A. F. Isley's.

It took two of us to make the trip on No. 8 Saturday and it would have taken three to make it Friday. That was some bad day. Still the folks must have their mail. We will do the best we can to get it to you.

The new telephone line on No. 8 has the following subscribers, all are reached through Seattle No. 5020: G. E. Faucette, G. A. Daniels, J. D. Simpson, Clyde Isley, Charles Kernodle, A. Thad Isley, John F. Sutton and Will Madren. J. M. Story and R. A. Matlock also have recently put in phones. They are a great convenience and everybody ought to have one. Of course, you can go to a neighbor's and use the phone, but it is not like one of your own, besides it sometimes bothers the neighbors. Put in one for your own use.

Will Madren is some singer these days—one night last week he called up all his neighbors on the phone, and told them to "Listen, we will sing some for you." He hung up the receiver; got out his tuning fork, got right pitch and his choir broke a loose. After singing two or three "spasms" he took down the receiver and listened for the applause. Of course, his audience had not heard a single "sing" so the applause was not forthcoming and Will quit in disgust. Try it again, Will, and leave the receiver down and they will appreciate the music.

We regret to note that Mr. Murphy Jenkins is right sick. We hope that it is nothing serious. We miss him as we pass his box. "Uncle" Murphy is one of our best friends.

In Memory of President W. W. Finley.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—As a fitting memorial to the late President Finley and in recognition of his interest in agricultural education in the South, President Fairfax Harrison, of the Southern Railway, has addressed a letter to the heads of each of the nine State Agricultural Colleges in the South, suggesting that the agricultural scholarships which President Finley inaugurated in the early part of 1912 be designated: "Southern Railway Scholarship; William Wilson Finley Foundation."

These scholarships, which offer complete courses in agriculture to deserving farmer boys who live in counties traversed by the Southern Railway and affiliated lines and who would be unable to secure the advantages of such an education without this aid, are maintained in the following institutions: Kentucky State University, Lexington, Ky.; State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Raleigh, N. C.; University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.; University of Florida, Gainesville, Fla.; Georgia State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Athens, Ga.; Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College, Agricultural College, Miss.; Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.; Clemson Agricultural College, Clemson, S. C.; and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.

In inaugurating these scholarships, the late President Finley was following his policy of lending every practical aid in the agricultural development of the territory served by the Southern Railway and affiliated companies. Each young man accepting a scholarship must agree to engage in agricultural work, to teach agriculture, or to work on an experiment farm for at least three years in territory touched by one of the lines making the offer. The details as to the conditions under which the scholarships are awarded are in the hands of the college heads.
