COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off. I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it. After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely. I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether." Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy. Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.

HOW MUCH IS NEEDED?

Several Prominent Doctors Give Account of How Much Liquor They Prescribe for Sickness.

By W. H. Booker, C. E., of Raleigh

"Just a little on account of sickness." That used to be an old excuse for keeping the jug around the house. Now it is becoming an excuse for getting whiskey by the pint or quart from the drug store. The question has been raised if prescribing liquor is not, in some cases, getting it "under false pretenses," or at least a privilege that is abused. This tendency, it has been noticed, has been on the increase within recent years.

In order to get at the facts in the case, to learn definitely if the general attitude of the medical profession is to increase or decrease the use of alcoholic liquors in treating disease and to establish a rough standard, rule or guide showing the average quantity of alcoholic liquor now used by the best authorities on medicine, the secretary of the State Board of Health wrote to a number of the best hospitals in the country and to all the physicians in the State who have been officers in the State Medical Society during the last five years and asked them to give definite facts as to the number of patients they treated in a year, together with the total amount of liquor prescribed.

A great many answers were received. From these it was found that, for a total of 186,052 patients treated during one year, a total of 601 gallons of whiskey and brandy were prescribed. This, reduced down, proved to be an average of about three-fourths of a tablespoonful per patient during the entire year. This result, from such a large number of cases from the practice of reputable physicians and hospitals, can only be construed as being an index to what constitutes good practice in regard to the use of liquor as medicine.

From the replies received to the letters of inquiry, two important points were brought out: (1) A great many of the doctors stated that they were using much less liquor now than they did from five to 10 or 15 years ago, and that, too, patients are more successfully treated when more liquor was prescribed. (2) It could not but be noted that, in general, doctors who had received their degrees in medicine within the last ten years were prescribing a great deal less liquor than doctors who graduated prior to that time. A great many of the very best doctors of the younger set prescribe no liquor whatsoever.

From these two points it appears that unmistakably the tendency in the best medical practice of the present day is to decrease rather than increase the quantity of liquor prescribed.

One of the most striking features of the whole matter is that while the best medical practice both in the State and in large hospitals outside the State shows a strong tendency to decrease the amount of liquor prescribed, yet the actual amount of liquor prescribed by the profession as a whole is believed to be largely increased during recent years, and it will be noted that this increase is coincident with the more rigid enforcement of our prohibition laws.

The replies to the questions submitted were so interesting that we can not refrain from quoting the gist of a few. Space forbids longer quotations, but these are typical:

"I find it advisable to prescribe whiskey to perhaps less than ten patients a year."—W. L. Dunn, M. D., Charlotte.

"During the year I have prescribed no whiskey or brandy at all."—James J. Phillips, M. D., Tarboro.

"With all our practice, including the hospital and our private work, we do not advise an amount exceeding one gallon a year."—J. T. Burrus, M. D., High Point.

"The amount used in the institution for the year has been an average of 20 1/2 ounces per patient. This rather high average is due to the quantity required by certain chronic patients, and will be reduced this year."—Albert Anderson, M. D., Superintendent State Hospital for the Insane, Raleigh.

"I do not use more than one drop of spirits to the patient."—F. R. Harris, M. D., Henderson.

"I am sure that on my hospital services only two or three patients a year ever get alcohol in any form by my order."—H. A. Royster, M. D., Raleigh.

"I have prescribed no whiskey or spirits of any sort during the last year, or previous one."—W. N. Jones, M. D., Greensboro.

"During the last five years of my active practice I am satisfied I did not prescribe over a pint a year, and one else. If I were practicing now I would not prescribe any at all."—J. T. J. Battle, Greensboro.

"I prescribe eight quarts of whiskey per year—this would be 20 drops for each patient."—Frank H. Russell, M. D., Wilmington.

"I do not prescribe whiskey. However, I recognize it as a valuable remedy."—Dr. D. A. Dees, Bayboro.

"I do not prescribe it in any shape."—J. E. Koonce, Wilmington.

"I have never prescribed whiskey at any time, have advised my patients to take very small quantities of brandy, and that was in very few instances. Since I gave up general practice, I have not had any chance or occasion for the use of such."—W. M. Saliba, M. D., Wilmington.

"I prescribe for 3,600 patients per year, including 25 drunks. I prescribe one ounce of spirits for each of these. Otherwise I never write a prescription for spirits."—E. T. Dickinson, M. D., Wilson.

"I don't suppose I have prescribed on an average of one-half gallon of whiskey per year, and I suppose I see at least as many patients as any physician in the city. I believe the necessity for prescribing whiskey is very seldom indeed. In fact, I believe there are other remedies that would be equally as good, if not better, in those cases in which it was prescribed."—A. J. Crowell, M. D., Charlotte.

These few letters taken at random show unmistakably the present trend of medical science in regard to the use of liquor in sickness.

THE REMEDY SUGGESTED.

In view of the facts in the case, it is plain that some sort of remedy is needed for the present drug store liquor trade. It must be admitted that very few, if any, physicians voluntarily prescribe much of the liquor that is now bought at drug stores. Much pressure is brought to bear upon them by a certain class of patients, where as if the doctors had some good, concrete argument to fall back on which would appeal to this class of people, they could, without causing offense, avoid doing what their consciences decree is wrong. In other words, we believe that a remedy for such conditions would be more welcome to doctors than to any three citizens of Atlanta, including two personal friends of Frank, saw the detective and asked him to undertake an investigation of the case. At first Burns said he refused on grounds that if Frank were guilty his investigation and final conclusion to that effect could only hurt the defendant, while if the investigation tended to throw doubt of guilt on him it might serve to thwart Justice. Frank's friends declared that they believed he had not been given a fair trial, that he was innocent of the crime but that if guilty they wanted indisputable evidence of his guilt.

BURNS SAYS HE HAS FOUND MURDERER.

Detective Burns Says Abnormal Man Slew Mary Phagan and Adds Frank is Normal. Chicago, April 3.—W. J. Burns, the detective declared late today that he knew who murdered Mary Phagan, the Atlanta, Ga., girl for whose death Leo M. Frank is under sentence of death.

Prohibition For Alaska.

Washington, April 7.—Prohibition for Alaska was proposed today in a bill by Representative Falcoer, Progressive, of Washington.

Whether the murderer was Frank or some one else, in his opinion, Burns would not say, but he intimated that from his investigations and comparing their results with the conclusions of the coroner's jury, he did not think Frank the sort of man capable of making the attack on the girl alleged to have preceded her murder.

Burns on his arrival today from Kansas City, related the story of his investigation. He said his attention first had been called to it by a young man from Atlanta who was a passenger on a steamer on which Burns was returning from Europe. The young man expressed his regret that Burns had not become interested in the case before the arrest and conviction of Frank. Through him Burns read in newspapers of the trial and concluded, from the accounts he saw, that Frank was guilty. Later, while he was in Key West,

Burns then took the case. His investigations soon showed him, he said, first that public clamor, after a "crime wave" had resulted in the police making extraordinary efforts to produce "evidence tending to convict Frank," and second, that a report making out Frank a man of abnormal characteristics was commonly circulated through the city, putting public opinion strongly against him.

His inquiries then convinced Burns that Frank was a perfectly normal man. On the other hand the testimony of physicians was to the effect that the man who attacked Mary Phagan was abnormal. Then Burns interviewed many of the witnesses who testified in the case. At the conclusion of this phase of his investigation he said he was convinced that he knew the murderer.

"There was no mystery about the murder of Mary Phagan," said Mr. Burns. "The tracks of the murderer were plain and there is no doubt as to his identity."

"The story will all clear in a few days. I have made a complete report to Frank's attorneys in Atlanta and it will be given out soon.

"I cannot anticipate my report and therefore I cannot say more definitely than I have what the report will contain. The murderer of Mary Phagan is known to me and he can't get away."

"I will say that, in my opinion, Frank will not hang on April 17 for the murder of Mary Phagan. I believe the Supreme Court cannot ignore the evidence we have gathered.

Hearing of an extraordinary motion for a new trial in Frank's case was set for April 16, the day preceding that on which Frank is sentenced to die.

Capital Punishment.
Yesterday Bob Jones, w'y he, Threw a piece of chalk at me, Right in school, and took me square In the ear! I squealed for fair. Teacher come to wher we sat, An' "Bob Jones, did you do that?" She says sharp and awful cross. "W'y," Bob says, "I give it a toss Jest as soft—not hard at all; But that baby had to bawl!" "You're a liar!" I yelled out "Fore I'd time to think about Where I'uz at. Teacher, she Turned and just look clear through me, 'Nen she says: "now both of you Do jest what I tell you to— Take your books and go and set With the girls!" Gee but you bet We felt awful cheap, becuz We thought 'at a licking wuz Easier to stan' 'an that! But I went across, an' sat Down by Lizzie Smith; an' say She jest looked the other way, Like she didn't notice That was jest at first—an' gee! I don't blame her, cause, you see, All the girls laughed, an' the boys Croaned and made a hissin' noise With their mouth. But after while Lizzie she begin ter smile, Nen she gave a little quick Shove to her a-rich-metic To'rd me. And there was about All the 'xamples all worked out With the answers right! Well, I Copied 'e moff jets like pie! Girls, y'know, can always do Lessons—an' they like 'em, too! Lizzie had a apple there, An' when she had made me swear Not to tell, she give me some 'N' showed me where she kep' her gum. Say, I'll bet I know what's meant By "cap-pit-tul punishment!"

Comp'ny's Come to Our House.
Comp'ny's come to our house—moth-er's awful busy "Lots to do my little man, and go and play with Lizzie." "Go and play with Lizzie"—that's what they always say When comp'ny come to our house, "Now run out and play."

Wonder why the never let a feller see the folks! I know lotes of stories and anecdotes and jokes, I could show the album and show 'em who is who But when I even mentioned that, why —"That would never do, That would never do, my son, you're only in the way Lizzie's waitin' in the yard—now run out and play."

Ain't it tough, I'd like to know? And then with prink and perk Mother, she goes in the parlor—"lay aside your work Tea is ready"—then they come and set in solemn state An' mother says, now little man, you will have to wait Run along now—here's a cooky—one for Lizzie too, An' pretty soon you'll have your tea when all the rest are through.

Then Liz and me, we hang around an' peek in at the door, An' watch how fast the chicken goes, an' hear them ask for more; An' eye the nice, big frosted cake as it passed into view, A-wonderin' if we'll get a piece when all them folks are through.

There's pleasant parts an' horrid parts to havin' comp'ny come. There's too much "yes nu'am, please excuse— an' not enough of fun, But on the whole I guess I'm glad when mother says to me "Now wash up clean and comb your hair for comp'ny's come to tea." —Harriet P. Croker.

Navy Dry Order Will End Giving of Silver Service.
Albany, N. Y., April 7.—The "dry" order issued by Secretary Josephus Daniels for the Navy recently is causing three State officials worry over which kind of a silver service shall be purchased for the battleship "New York."

At the last session of the Legislature a bill appropriating $10,000 for the new ship was passed and a few days later the Governor signed it. Thus did he also make himself, Lieutenant Governor Winger and Speaker Sweet responsible for the selection of the present.

Today the Governor was in a quandary. "We may have to eliminate the punch bowl and substitute a punch dish," he said. He hopes that either the Lieutenant Governor or the Speaker will be able to suggest a way out of the difficulty.

The declaration of President Wilson that he had "no jurisdiction over the last Congress" is, correct. And he may as well work this one for all it is worth for the chances are he will have no jurisdiction over the next one.

NEXT YEAR'S DEBATE.

Query Not Yet Decided but Letters Will Soor Be Mailed to Students and Teachers.

Chapel Hill, April 4.—The process of subsidizing the field of public consciousness of North Carolina in preparing that field to produce in living form of public good the ideas there stirring, will be continued next year. Already plans are making for continuing this process and letters will soon be mailed to students, teachers and others interested, notifying them that the third annual debate for State High Schools will be held in 1915.

This debate like the first two will cause a State-wide study and public discussion of some questions of broad concern. The query is yet to be selected. That next year's contest will witness even greater interest, study and 380 debaters there was an increase based on the great enlargement this year contest over the first. From a participation in 1913 of 90 schools and 380 debaters there was an increase this year to 150 schools—half the high schools of North Carolina—and 600 debaters.

In every section of the State these contests were held. At least 1,000 boys and girls tried for places on the debating teams. From the University of North Carolina Bulletins of the Initiative and Referendum were sent to these entrants and in many instances this subject was a live topic. The numerous contests, the discussion by young and old, the personal interest from varied sources, have all combined to spread the subject in many minds and have led to a stirring of the public mind of North Carolina. The same was true when Woman's Suffrage was first held and will be true with every contest hereafter, because the more the subject is discussed, the more the people know about it.

It is in securing this result that caused Acting President Edward K. Graham today to use the good cultural term of dynamiting or subsidizing, the public field of this State. It is this think on vital public questions of all sorts by young and old that these debates cause and it is laying open the field for the great extension work the acting authorities have been starting and have planned

SLEEP DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE - RHEUMATISM, QUICKLY VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After A Few Doses Are Taken

Backache, urinary disorders, and rheumatism, are caused from weak, inactive kidneys, which fail to filter out the impurities and keep the blood pure, and the only way on earth to permanently and positively cure such troubles, is to remove the cause.

The new discovery, Croxone, cures such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; it neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the tender membranes of the bladder, and cleans, purifies and strengthens the cramped, inflamed kidneys so they can and will all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting, are the results obtained from the use of Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to cure the worst case of backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

It is the most wonderful preparation ever made for the purpose. It is entirely different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth to compare with it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can obtain an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give desired results, regardless of how old you are, how long you have suffered, or what else has failed to cure you.

Woman Suffrage Amendment Is Up Again.
Washington, April 7.—The woman suffrage amendment recently defeated in the Senate was again reported today for a second time.

A German aviator has ascended to a height of more than twenty thousand feet. This does not help anything but the notoriety of the aviator. FASHION LETTER

Tailored Suits With Manish Cut.—The Balkan Blouse a Paris Favorite.

Trouser Skirts An Extreme

New York, April 7.—Every French dressmaker has certain characteristics which can hardly be mistaken by the people who are keeping a close watch upon the styles and the different gowns put out by each establishment. Paquin, in her recent exhibition, showed a decided tendency toward a long, flat black, and a greater fullness at the sides of the skirts, making a noticeable difference in the silhouette.

Some of her new models had a very bouffant effect at the hips and then a tightness below the knees which flared out at either side at the feet. This was usually caused by set-in pleats or ruffles. This same contouring shows a decided fondness for the high waistline. On the other hand, Paul Poiret, who last fall brought out the minaret tunic so successfully, to his own surprise, as well as everybody else's, is now showing skirts and gowns which fall straight to the floor without a break. Some skirts are so loose and large at the waistline that the suspenders of the same material are as much of a necessity as an ornament.

The Balkan style, which seems to have originated on this side of the water, is taking quite a hold in Paris, and is favored by Poiret. As a result, he made a very handsome oyster white linen dress with a waist or jerkin falling straight well below the hips and fastening, on each shoulder with a large jet button. It was belted loosely with a wide patent-leather belt. The skirt was straight-hanging and rather wider than those we have been accustomed to.

The designers, this year, have taken their inspiration from all phases of life—from men's peasant blouses to a man's Prince Albert. A man's morning suit of black and white check bound with black braid on the edges, inspired a tailored suit for women. The front of the jacket of this suit was cut very short, sloping from the under-arm seams and fastening with one large black button over the chest. In the back the jacket fits smoothly at the shoulders and falls free and loose below. The armholes are very large and bound with black, sleeves appear to emerge as though they were not fastened in. This whole garment is bound with a black braid; the collar is black silk, and the vest, of red satin, closes with a double row of black buttons.

Plaids are the Rage for the Chic Street Costume.

Short jackets, either Eton or bolero, are models in which one cannot be mistaken when choosing this season. The smart model, which I have used for my illustration, is made of black-and-green plaid suiting. The short jacket is lengthened by a graduated circular ruffle, very narrow in the front and longer in the back. The sleeves have a circular cuff. The skirt is made with a fitted peplum, having a graduated circular ruffle attached which curves upward in the front on the same line as the jacket. The lower part of the skirt has a slight draping that is visible from under the tunic. The jacket, with its ruffle, and the ruffle to the tunic, are lined with sage green satin, and all are bound with a bias piece of the plaid. A flaring collar of Swiss gives a dainty ultra touch to the suit, whose cut in itself is distinguished.

I saw three unusual skirts to be worn with separate waists. One was made of black satin from the waist in front, between the ankles, and up to the waist in the back. The two selvages were sewn together on either side, except at the bottom, where space is left for the feet to go through. These are extreme but smart in their appearance, and very comfortable, but, in reality, they give no more width for walking than the skirts which we have been wearing. Another skirt hung straight and fell from the waist, with the fullness confined at the bottom by a cuff of the same. A white belt, running through slight of the goods, was worn. Another skirt was draped up in front by means of one deep pleat across, which gave a place for pockets. In fact, almost all of the skirts had pockets somewhere.

NORTH CAROLINA IS BOSS RIDDEN STATE.

General Carr Says "Democrats of North Carolina are Tired of Being Bossed."

Washington, April 3.—North Carolina is the worst machine boss-ridden State in the Union, according to Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, and one of the objects of the progressive meeting in Raleigh next week is to throw off this yoke of oppression and allow the folks who tote water from the spring and drink buttermilk have a say so in the administration of Democratic doctrine in North Carolina.

"In the words of the distinguished editor, the late Joseph Pearson Caldwell," said General Carr, "I ain't a mainin' to do nobody any harm," but the Democrats of North Carolina are tired of being bossed and they are going to put a stop to it. In my opinion that is one of the main objects of the Raleigh gathering, reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

General Carr spent today in Washington. Tonight he called on Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborn and in company with Locke Irving, of Concord; Robert L. Lassiter, of Oxford, and D. C. Parks, of Hillsboro, dined at the New Willard. With these distinguished gentlemen of course was the chief topic of conversation. The meeting of the progressives at Raleigh was discussed at length. It was then that General Carr, who is known throughout North Carolina for the good he has done for the Confederate veteran, the widow and the orphan, made the above statement. General Carr has traveled throughout the State since his progressive meeting was first discussed and unless he is mightily mistaken the "boss and the machine political crowd" are scheduled to be thrown out of the back door before the effects of the gathering has spent its strength.

General Carr says the people of the entire country are with Woodrow Wilson in his fight for the people. They believe his Panama tolls fight is right and according to the general, if an election was to be held today, Wilson would sweep the country by the most overwhelming majority ever given a presidential candidate.

The sentiment expressed by General Carr is about the same as one hears from almost every thinking man who comes to Washington. They will tell you, some of them, of course, do not want to be quoted, that North Carolina is behind the times in so far as progressive ideas and thoughts go. They will tell you that President Wilson's policies are being shunted to the background and that those opposed to him and most of the things he stands for, are discrediting his policies wherever possible in the Old North State.

At the regular meeting, a few weeks ago, business being dull, the town board decided to prohibit the tango. Having done that, it got all "hot up" over a dance which was to be given the following Friday. After due deliberation, it was agreed to order the police force to attend the dance and arrest any wicked tangoers. The force expressed itself will to attend, but fought shy of the arresting part, pleading ignorance of the tangoed step.

In their sore distress the board then appealed to Huron Wallner, town constable of Norwood for aid and advice. Overcome by the enormity of the task, he in turn sought out the leading citizen of the town for instruction. What passed between these two has not leaked out, but after due consideration the constable decided to attend the dance in person.

Huron is a great respecter of the majesty of the law, so he resolved to wear not only his own badge of office but also as many others as he well could. Thus armed he proposed to establish himself in a conspicuous place and so intimidate any miscreants who might come there with wicked intent, which he did.

Huron is an able officer of the law and did his full duty. Whenever his suspicions were aroused, which, owing to his anxiety to perform his duty, was quite frequently, he would lean over and nudge the orchestra and ask if any one was doing the forbidden dance. On being assured that no one was he would resume his dignified mien and position.

He got really excited over one couple, and was only convinced when the young lady herself assured him that they were merely doing the grapevine and offered to teach it to Huron, just to show him how harmless it was. The affair was almost brought to a premature end when a couple, after staggering around and around the room, suddenly began to limp. The company was surprised to see Huron rush forward and, grabbing them both, call loudly for water. It took some time to convince him that they had not both sprained their ankles and were about to faint. This was finally accomplished when the young man explained that he was only teaching his partner the Castle walk the Lame Duck. The constable argued some and said he didn't want to be personal, but it seemed to him that "Lame Geese" would be a better name and he warned the other dancers not to be so blamed realistic.

So great were the efforts of some of the dancers to conduct themselves as well as possible, that they were frequently "cut" by the constable. Huron was well pleased with these evident results of his authority and was heard to remark "that they were well minded young people it was plain to see, for even an intelligent observer could not fail to note that as they changed their position so often no evil could be contemplated." No arrest was made.

Crew is Famed.
Pensacola, Fla., April 7.—With the crew almost exhausted and suffering from lack of food the auxiliary schooner L. N. Dantzler, arrived in port here today. Much of the rigging of the boat had been carried away and supplies were almost consumed during the 30 days the vessel was en route from Cuba.

You Have Nasal Catarrh Not Very Bad, But--- It Bothers You a Good Deal.

Some people have nasal catarrh and know it. Not only the patient knows it, but all of his friends know it. Many people know it that are not his friends. Just those people who happen to meet him in the street car or on the public square.

That sort of a nasal catarrh need not be described. Everybody knows the symptoms without their disgruntling recital.

Peruna helps such cases every day. Thousands have attested to this fact unhesitatingly. Peruna benefits even the worst cases of old nasal catarrh.

But there are cases of nasal catarrh not so evident. One nostril is stopped today. The other nostril is stopped tomorrow. Cannot breathe freely through the nostrils. Easy to sneeze! Mucus in the nose too thick. Sometimes forms brownish lump. Catch cold easily. Never quite free of a cold. These symptoms describe a case of subacute nasal catarrh. Many people have it, and some who would not admit they have nasal catarrh.

He knows he must blow his nose freely. He remembers that he does not breathe easily through the nose.

He recalls the fact that he snores some now, whereas he did not previously.

Subacute nasal catarrh! Or we might call it incipient nasal catarrh. Or, still better, nasal catarrh just beginning and becoming chronic.

Now is the time to take Peruna. A little Peruna will do wonders at this stage of the disease. Snuff a little weak salt water every morning (see "Till of Life," sent free by Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio), just enough to clear out the nose. Take a dose of Peruna before breakfast. Hold it in the mouth. Let it trickle down slowly and breathe the fumes of it cut through the nose as you swallow it.

This will stop an incipient case of nasal catarrh in a few weeks. Stop it entirely. The nose becomes clear again. The breath is sweet. The breathing free. No more sneezing, or sneezing, or sniffing, or catching cold easily. All of these things are in the past.

An army of men and women have been benefited by Peruna. You might as well become one of the benefited ones as to allow it to go on any further.

Winston-Salem's Negative Team Gets Decision—Graham Girl and Boy in Grand Final.

Chapel Hill, April 3.—Through its future leaders, the pick of the high school life, North Carolina registered a powerful ballot against the question of "Initiative and Referendum" here tonight, when Charles Roddick and Clifton Eaton, representing the Winston-Salem High School, were victorious in the North Carolina Debating Union, winning the Aycock Memorial Cup, in the final triumphal victory here tonight, in fact winning a victory over 600 student debaters of the State.

It is argued, again, that the secret is his superb organization. There is some force in this. The organization is amazingly efficient.

But if organization were the only requested for a great religious revival, the Sunday scheme could be mastered, duplicated and excelled in a month. If organization were all, the Man and Religion Forward Movement would have swept the country.

Perhaps, then, it is urged, it is organization plus psychology. This too, is plausible. There is undoubtedly psychological skill in every detail of the Sunday management.

Such feats of energy and endurance alone would entitle this man to fame as a marvel of physical prowess; but they are overshadowed by his other accomplishments.

While here he was a guest of the University of Pennsylvania. The audience he faced were not, as they so often are, his partisans. Many were indifferent, many merely curious, many outwardly complaisant, but inwardly antagonistic.

Yet in this chill atmosphere and out of these unfavorable elements he established command over each audience, and as a climax, without preparation, won to his cause the largest single group of converts, perhaps, in his career.

Another error, we think, is the wide-spread belief that his manner of speech, his slang, is a weakness—that he succeeds in spite of it. Our own judgment is that it is one of his most effective devices.

He is a student, he knows literature and is at home among persons of culture. But in his work he uses deliberately the language which 90 per cent of the people understand, and which 75 per cent of them use in their daily life.

These personal details, however, are unimportant. Billy Sunday has been here; he has done what he has done; the question is, How does he achieve his results? We have seen him in action, and have studied him and his work, and have endeavored to find what it is that enables him to perform feats so extraordinary that they seem well-nigh miraculous.

Others suggest that he sways the crowd by his skill in stagecraft and theatrical effects. The reverse is the fact. He studiously avoids the lure of suggestive environment. Absolutely naturalness is the keynote of his whole setting. He creates the compelling atmosphere of religion without the subtle influence of di maisties and glowing windows and rolling organs and in a structure as "worldly" in appearance as a circus tent.

It is argued, again, that the secret is his superb organization. There is some force in this. The organization is amazingly efficient.

Boys' Rights. I wonder how if any one In this broad land has heard In favor of down-trodden boys One solitary word? We hear enough of "Woman's Rights," And "Rights of Working Men" Of "Equal Rights" and "Nation's Rights"

But pray just tell us when Boys' Rights were ever spoken of? Why we've become so used To being snubbed by every one, And slighted and abused, That when one is polite to us, We open wide our eyes, And stretch them in astonishment To nearly twice their size.

Boys seldom dare to ask their friends To venture in the house, It don't come natural at all To creep round like a mouse. And if we should forget ourselves And make a little noise Then ma or 'auntie sure would say "Oh my! those dreadful boys!"

The girls bang on the piano In peace, but if the boys Attempt a tune with fife and drum, It's "Stop that horrid noise!" "That horrid noise!" just think of it; When sister never fails To make a noise three times as bad With everlasting "scales."

Insulted thus, we lose no time In besting a retreat; So off we go to romp and tear And scamper in the street. No wonder that so many boys Sunch wicked men become; 'Twere better far to let them have Their games and plays at home.

Perhaps that text the preacher quotes Sometimes—"Train up a child"— Means only train the little girls And let the boys go wild. But patience, and the time shall come When we shall all be men; And when it does, I rather think Wrongs will be righted then.

*If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you, but make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting, or being lied about don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating, and yet don't look too good, nor walk too wise.*

*If you can dream and not make dreams your master, if you can think and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and disaster and treat those two imposters just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken, and stoop and build 'em up again with worn-out tools.*

*If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue, or walk with kings—loose the common touch,
If neither foe nor loving friends can hurt you, if all men count with you but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds worth of distance run,
Your's is the earth and everything that's in it, and—which is more—you'll be a man, my son.*
