PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER DEVOTED TO THE UPBUILDING OF AMERICAN HOMES AND AMERICAN INDUSTRIES.

BURLINGTON, ALAMANCE COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, SEPT. 15, 1914.

THE GERMAN ARMY FORCED TO RETREAT

The Allied Forces of Great Britain and France Force the Kaiser's Army to Abandon Siege of Paris and to Retire Faster than the Advanced

180,000 PRISONERS TAKEN

According to Official Reports from London and Paris the Kaiser's Men are Weary and Disheartened While Those of the Allies Display No Signs of Fatigue and Stirred by the Great Victories They are Said to Have Won Are in Exultant State and Close on Heels of the Enemy.

London, Sept. 14.—10:10 P. M.—Except for the army which has been attacking Verdun, the German forces in France have fallen back all along the line, according to the French official report issued this afternoon.

From Nancy to the Vosges they have withdrawn from French territory, while on the extreme right General Von Kluck and General Von Buelow continue to retreat to the northeast before the French and British, even giving up their defensive position on the river Aisne, between Comaiegne and Soissons.

Further west, the German detachments that held Amiens have moved northeastward to try to rejoin the German army of the right at St. Quentin. It is possible all the Germans in northwest France have done likewise; otherwise they would be in danger of being cut off in the center. Another defensive position behind Rheims has been given up and in the Argonne region a general retreat is taking place toward the forest of Belnoue and Triancourt.

ALLIES PUSHING HARD.

The allies are pushing their advantage and doing their utmost to turn the retreat into a disaster by a stern pursuit on perhaps the broadest scale yet known in war. On the right they are in good position to continue the offensive, if the men are horses are not too tired for further effort. They are based on a strong line running from Marne to the fortresses through the hilly country south of Argonne. While the allies left composed largely of fresh troops, with a heavy force of cavalry under General Pau, is wheeling around so as to drive Generals Von Kluck and Von Buelow towards Ardennes and Luxemburg, General Pau's army, by a few more marches by Lafere and Loan, might cut communication between the retreating Germans and Belgium.

TRYING TO RECAPTURE RHEIMS.

The British, who yesterday took nearly all the crossings on the river Aisne and captured many prisoners, are north of that river and are pushing the attack that would assist in forcing the Germans to evacuate Rheims. The center somewhere between Chalons and Rheims is making an effort to recapture the latter city, which would be one of the most popular victories that could be announced to Frenchmen.

Should these movements be crowned with success and Loan and Rheims again fall into the hands of the allies, the Germans would have only one line of communication with Germany—through Rethel—and even that might be cut.

HELP FROM BELGIUM.

General Von Kluck, however, is looking for reinforcements from Belgium if they have not already reached him, and with these he might make another stand against his pursuers. The British war office issued a long statement today from Field Marshal Sir John French, covering more completely than the previous summaries the seven days fighting from September 4th to September 10th, inclusive.

COMPLIMENTS BRITISH AVIATION.

General French paid high compliment to latest addition to the British army, the flying corps, and he also quotes a letter from the French commander, General Joffre, who congratulated him on the accuracy of the information supplied by the aviators. These men have done little or no bomb-throwing, but have confined themselves to gathering information about the enemy for the general staff.

This is the work that the military aviators always have said would prove of greatest service in connection with the use of the aeroplane. In what conflicts they have had with German aviators, the British flying men, according to Field Marshal French, have "established individual ascendancy," and adds, "something in the direction of mastery of the air already has been established."

This is particularly gratifying to Britons, as England was one of the last powers to go seriously into the development of aviation, and the government has been seriously criticized for not giving it more encouragement.

BELGIANS SHOW STRENGTH.

The Belgians who have received new big guns and reinforcements from somewhere by a sortie from Antwerp, have prevented the Germans from sending more of their troops out of Belgium to the South.

It is reported that the Germans had another army corps ready to dispatch to the assistance of their right wing WAR GAL TWO.

north of Paris, but quickly stopped its departure when the Belgians showed their strength and ability to cut communication between Brussels and Louvain.

Although the Belgians had to retire to the protection of the Antwerp forts when the Germans discovered them, they proved themselves capable of at least annoying the army of occupation.

CRUSHING DEFEAT OF AUSTRIANS.

All the news coming in today seems to confirm the Russian reports that the Russians have inflicted another crushing defeat on the Austrians, who on the right, were supported by some German divisions. By the capture of Tomaszow, the Russians drove a wedge between the Austrian army which had invaded Poland as far as Opole, Krasnostav and Zamoso, and the army which they defeated at Lemberg and which although it lost heavily in killed, wounded, prisoners and guns, managed to reform to some extent and undertake the offensive. The Germans who reinforced the Austrians according to latest advices, shared in the defeat. They are trying to reach the fortress at Prezemst, and the rear guard is endeavoring to keep off the Russian cavalry which is pursuing them.

180,000 PRISONERS TAKEN.

Austria had in Poland and Galicia an army estimated at 1,000,000 men with 2,500 guns. At Lemberg, Austria last many thousands of men in killed, wounded and prisoners. It is now stated, although not officially, that the total number of prisoners amounts to 180,000, and that a thousand field guns were taken, besides the guns in the captured forts and an immense amount of war material. It also is reported today from Rome that the Germans have suffered a defeat at Mlawa, on the east Prussian frontier. This would be rather surprising, as the Russians only today admitted they had been compelled to withdraw in east Prussia before overwhelming forces of Germans who threatened General Rennenkampf's left wing.

It is possible the German commander, General Von Hindenburg, pushed his advantage too far and found the Russians were stronger on the frontier, where Mlawa is situated than had been expected.

SERVIANS RESUME OFFENSIVE.

The Serbians after taking Semlin, over which there was great rejoicing as it relieves Belgrade from a continuation of the bombardment, have resumed the offensive against the Austrians and, like the Montenegrins, are taking advantage of Austria's weakness on that frontier to push into her territory.

REPORT FROM PARIS.

Paris, Sept. 14.—5:11 P. M.—Pursuit of the retreating German armies by the British and French forces continued today with vigor, according to the French view.

Despite their great numbers the Germans withdrawing movement is being carried out with rapidity. This movement appears to be approaching the Belgian frontier, while the German left wing seemingly is gaining shelter in German Lorraine. So far as is known the fleeing invaders who, after wonderful forced marches into France, made such a stern attempt to break through the lines of the allies defending Paris, have abandoned more than sixty cannon of various calibre and thirty machine guns because their exhausted horses were unable to drag them fast enough to keep up even with the foot-sore galls with the foot-weary infantry. Enormous amounts of ammunition and war stores also were left on the route of the Germans which is through a difficult marshy country rendered almost impassable in some places by heavy rains which threaten to continue.

ALLIES ARE ELATED.

The allies, it is asserted, display no signs of fatigue. They are represented as stirred by unexpected great victories to such a state of elation that they are able to keep close on the heels of the retiring enemy, harassing them day and night, cutting off detachments and attempting to interpose between them and the frontier.

It generally is believed here that the next phase of the gigantic war will take place in German territory. The allies, according to the military experts, doubtless will endeavor to prevent the German armies should they succeed in eluding capture, from taking strong defensive positions near the frontier.

FRESH TROOPS COMING.

Large bodies of fresh troops are understood to have been sent forward to assist in the pursuit and many more are ready to share the chase, it is said. Some portions of the allied armies who, through the hot and sunny days interspersed with deluges of rain, bore the brunt of the fighting are taking a brief rest in preparation for future movements which may call for equally great efforts.

Mr. Ezzell With The News Again.

Monday morning of this week, Mr. W. P. Ezzell, for the last ten years with The Charlotte Observer, as foreman, took charge of The Burlington News as business manager.

Mr. O. F. Crowson will remain editor of The News.

Mr. Ezzell is well remembered here as he was manager of The News some 12 years ago, and also run one of the largest job offices in the city at that time. He is an expert printer, an excellent machine man, a good manager in all respects and a man who will make friends anywhere he goes.

Catawba College Doing Fine.

We received a personal letter from Rev. J. D. Andrew, president of Catawba College, with a renewal for The Twice-A-Week Dispatch for two years, in which he states that Catawba College made a great advance in numbers in the opening of Sept. 1. One year ago they had only 60 at the opening. This year they had even 100, a gain of 66 2-3 per cent. It is doubtful whether another college in the State will make so large a per cent. gain. Quite a number have come in since the opening and many have arranged to come. Four States are now represented and an application has been received from another. The States represented are: North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Indiana, South Carolina and Alabama.

We are never so happy or so unhappy as we imagine.—La Rochefoucauld.

How They Sell Hellos in New York.

The New York Telephone Company is a large and aggressive newspaper advertiser. It advertises its service; it preaches courtesy; it shows new ways of using the telephone. Now it has taken another step and linked the store windows of the retailers to its newspaper advertising. Attractive window forms have been gotten out which impress the advantage of ordering by telephone. The stores are showing the displays the newspapers advertising is going on, and the business of the telephone is increasing. The cooperation in this campaign is a striking example of the way the retailer is impressed by advertising in his home newspaper and how he wants to assist in selling the goods.

Y. W. C. A. Entertains.

The Y. W. C. A. delightfully entertained the new girls last evening from 8 to 10 P. M. The reception hall, parlor and dining room were tastefully decorated, the color scheme being blue and gold. Parlor chairs, cozy corners, and sofa pillows furnished comfortable seats for the girls as they chatted and furnished comfortable seats for the girls as they chatted and listened to the piano selections and solos.

Miss Helen Cozart, a new girl, was the successful competitor in the advertising contest. In the contest of Bible names so many of the girls proved their brilliancy of mind that it was impossible to tell who the winner was, and as this prize was "Sun Rise in the Sun Rise Kingdom" it was unanimously decided to present it to Miss Sato, our new Japanese friend and schoolmate.

The girls were then ushered to the dining room. Here there was a contest between the classes as to which class had the most marvelous appetite. Miss Kate Johnson being the successful one, thus giving the honor to the Junior Class. Ice cream and cake were served, each girl finding at her plate a beautiful place card in gold and blue, on which was an invitation to become a member of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Uquhart, Dean of Women, most acceptably acquitted herself as toast mistress for the evening, and interesting and witty toasts were given, among which that to be fresh-woman deserves greatest praise: "Here's to the fresh-woman as green as grass; she spends much time before the looking glass."

At 10 o'clock the girls returned to their rooms feeling much indebted to the Y. W. C. A. for the pleasure of the evening.

The Y. W. C. A. entertains large plans for the future of its work, of which announcement will soon be made.

Whitsett Has Fine Opening.

The present Fall Term of Whitsett Institute marks the beginning of the twenty-seventh year of the school under its present management. The school has a splendid opening year. The register shows students present from the following North Carolina counties: Alamance, Bladen, Beaufort, Chowan, Caswell, Davidson, Forsyth, Guilford, Hyde, Jones, Mecklenburg, Northampton, Pitt, Randolph, Robeson, Scotland, Tyrrell, Union, Pamlico, Warren, Wake, Nash, Stokes, Orange, Wilkes, Columbus, Cabarrus, Currituck, Rockingham, etc., also from South Carolina, Virginia, Cuba, etc.

Students are still entering every day for some weeks yet will see additions to the roll.

The senior class will number about twenty this year. The school has raised its requirements for graduation within the last year.

An entirely new outfit of typewriters has been placed in the business department, and other improvements made in that department.

Most of the members of the Whitsett Cornet Band have returned to school, and the band is already furnishing music for various exercises. At the reception to the new students and the friends of the school on Saturday evening last, the band pleased all by the excellent music furnished. Piano music will be under the charge of Miss Elizabeth Wheeler this year.

The Y. M. C. A. has opened its work under excellent auspices. Two fine meetings have already been held, and most of the new boys have shown an interest in the work, and will be enrolled as members. The three literary societies—The Star Circle, the Athenian and the Dialectic have had many additions to their rolls and are opening the year with fine meetings well attended.

Several lectures and two special sermons in the chapel have been greatly enjoyed as parts of the opening exercises of the year's work.

Publicity Needed in Politics.

In the first place, it is necessary to open up all the processes of our politics. They have been too secret, too complicated, too roundabout; they have considered too much of private conferences and secret understandings of the control of legislation by men who stood outside and dictated, controlling oftentimes by very questionable means, which they would not have dreamed of allowing to become public. The whole process must be altered. We must take the selection of candidates for office, for example, out of men, or little coteries; out of the hands of machines, working behind closed doors and put it into the hands of the people themselves again by means of direct primaries and elections to which candidates of every sort and degree may have free access.—Woodrow Wilson.

Wilson never uttered words truer than the above. Political machines have worked overtime in Catawba county and in North Carolina. A few men have run things and the people must put a stop to this and take charge of county, state and national affairs.—Catawba County News.

"Through Some Other Party."

We facilitate the Republican of the state upon the high character of the platform. They have gone the Democrats about half a dozen better, and if the people of the State ever come to feel that the Republican leaders are sincere in their stand progressive principles and honest methods, they will sweep the state like wild-fire. Vast changes are to come in this State and if the people can't get them by the Democratic party, they are going to get them through some other party.—Yanceyville Sentinel.

All France is now intently watching what Bordeaux, as the Asheville Citizen would say.

How long it seems since we used to think of Gettysburg and Waterloo as terrible battles.

At last the Germans have found something more deliciously dreadful than Wagner's music.

They are making a desolation which they will presently call a peace.

People Are Looking For "Buying" News.

In the days of rising prices and fluctuating values people are more inclined to shop than in ordinary times.

Ordinarily, prudence makes all of us want to buy to the best advantage—with many it is today an actual necessity.

In times like these people are eager advertising readers because they want to know.

It takes little observation to demonstrate that they are newspaper readers.

And it is not only logical to assume that now is the time to advertise in the newspaper, but it is a fact demonstrated by results on every hand.

THE SHOWS TO BE AT THE FAIR.

The Southern, Tarboro, last week published the Following Article About the Shows Coming to Our Fair.

The Liberty Show that is being given this week is having large crowds in attendance each night, and a most orderly ones. All seem to enjoy the many attractions, all the shows being well attended and we have heard nothing but praise in regard to the entire Liberty Shows. The Free act that is being given by Mat Gay is truly a sensation. There have been many high divers but the dive given by Mr. Gay is an eclipse to all others, as he dives backwards from the tallest ladder ever used here by any high diver. He turns two backward somersaults into a tank of water but you feet in depth. The dog and pony show last night had no difficulty in getting their share of the business at each performance; their big tent was well-filled to its capacity, and the clever antics of the well-trained animals met the approval of all. Fun worth the price can be had at this show, watching the bucking mule which the management offers ten dollars for anyone to ride for ten seconds, but judging from those who have tried, no money will be lost in this manner.

The Caddis Show is also worthy. This attraction is called the show beautiful and is very deserving of the title. In this tent a beautiful illusion is shown and the sweet singing of Miss Ruth Gilpin makes the show exceptionally pleasing. The old plantation is a real fun show and all who attend it will have a big laugh. Haleb, the wonderful horse, also gives a very good performance and one that should not be missed by any one. The big motor-drome is a saucer shape track with an incline of 70 degrees where dared evils do all kinds of tricks and fancy riding on motor cycles at the speed of a mile a minute. Anyone looking for a real thrill should not miss seeing this attraction.

Frederick Garganis, Italian band is attracting large crowds to the downtown concerts and all enjoy the good music and the singing of Miss Ruth Gilpin, who is easily the feature of the concerts. She has a beautiful voice and receives many praises from all who hear her.

It appears from the Government report that while the saviors of the cotton farmers are eating up newspaper space, there are thousands of farmers who are doing the most effective sort of holding and saying nothing about it. They are holding it from the gin. Cotton is always safely held before it gets to the gin. It is not so safe after it leaves the gin.

Cupid's Advertisement.
Cupid is a busy elf, You can see this for yourself. Yet perhaps he'll find it wise Presently to advertise, Somewhat in this style maybe, "Hearts extracted painlessly." He'll, of course, omit the state That the after pain is great. And when heart is gone, 'tis said, Man is apt to lose his head. Gladly would he bear some pain If his heart he could regain.

The Furnace, the Calf and the Individual.

More than a thousand prisoners in the Eastern Penitentiary signed a petition favoring a state prohibitory law in Pennsylvania. Many of the signers declared that drink was the cause of their downfall. This of itself is not remarkable except as it involves a substitute for personal responsibility.

When Moses returned from the mountain he was shocked to find his followers, led by his brother, Aaron, worshipping an idolatrous calf of gold. He was so provoked that in his anger he dropped the tabled of the law so hard that they broke in pieces. Aaron explained that he put the jewelry of the tribe in the furnace and out came the golden calf. Nobody was to blame. It was the fault of the furnace. This is the history of the furnace. Nobody is to blame. The saloon, the brothel, environment, social conditions, heredity and institutions—something other than one's self—is the cause of the downfall.

Personal responsibility is bitter medicine for the transgressor, and few take it willingly. It is easier to point to an impersonal situation. Drink has been the occasion of crime and sorrow, but drink is not to blame. The responsibility is man's. Neither statistics nor coddling can take the place of the individual's knowledge of right and wrong. It does not follow that the destruction of the furnace indicates a change in the moral cowards who hide behind it.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Needles in Child's Brain.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 13.—Iowa University surgeons have received a strange request to examine the brain of a negro child which died suddenly and peculiarly in a South Dakota town. The X-ray skiagraph of the brain shows four needles, driven to almost their full length in the brain. The presence of the needles, however, does not explain the little one's death, as the needles were evidently in the brain several years before it died and the symptoms had nothing in common with those that death from needle thrusts would cause. Yet to explain away four needles, resting several years in a living brain, is a difficult task.

There's no Middle Way Says Rudyard Kipling.

London, Sept. 8.—1:15 A. M.—"There is no middle way in this war," Rudyard Kipling declared at a mass meeting last night at Brighton. "It is not conceivable that we should fail, for if we fail the lights of freedom go out over the whole world. The may glimmer for a little in the western hemisphere but a German dominating half the world by sea and land will most certainly extinguish them in every quarter. Through no fault nor wish of ours we are at war with Germany, the power which for the last 20 years, has devoted itself to organizing and preparing for this war; the power which is now fighting to conquer the civilized world."

"We must have men and men and men if we, with our allies, are to check the onrush of organized barbarism. Have no illusions. We are dealing with a strong and magnificently equipped enemy whose avowed aim is our complete destruction. "If you assume for an instant that that attack will be successful, England will not be reduced as some people say, to the rank of a second rate power, but we shall cease to exist as a nation. We shall become an outlying province of Germany to be administered with what severity German safety and interest require."

Income Tax Increase Has Been Agreed to.

Washington, Sept. 8.—An income tax increase of one-half of one per cent, and a reduction of the minimum exemption from $3,000 to $2,000 and the maximum exemption from $4,000 to $3,000 were agreed on tentatively today by Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, who are framing the emergency revenue bill to raise $100,000,000. It is estimated that the proposed changes would produce $35,000,000 annually.

In deciding on income tax increases the committee considered the fact that revenue from this source would not be available until next July, but the opinion was general that increased revenue from other sources would meet any immediate deficit.

Under the proposed changes the income tax would be one and one-half per cent, on incomes of single persons in excess of $2,000 and the same on married persons in excess of $3,000. In addition to one-half per cent, increases would be added pro rata in accordance with the increased surtaxes on incomes in excess of $20,000. The committee agreed also that the increased tax on beer and malt liquors should be fixed at 50 cents a barrel, bringing in $35,000,000. On domestic wines a tax of 20 cents a gallon will raise $10,000,000. Distilled spirits will escape an extra tax, but it was decided to tax rectified spirits two cents a gallon, realizing $2,000,000.

The committee is said to have agreed tentatively on a tax on railroad freight in lieu of a tax on railroad tickets. Such a tax would be collected by the railroads and easily administered. The rate proposed, it was reported, was two per cent.

At the conclusion of an all day conference it was agreed not to tax tobacco products, automobiles, gasoline, amusement tickets, magazines and many other articles and commodities proposed, the increased income tax averting the necessity of levying against these articles. No official announcement of the committee's action was made, Representative Underwood the chairman, stating that the program was subject to change.

A little while ago—but how long it seems—we were anxious about how the A. B. C. mediators were getting on at Niagara Falls.

The esteemed Henderson Gold Leaf put in new equipment changed from weekly to semi-weekly, and then all of a sudden decided to expand into a daily. It announces that the latter change is purely experimental; if at the end of a stated period the people of the community are not supporting the daily as it has a right to expect, from what they have said, the daily will be discontinued. We felicitate the Gold Leaf, and wish it well.

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are often very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50c. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

Weak Kidneys Often the Result of Overwork.

On several occasions I have been unable to work and suffered severe pains in the back, due to my kidneys. I called on a doctor of Ripon, Wis., but received no relief.

I tried Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which gave me instant relief. I was then able to resume work. Swamp-Root is the only relief I can get from kidney disease which I am subject to in the spring of the year. I am writing this testimonial through my own free will that sufferers of kidney and bladder diseases will know of the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root. I recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root whenever I can and always have a bottle of Swamp-Root in my house.

POOR

FAMOUS SPEECH IS GIVEN PUBLICITY.

Only Since Huerta Has Fled the Famous Speech Made in the Mexican Senate Is Published.

By William G. Shepherd.

Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 4.—At last Bellisario Dominguez's speech has been published. Where the speaker has gone, only Victoriano Huerta knows, but Dominguez's speech will last as long as Mexicans worship their heroes, or indeed, as men of any nation continue to pay tribute to a brave man. They were terrible days—days of horror—in which Dominguez spoke. Huerta had been president only a few months. Statesmen who opposed him had been lead away in the dead of night, at his orders. None ever were seen again. Huerta's life was an orgy of cognac, women and murder.

Dominguez was a senator. The horror of the times seized upon him, and he resolved, for one, not to bend to the terror, as other senators were doing, but to face it—and die. He wrote a speech; he rose on the floor of the senate and delivered that speech. Only since Huerta, with his hoarded gold, fled, have the people known what Bellisario Dominguez said that evening in August to the Mexican senate. It is only now that newspapers have dared to print his burning, patriotic words.

It was an adroit manner by which Dominguez secured the floor for his speech that evening. Sanchez Gavito, senator, had asked for leave of absence, an ordinary request. Dominguez rose to explain why he would vote "No." "I must vote against it," said Dominguez, "because Mexico needs such men as Gavito in the senate during these grave times. And then Bellisario, in the sparkle of the great cut glass chandeliers, standing under the arches on which are carved the names of Mexico's greatest men, smilingly raised his head against the Terror i Meht awl (etashrdlshrdl) Terror in the Mexican palace, began his suicide.

"Do you not see" he said "senator senators, how dark is the present situation of Mexico? Do you not see the weakness of a government which has as its head an old soldier who lacks the knowledge and the culture indispensable to the government of a people, and who tries to make himself appear strong by acts that receive the reprobation of all civilization, and morality? This old soldier follows his plan of terror because he does not know that there are other ways by which a good man may ascend to power. Don Victoriano Huerta is controlled by an obsession that would unseat the mind of a man of talent. The spectre of his protector and friend whom he betrayed—the spectre of Madero—haunts him at the banquet table and in his dreams. When this obsession becomes almost too great for him to endure he descends to the depths of cruelty, saying to his followers, 'Kill, assassinate, burn.'"

The impression which Dominguez made as he spoke these words was indescribable. It was as if his fellow senators saw him tanding before them with a self directed revolver at his head, ready to slay himself, and they helpless. He continued:

"Don Victoriana Huerta is provoking an international conflict with the United States. In this conflict every Mexican who is a Mexican must die, for the combat would be so unequal that none of us could survive and we could save only our honor to live after us, so that men who land on Mexican shores in centuries to come will say, with uncovered heads, 'Here once lived a nation of a million heroes!'"

"But first it is our duty to avoid, if possible, such a conflict. How shall we do it? Shall we stand idle and let history say that Mexican men wept for rights they could not defend? Here is my plan:

"Let every member of this body sign a petition to Don Victoriano Huerta, requesting him to resign. Vouchsafe me the honor of carrying to Don Victoriano Huerta this request. I will also present to him this address which I am now making before you. It is not improbable that, in his madness, he will lose his patience with me before he has read through the papers I shall take to him, and will kill me. But the papers will remain in his presence and his curiosity will force him to take them from my dead body and read them, and then, perhaps, he will see the truth and will also slay himself.

"I implore you senators, that you make this a continuous session and do not adjourn until you have your answer from Don Victoriano Huerta."

Dominguez took his seat. The Mexican senate sat in silence a moment and then proceeded with other business. Dominguez had lost. He rose, walked to the cloak room, got his hat and went out in to the street and to his home. Within half an hour he was arrested.

Of all the terrible stories that are told of the hideous deaths of Huerta's enemies those which deal the death of Dominguez are the most awful. Mexicans have every reason to believe that Dominguez was dragged to the hospital of Dr. Urrutia, who was a member of Huerta's cabinet and that there his tongue was torn from his mouth and that bleeding and almost unconscious from pain, he was taken to the hospital yard that same night of August 23 and shot.

I have personally asked Dr. Urrutia whether the story that he tore our Dominguez's tongue was true.

"I did not do it," he told me. "Other members of Huerta's cabinet who were jealous of me told the story about me. It is a lie. Dominguez is dead. That is all I know."

The facts about Dominguez's death come to light just recently. They mark Victoriano Huerta as an unspeakable, merciless, demented murderer, drunk and as bloody as Nero himself.

These same facts also place on the pages of Mexican history one of its brightest names. They give to the world a new instance of the heights which human self-sacrifice may sometimes attain.

Man and Woman Are Found in the Lake at Charlotte.

Charlotte, Sept. 10.—Locked in each others embrace the bodies of Charles B. Howell and Miss Lizzie Griffin, of Monroe, were found at 6:25 this morning floating on the surface of the lake at Lakewood, the park suburban resort west of the city. The bodies were near the dance pavilion and were bound together with a leather belt, worn by Howell around his waist ordinarily. The bodies were floating together, the woman's face upward, the man's over her right shoulder. The woman's left arm was under the man's left arm and encircling his body, their bodies bound breast to breast together. The woman had on all her clothing except her coat and hat which was found yesterday in the boat.

On her left arm were two bracelets, apparently of value; on her finger a signet ring; a necklace of gold, and a gold crescent pin at her waist. The waist was of white lace, her skirt dark blue serge, the same as the coat found in the boat yesterday. The bodies were buckled so tightly together that when the belt was cut the woman's back scarcely touch the ground where she was lying, it having been pressed in so tightly that the back had sunk in. The man's body was full of water, but there was no water in the woman's body. His body had swollen greatly and pressed against her body so that her back was bent in by force of the pressure and belting which had not given way.

The bodies were found by Mr. E. Maynard, who works at Wearn's lumber yard, and who lives just beyond the lake at Lakewood. He was waiting at the street car station at the lake for a car, when he saw something floating on the lake near the pavilion.

He went nearer and saw that it was two bodies fastened together. He phoned the coroner of the find. The news spread rapidly and in a short time there was an immense crowd surrounding the lake. W. S. Orr, manager of Lakewood, and others rowed out to where the bodies were and pulled them into shallow water thence lifted them to the bank. The dragging of the bodies caused the woman's hair to be disheveled and caused a bruise on her right cheek, which gave rise to the report that she had been forced into the suicidal pact, but this later Mr. Orr and others say is not true, as it would have been impossible for anyone to be forced into the position in which the bodies were found together had he or she been unwilling.

Said Mr. Orr: "The man and woman stood facing each other while he bound and buckled them together. They then jumped into the lake." The act was committed Monday night. Beside the bodies rising on the third day as is the case in drowning, a conductor on one of the Chadwick-Hoskins cars which pass Lakewood, recalls that Howell and Miss Griffin, whom he knew, went out on his car Monday night about 11 o'clock, and got off at Rebman's avenue, this side of the lake. The boats had all been locked up after the Labor Day celebration, but Howell secured a boat, and in it he and the girl kept their death pact.

Mr. Howell left home Saturday morning on the 8 o'clock train. He said he was going to Salisbury to spend Labor Day with his mother. As soon as he reached Charlotte he went to the Powell home. He was in a good humor when he left.

When Howell left the Powell home he went to the Central Hotel and registered thus: "J. J. Hinson and wife, Atlanta, Ga." He said he was looking for his wife. He was given room 76, the key to which room was found in his coat in the boat. The girl did not go to the hotel. She came to Charlotte Saturday at 1 o'clock and went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Williams, the latter her aunt, being a sister of her father. She stayed there until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. She left telling her aunt and the family that she was going up street to shop, that she intended becoming a trained nurse and was going to Fayetteville to take her training, and that she was going to buy some goods for uniforms, and would then take the 10 o'clock train for Monroe. She did not go to Monroe, but met Howell uptown and they were together from that time on, the last being seen of them was when they disembarked from the car at Lakewood Monday night.

There seems to be no doubt but that they agreed to die together and as he said, "End Everything."

Mate Selected—All Ready.
Colonel Roosevelt was so enthused by his reception in the Sugar State of Louisiana that he not only acknowledged the salutation of "Monsieur, the next President," with which he was greeted at every turn, but he went so far as to make the direct statement that he will be a candidate for President, and wants John M. Parker as his running mate, confessing that he had calculated on placing Parker in the cabinet which he never gave a chance to name. Meantime, it is to be feared that Parker is destined to live a life a private citizen.

"The Sins of the Father."

"The Sins of the Father," will be the attraction at the Piedmont Opera House, Burlington, Thursday, Sept. 17. It is by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Leopard's Spots," "The Root of Evil," and "The Clansman," as well as many others—among them "The Southerner," which is his latest book and is classed among the season's six best sellers. Theatre-goers are familiar with the immense success of "The Clansman," not alone as a story but as a play, and so it is only right and proper to say that "The Sins of the Father" is still a greater hit and a more gripping play than was "The Clansman." Mr. Dixon gives as his inspiration for the play, the most tragic phase of a great problem—the race question in America in its relation to the home life of our people. It is a tender and soul stirring plea for racial purity, gripping and dramatic. But he has not forgotten the sunshine. There is a delicious vein of irresistible comedy running throughout.

The theme, some will say is a most delicate one, which for argument sake might be admitted, but in the hands of a genius like Dixon—a celebrated critic said of him, "That he is a genius and one of the ten talent men of his time"—there is not an objectionable line or feature in the play.

In a word: written by a genius, dramatized by a master of stagecraft, there has been no play produced in years more dramatic, more interesting and gripping, more intensely humorous than "The Sins of the Father." It is destined to be still a greater success than was "The Clansman."

Stick a Pin Here.

The people of North Carolina will be put in a far better position to control in political affairs by means of a statewide legalized primary. It is a measure for the benefit of all the people and it should extend to every county and to all elective offices.

In every county in the State the Democracy should let the men know who are the party candidates that the primary is wanted. No member of the next general assembly should be able to come to Raleigh at the 1915 session and say that it is a matter which has not been called to his attention. The time for the people to act is now, as nominations are being made.

The people will never rule as they should rule if they sit idly by and wait for things to happen. They must take action for themselves. The legalized primary is for the benefit of the people and they should never grow weary till it is in force in the state and in every county of the State. The way to get the primary is for the people to make themselves heard.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Promises and Performances.

In view of the promises of many of the Democratic candidates for various state and federal offices in 1912, that if given the power to direct and control legislation the high cost of living should be reduced, the campaign for 1914 is a most opportune time for these gentlemen to tell the voters just how they have kept their promises.

The people in every city and in every manufacturing district will be anxious to know why prices of the great majority of articles they have to purchase have advanced in the face of these gentlemen having the power to reduce them.

It is not in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey alone that the workmen will insist on explanations, but in every city and every industrial district in the United States the voters will call for an exhibit of lower prices for household necessities as compared with the prices prevailing in 1912.

Sugar was one item that was to be lowered in price to the consumers, and hundreds of thousands of the voters relied upon the Democratic victors to bring it down greatly in price to the actual consumers.

Meats of all kinds were to be lowered in price. Not only choice porterhouse steaks were to be cut down in price to a figure that would enable the masses to enjoy that delectable and strengthening food, but every other kind of meat was to be reduced from what were termed the extortionate prices of 1912.

The beef trust seems not only mightier than the pen, but than the tongue, mightier than both tongue and pen combined, for in the platform through resolutions, and by speeches were the voters of the United States promised that its power should be broken and its control of prices should depart forever.

It is time for the Democrats, who were to reduce the prices to the masses of the people, to call for the tables of the Department of Commerce and have the comparisons made between the prices of 1912 and those of 1914 of the necessities of life, the articles that enter into the costs of living.

Let them present the official statement to the voters and have it attested by the proper officers, so they can read plainly and conclusively show the electors just how much less their fuel (the coal trust being destroyed), their sugar (the sugar trust being busted), their meats (the beef trust being exploded), their freights (railway combines being dissolved), their clothing (the woolen monopoly being crushed) are costing them now, lowered by the gentlemen who obtained office promising to do all these things.

It is due to the gentlemen who have done so much to reduce the cost of living to the people that they should publish broadcast the evidence of their faithfulness to their pledges.

The people really do not appreciate yet what has been done for them in this matter of lowering the costs of living.

And the Democratic candidates should make it as plain as daylight, so they may all understand.—Washington Post.

There was a continuous sound of many voices; a steady cadence in which no individual note dominated; 100 women's voices incessantly repeating brief sentences with a rising inflection at the end, each sentence lost in the continuous tumult of sound. In a long line, perched on high stools, they sat before the black panels which rose behind their narrow desk. Into the transmitters—hung from their necks—they articulated their strange confused chorus. And apparently without relation to the words they uttered, 100 pairs of hands reached back and forth across the panels, weaving interminably a never-to-be-completed pattern on its finely checkered face.

On the panels 100 little lights blinked white and disappeared. Tiny sparks of ruby and green flashed and were gone. Untiring, the white stars flickered in and out, and behind them raced the tireless hands, weaving a strange pattern with the long green cords. And unbroken, unintelligible, the murmur of the girls' voices vibrated unceasingly.

The War and the Poor Man's Bread.

This is harvesting season and the United States points with pride to her wonderful bumper crop of wheat. Europe is severely busy at present directing the grim reaper death, meanwhile neglecting her wasting crop of food supplies. At the same time the living population of Europe expect to eat during the coming winter months and evidently they expect to buy their food supplies from the United States. Reasoning from this basis it is clear that prices in this country will inevitably rise much higher. The cheapest laborer in America will be forced into competition with the monarchs of Europe in buying bread.

The speculative element of the United States, as elsewhere, are patriotic enough to let millions hunger, provided they themselves get better prices elsewhere. The individualistic system of industry as applied to modern age will calmly permit millions to be slaughtered on the one hand, while on the other hand, hundreds of thousands in another nation may starve to death. Our administration at Washington is doing nothing towards averting the awful calamity that will surely bear down upon us within the next few months. Men by the thousands will likely be laid off from work during the cold, bitter winter months. Many of these have large families to support. Then will a crisis begin. High prices for food, no work at any price. "Hungry men are hard to deal with," says Leslie M. Shaw, and that is a fact.

Why will not our government now buy up the wheat and other crops of this country and sell them back to us at cost? This can be worked out by those whom we have put at the helm of our "ship of state." They can certainly provide the money. As proof of this to a degree, a news dispatch last Sunday from Washington stated that congress had turned over $55,000 to the Governor of Virginia for the negroes to use in celebrating the Emancipation day. The same issue of the same paper carried another tel-ographic dispatch from Galveston, Texas, stating that on last Saturday four ships sailed from Europe carrying 895,000 bushels of our wheat away. Why not postpone the nigger frolic and buy up the wheat? Hungry niggers can't dance. They must first be fed. Where was our congressman from this district, the aged Condeferate major when the Emancipation appropriation was being considered? We are looking to him and others in power to make some provision whereby we can support ourselves and those dependent upon this winter if the worst comes to the worst.

"The Heaviest Battalions." In saying that God is always with the strongest," Huerta is evidently paraphrasing the cynical remark usually attributed to Napoleon, but which in reality has been common property for centuries. "Every schoolboy knows," as they say—really meaning that the "Cyclopaedia of Practical Quotations" shows—that the first reference of the sort was by Tacitus, who wrote, "The gods are on the side of the stronger." Voltaire made it famous in a letter written in 1770 in which he said, "It is said that God is always on the side of the heaviest battalions." The expression attributed to Napoleon is "Providence is always on the side of the last reserve."

All of these remarks deserve to be contrasted with the one credited to Lincoln when he was asked whether he was sure that God was on "our side." "I do not know," he replied; "I have not thought about that. But I am very anxious to know whether we are on God's side."—The Kansas City Times.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE NATIONS.

MATTHEW XXV. 31-46.

31 When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats.

33 And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:

35 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in:

36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty and gave thee drink?

38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40 And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

41 Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels:

42 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink:

43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?

45 And then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

46 And these shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal.

CONDUCT DETERMINES ETERNAL LIFE.

The last five days of the public ministry of Jesus were filled with questions and answers, conversations, lengthy discourses, and parables of instruction. The evident purpose of our Lord was to hold forth a great body of truth both for the multitudes which surrounded him and for the disciples who should believe on his name throughout all the ages. The culmination of his teachings on the day before his crucifixion was disclosed in two solemn words: "Watch! Work!" The parable of the ten virgins illustrated the lesson, "Watch!" while the necessity of work was shown in the parable of the talents, which immediately followed it. The picture of the final judgment emphasized with great seriousness the results of watching and working.

THE SHEEP AND THE GOATS.

See what a solemn introduction Jesus gives to this great event: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations." The Son of Man, whom we have learned to know as the Brother and Redeemer of men, is now the King on the throne, the Judge of the nations of the earth. Before him are not the Christians only, and not the heathen nations only, but all the nations, both those who have heard the gospel and those who have not heard it. Our Lord and final Judge as not one rule of judgment for his followers and another rule for those who do not know him. The same rule of conduct applies to all; and if any may read into the story what is doubtless intended to be discovered in it, the value of the gospel is its power to persuade men to act toward all men in the manner our Lord here approves. He separates the individuals of races into two easily distinguished groups, the sheep and the goats. Let us not attempt to find in the parable more than it teaches. The sheep and the goats represent the good and the bad among men, the qualities of life and conduct which the King on the throne is able to distinguish, but which is impossible for us in our limited human powers to assign to men. We can only approve the divine selection after it is revealed to us. We are not judges of men.

THE REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS.

To those on his right hand the King said: "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." For their conduct was just the conduct which our Lord himself performed on earth and still performs through his spirit working in men. They fed the hungry, gave drink to the thirsty, showed hospitality to the stranger, clothed the naked, ministered to the sick, and comforted the prisoner. In the beginning of his ministry Jesus declared that the Spirit of God came upon him to qualify him for this very same ministry to needy human beings: "The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me" to comfort the sorrowing and to restore the dignity of life to those who have lost it. (See Luke iv. 18, 19.) At a later time, when John the Baptist sent to him to inquire whether or not he was really the Christ, the Messiah of the prophets, Jesus pointed to his ministry of kindness to the unfortunate and the neglected and said: "Go and tell John these things." (See Luke vii. 22.) When his own disciples were in doubt about how to achieve true greatness in Christ's kingdom Jesus pointed to his own life of unselfish service and said: "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." (Matt. xx. 28.)

Now, as the Master is, so ought the servants to be in the world. There is no way to prove that we have the spirit of Christ than to do the works of Christ, and his works are unselfish deeds of love to all who have need. We are not saved by our works, but if we do the works of Jesus, it is a proof that we have his spirit. There is no more pleasing thought than to contemplate the approval of Christ when he comes and finds us absorbed in the very deeds of love and kindness which he himself performed when he lived the life of a man among us. On the other hand, there can be nothing more terrible than the confusion and shame of those whom the Lord, when he comes, finds absorbed in their own selfish pleasures, unconcerned about the fate of the unfortunate, the suffering, and the sinning in their midst. These are they on the King's left hand, who saw no beauty in unselfish ministry and found no Christ in the forgotten little ones of the earth. Among Christ's brethren we should seek for the Christ of glory if we desire to find him to the joy of our own souls.

AN OPEN DOOR TO DISCIPLE-

It was a surprise to the group on the King's right hand that what they had done to their fellow men out of a spirit of love and brotherly kindness should have the commendation of the Judge of all nations. Unconsciously they discovered Christ in their zeal for their humankind. Those on the king's left were equally surprised that their neglect of simple, loving service had lost them their vision of the glory of Christ. If they had known that the presence of the Lord was to be discovered in the lives of broken and destroyed men and women, perhaps they would have followed him there. But they had no impulse to bind up the wounded and restore life's meaning to the oppressed. And, lacking that impulse, they failed of the Christ spirit. What is the meaning of the coming of our Lord to the earth but to make the impulse of unselfish love the commonplace motive of human conduct? To find Christ in everyday affairs is one of the most astonishing discoveries any true servant of humanity can make. But to awake finally to the consciousness that we have overlooked him in our zeal for other things is the most sorrowful surprise that can enter into any man's life.

LIFE OR DEATH ETERNAL.

Let us not deceive ourselves. There is not any eternal value in a life of easy self-sufficiency. Eternal life resides alone in self-denying service for the good of others. Our professions do not merit heaven, but our unfeeling love does. God is love, and love is consuming zeal for others. A life that is projected in the world on the basis of self-interest fails utterly to grasp the meaning of salvation. A self-seeking man has never seen Christ face to face and cannot abide with him. A man who has found his Lord will be unable to do otherwise than serve him in word and deed.

LESSON QUESTIONS.

How did Jesus fill up the last days of his public ministry?
Relate his parables of watchfulness.
What were his parables of work?
In what royal state does the present parable picture our Lord?
On what basis were the nations separated as sheep and goats?
Discuss unselfish service as the open gate to the kingdom of heaven.
Tell why selfishness fails to lay hold on eternal life.
How must we live now if we would live forever?

Mr. Jack Lowe, our miller at The C. S. Harris, of the University; W. L. Loy, Trinity College.

Quite a crowd visited Uncle Buck Sunday, namely: Misses Annie Matkins, Bessie Smith, Alene Bouldin and Messrs. Arthur Smith, Will Saunders, Ed Underwood and John Matkins. They all took a walk Sunday afternoon going with Miss Bessie home, and enjoyed some very fine cider.

Hope we will have the pleasure of going again for we do love cider. Mrs. Lula Jordan and baby are visiting her mother this week. Messrs. J. R. Smith.

Textile Trade's Bright Outlook.

Tariffs are of no consequence at this time as the war puts up barriers safer than the highest imaginable protective tariff, but the questions of labor and of dyestuffs make complications of a most serious character that will tax the ingenuity of our textile captains to the utmost. But the delays will be but temporary, as our dyestuff experts will work out something to meet the situation, and labor will be forthcoming when the real call is sounded.

We are passing a period when cool heads and careful action are important. We have the golden opportunity forcing itself upon us, and yet we must get away from our old habit of hard and fast rules for the conduct of business that have kept us out of foreign markets for so many years. Because the business is forced upon us is no reason why we should not open new markets in the way the Germans, French and English have been so successful. This is, do business in the way trade asks that it be done, and not as we do it here.

Perhaps the most serious difficulty will be in the labor sufficient to operate all of our textile equipment. Hundreds of our foreign mill workers are on their way to the war and many of them are benefitting the industry in particular and the country in general going. The I. W. W. ranks are being thinned out, and as each undesirable departs a real worker will come forward to take his place, and as to the matter of dyestuffs the labor shortage will be only temporary. Now is the time to modify our so-called child labor laws and let 5,000 husky boys and girls get back into the mills and satisfy their ambition to become breadwinners rather than idlers. The outlook has never been brighter for the textile industry.—Fibre and Fabric.

Chance for Right Man.

She had entered a Third Avenue jewelry store with a typical Bowery gait, and was walking up to a clerk, she handed out a ring and brusquely queried:

"What's it worth?"

"Very little," he answered after a brief glance.

"Do you call it a diamond?"

"No; it is not a diamond."

"Didn't cost $500 did it?"

"Oh, no."

"About 75 cents, eh?"

"That would be nearer its value I think. I hope you didn't buy that for a diamond ring?"

"No, I didn't. My feller gave it to me for an engagement ring."

"I see," said the clerk, as he turned his head away to smile.

"Said it was a $500 proof of his love."

"Yes."

"I've been a little suspicious all along, but didn't want to raise a row. Only glass, eh? Seventy-five cents buys 'em anywhere? Well, the engagement is off, the fellow has got the cold throw-down, and I'm ready for the next. See?"—Washington Herald.

Says the Reidsville Review: "Starvation is not staring Rockingham people in the face regardless of the short crop of tobacco. Cattle raising this year was on a much larger scale than ever before, and he who thinks the average farmer in this county will not be prepared to 'live at home' for some time or come has another guess coming to him."—Rockingham should worry.

I can not but take notice of the wonderful love of God for mankind, who, in order to encourage obedience to his laws, has annexed a present as well as a future reward to a good life, and has so interwoven our duty and happiness together, that while we are discharging our obligations to the one, we are, at the same time, making the best provisions for the other.—Melmoth.
