BILLY STIRS MINISTERS INTO TARDY ACTION ON SAWDUST FIRING LINE.

Threatens to Declare Seats Vacant Unless They Help Him.

WINS 258; GETS ROSES.
Preachers Says He doesn't Fear Booze or Devil And His Gang.

Patterson, N. J., April 22.—Like a baseball player has a penchant for doing every now and then to the umpire, Billy Sunday tonight lost his patience and assailed those ministers, who, supposedly co-operating in his campaign here, sit in the tabernacle night after night without bending finger to encourage penitents toward making a break for the front.
Billy put every ounce of the strength he's got into his sermon on "David and Nathan." But when traffic on the yellow aisles did not become bustling enough to suit him, in the first few minutes following his first appeal, he lost no time getting out of the pit and putting some of the blame on the complacent clergymen.
"Hey, you ministers," he yelled, and his voice carried all the way to the rear. "Climb out of your seats and get down there and help somebody to Jesus Christ. You don't expect one man to do it all, do you?" and when he saw several of them rise rather sheepishly and leave the choir stand, he turned again to the business of shaking hands and further exhorting the crowd.
Five minutes later, when the penitents were not coming up to him as fast as he wished, he jumped out of the platform hole once more and stood facing the pastors. His eyes blazed what he felt when he saw the majority of them still were there, doing nothing but watching, waiting and singing "Jesus, I am Coming Home." Then he cut loose:
"Now, I'm not going to ask you fellows to get busy anymore. I cannot understand how you can come here all the time and just keep so many square inches of your chair warm.
"Your conscience ought to make you get out and do something, if nothing else will. If you don't—say, ministers, I think I'll have to declare those seats vacant."
The crowd laughed heartily and applauded, and in a little while the section set aside of the brethren was almost depopulated. Incidentally, the trail-hitting took on new life. Counters declared 278 had grasped Sunday's hand, but only 258 would take seats and wait until the secretaries come round to check them up.

Unlike he found it in Philadelphia, Sunday went through almost three weeks of his scuffle with the devil here before he got a single floral token. Tonight he got an armful of American Beauty roses. About a dozen male employees of the Noe Farm, Madison, N. J., brought them along, with instructions to Rodeheaver, who presented them to Billy.

A peculiar feature of tonight's crowd was that it was made up largely of out-of-town people, hundreds arriving an hour and more before Sunday was scheduled to preach, via trains, trolley cars and motor buses. The biggest delegation comprised 1000 business women of Passaic, while from the same town came 200 Odd Fellows, the first fraternal organization to attend any of the services in a body.
Not only tonight, but all day, Billy seemed in better spirit than at any time since Ma Sunday went back to Winona Lake to see if the Sunday kids, Bill, Jr., and Paul, are getting along all right.
"My warfare is for your happiness, that's all," he cried once. "So I don't wonder that I'm being slandered and vilified by the devil and his emissaries, the liquor gang and subsidized newspapers. But God is with me, and I'll fight the whole bunch to a finish. They can't frighten me with their blatant opposition."
"Be sure your sins will find you out," was the counsel Billy wished he could blazen in the skies, and along the railroads instead of tobacco advertisements, and the dramatic way in which he shouted the phrase from time to time made many of his hearers squirm in their seats.
This afternoon about 3000 persons heard the evangelist preach on "Personal Work," which was one long mandate for professing Christians to get busy at the meetings and help the sermons bear fruit. He worked hard at it, too, but when he finished he decided not to call for trail-hitters.
Billy collections were good today. The total was $1,240.14, sending the grand sum up to $18,236.73.
Once more, this morning, in home of Peter Quackenbush, millionaire merchant, Billy gave one of his talks to 150 members of Patterson's 400, as the local paper refers to the town's society. His subject was "The Plan of the Ages," and once in his context he took a slam at Pastor Russell and those who follow his teaching. There was no trail-hitting, but all hands had a shake of his before he left.
A petition signed by most of the inmates of the county prison came to Billy today, asking him to bring his message there soon. He sent word back that he'd arrange it without fail, but could not be sure when.

ASHEVILLE WOMAN FOUND IN RIVER.

Asheville, April 29.—The body of Mrs. Allie Owenby today was found in the French Broad River after officers had dragged it several hours upon the request of relatives who reported to members of the police department that she had disappeared at an early hour this morning. She left home soon after eating breakfast, going in the direction of the river, and members of the family became alarmed when she did not return.
Appearances indicate that the deceased either fell into the river accidentally or committed suicide. The body was examined by coroner R. Morris, who is inclined to the belief that the deceased jumped into the river to end her life. No inquest was held, relatives believing that Mrs. Owenby ended her life in a spell of melancholia. The body was taken to a local undertaker.

The Durham Sun says: "If girls used as much care in selecting husbands as they do in selecting hats, marriages would not be so much of a lottery." But a girl would not be so careful in the selection of hats if she could not get one until it had come to her and begged her to take it.—Florida Times-Union.

BILLY GRIPS PATTERSON WITH 3 WEEKS' EFFORT; SHED CANT HOLD ALL

Preacher Asserts 300,000 Persons in New York Are Dope Fiends.

Patterson, N. J., April 23.—For real religious fervor, in which there were two or three explosive expressions, Billy Sunday's meeting tonight beat anything he's yet experienced in this over-salooned, so-called shoaling place of anarchists and socialists. Billy preached his sermon on "The Timid Woman" in his best, whirlwindy way, and though just 221 penitents left their seats and swung up toward his hand, he seemed to grip the hearts and minds of all of his hearers. They laughed heartily at his levity, fought to stem rising tears when he interjected pathos and sat still and tense under his dramatic allusions to the torment of hell.

It was a big crowd, too; if it had been much bigger considerable more tabernacle would have been needed. And just to show how the town has grown to regard Sunday in these three weeks, a Caledonian band had to parade down town streets an hour and more to pipe up the gate receipts of its annual ball. Heretofore it has always been a problem to get a hall big enough for that ball.

The spirit of Billy's preaching didn't take long to infect a good many of the thousands. In fact, the one-time star base-runner hadn't been at it ten minutes before a negro preacher leaped out of his seat in the ministers' section and loosed a yell of the old-fashioned, southern camp-meeting variety. "G-l-o-o-o-ry," was his ecstatic cry, and it came so loud and so unexpectedly that it frightened at least half of the audience.

Even Sunday himself was startled, but he was quick to reprimand those before him who seemed to think it a thing to laugh at. That finished, and quiet restored, he declared that "something is going to happen now in old Patterson, for this meeting was all arranged by Jesus Christ and He's leading. Something's going to happen that will make all hell howl."

And just to show how he felt about the prospect of hell howling, he came down on the pulpit with his fist hard enough to split the top of it, or else to cave in his knuckles—so it seemed to the host that jumped at the sound of the blow. Simultaneously with it resounded another tremendous bellow from the negro parson, who, as he uttered it, wore a look on his face that betokened him in about the twenty-seventh heaven of delight.

"Patterson will never be what she was before these meetings started," Billy shouted a while later. "Get on your toes, you church people, and help lift the old town to a level she never was on before. Don't quibble about the style of my preaching. It isn't the sawdust trail that saves; it isn't the shake of my hand that keeps a man out of hell; it's the act of a sinner touching Christ."

Sunday made the New York reporters get busy when he declared there were 300,000 dope fiends within its borders, and hurried on to express a fear that "the nation is becoming a nation of dope fiends, drunkards and atheists." And then, after a breath or two, he shot a warm jab into the ranks of the local saloon keepers.

"In their hearts, the saloon keepers of Patterson don't dislike me. They know they're in a dirty, rotten, Godforsaken and vile business. And they also know I'll fight their business to a finish."

The first person to answer Billy's call to the trail was Dr. J. A. Reinhardt, veteran principal of the Patterson High School. With him came Edo Van Winkle, one of the leading hardware merchants of the city. The pair got a warm burst of applause when they reached the front.

With the $712.48 reaped in collections today, the total to date reached $18,949.21. The estimated attendance so far, including today's meetings, has been 245,000.

There's no doubt about it, Billy's campaign in the city which thousands who followed his work imagined would be the supreme test of his power to win over all sorts of prejudices, is getting better as it goes along.

An itinerant preacher, the Rev. John Cavanagh, who, though he came originally from Dover, Del., says he lives mostly "under his hat," came to town this afternoon and started to do business on a down-town street corner. He came thinking it would be a good time to take advantage of the religious awakening due to Billy Sunday's meetings.

But things didn't turn out the way he expected—that is, for a while. He scarcely had started (or had hardly started anybody) when two cops sauntered up and put a quietus on his sermon. Wherefore he became indignant, and when the bluecoats showed they were in earnest, he decided to go to see Chief of Police Bimson about it.

On the way to the city hall he colled off sufficiently to map out a plan of action, which was carried out when, on being ushered into the presence of Chief Bimson, the preacher dropped on his knees by the side of the former's swivel chair and started to pray.

"Oh, God," he began, "bless this chief of police and all the officials of the city. May your spirit sweep through this city hall, even as it is being manifested in the great tabernacle where Mr. Sunday is preaching Your word."

When the Rev. Mr. Cavanagh arose, the boss of "the force" shot him a quizzical look and wanted to know what it was all about. Then, when he learned the preacher's mission, his eyes twinkled as he said:

"Well, my friend, there's a vacant lot about two blocks from here. My men stopped you, I supposed, because they feared your audience would obstruct traffic, but if you are really anxious to preach in Patterson, you can start in on that lot and keep at it to your heart's content."

After which the wandering dispenser of the gospel made his way up to listen to Billy, murmuring something about "the power of prayer." He says he will stay a while and try to convict the sinners who may keep away from the tabernacle.

There were 2,800 persons in the shed this afternoon. There was no trail-hitting.

"There never had been a town had its mind on Jesus Christ like it has now. You have an opportunity now to rewrite the name of Patterson and make it mean something more in the country than it does now. If the church of God in old Patterson doesn't get busy and go out and get the people now, she never will get them."

It was hot in the temple, notwithstanding the fact that all doors and windows were open. And since there's nothing that gets on Bill's nerves like a woman fanning herself, he was nervous from text to benediction. Most of the audience was made up of women.

The Rotary Club got together at luncheon before tabernacle time and had Billy on hand to give them his idea of "Decency in Business." Sunday, by the way, is an honorary member of the Des Moines Iowa, Rotary Club.

"I'm a business man, as well as a preacher," were Billy's first words. And nearly 200 Rotarians, all the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium would hold, applauded as though they were glad to hear it.

"I'm trying to put religion," he went on, "on a business basis; God can use every day efficiency just as well as you can. And I want to tell you that between me, where I stand and the grave that'll receive me some time, somewhere, there won't be one iota of compromise on my part with the forces of evil that demonize and stupefy humanity."

Billy defined his theology as "He-l-p, h-e-l-p the drunkard to get on the water wagon; help the thief to stop stealing; help sinners of all kinds to know Jesus Christ."

Fifteen minutes afterwards he started for the tabernacle, with the cheers of 200 representative men ringing in his ears.

The results sent the pestered editor to the woods until the bride's relatives had time to cool off. We quote (being at a safe distance from the scene and out of reach.)

"William Smith, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and Miss Lucy Jones were disposed of at public auction at my farm one mile east, in the presence of 70 guests, including two mules and twelve head of cattle.

Some of the ruling powers in this town appear to believe that they can pass any old bond issue over the taxpayers' heads without consulting them in any way.

Over in Raleigh, The News & Observer says, that a great many Democrats voted twice in the recent primary.

To every person who send us five dollars on subscription, whether for themselves or for their neighbor, we will give an extra hundred potato slips.

Our Citizens are beginning to look around for the most available timber for city Aldermen. They know that taxes are constantly increasing and that some one must stand for economy before all are bankrupt.

What about our offer on potato slips? This is your chance, you are going to pay your subscription anyway, why not pay it now and get the plants.

Our Democratic friends are having a regular parrot and money time over the State, each faction charging the other with cheating them in the primaries.

Some of the men who now occupy the position of Aldermen are good, clever business men, but they cannot get away from the party tie, and even this would not be so objectionable if they would select the best material they have within the party ranks.

WHAT THE INDEPENDENT SAID.

The editor of the Elizabeth City Independent has established a sort of reputation, doubtless desirable enough for purely advertising purposes, and a business asset when combined with a real talent for fluent and clever hyperbole.

It said that "For years the office of state fish commissioner in North Carolina was a joke when it was not a crime.

Henry L. Gibbs is called "a lazy and inconsequential lawyer of Oriental, a pet brother-in-law of Senator Simmons".

him a bit, for like Sambo, this Gibbs has the happy faculty of being able to lie right down on a job and sleep peacefully by cheating them in the primaries.

A PARADISE OF PROTECTION. By a curious combination of circumstances the theory of a protective tariff is being given a perfect trial in the United States at a time when, after a lapse of 50 years, a sane and determined effort had just been made to get away from the principle or at least minimize it.

"MONEY."

The mint makes it and under Continental Mortgage Company you can secure it at 6 per cent for any legal purpose on approved real estate.

PETTY & COMPANY.

NOT PAINT.

The worst mistake in painting is not putting-off. That costs about 10 per cent; you keep your money a year and pay 10 per cent for it.

Paint would have to come down 25 per cent to make 10 per cent on the job, for wages do not go down.

And while the total of exports mounts up by the hundred of millions of dollars, the total of imports into the United States is daily approaching the vanishing point.

HAILSTORM IN BUNCOMBE DOES $100,000 DAMAGE.

Asheville, May 1.—Farmers, orchardists and millers of the Sandy Mush section of Buncombe county yesterday suffered damages of $100,000 as the result of the most disastrous hailstorm in the history of that section of the county.

Accompanying the hailstorm was a severe windstorm which swept trees, telephone and telegraph lines and small outhouses before it.

A TREACHEROUS TROUBLE.

Burlington People Point the Way Out.

Kidney diseases are very dangerous. They come in silently, gain ground rapidly, and cause thousands of deaths that could have been prevented by proper treatment in the beginning. Nature gives early warning of kidney disease—backache, twinges of pain when stooping or lifting, headaches and urinary disorders. If these symptoms are unheeded, there is grave danger of dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills have earned a reputation for their effectiveness in kidney troubles, and are known and recommended the world over. Burlington testimony proves the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills to our readers.

Mrs. T. A. Amick, Means St., Burlington, says: "I had backache and pains through my kidneys and sides. My kidneys were weak and I was also nervous. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they did me a great deal of good in every way."

The above statement was given on March 15, 1912, and on January 18, 1915, Mrs. Amick said: "Whenever my back aches a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills soon relieves me. I have as high opinion of this medicine now as ever."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Amick had. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

These wide awake citizens have appointed a committee of six of their most active business men, who have gone actively to work to see that all poll taxes are paid, and that all of her voters are qualified to vote on this great question.

They realize the importance of securing trolley car connection, both freight and passenger, to the larger trading centers. The farmers realize the advantage of being able to market, every morning, the small perishable things that now go to waste because there is no now cheap, prompt and frequent means of getting these things to market. The merchants and manufacturers appreciate the opportunity to eliminate their present significant drayage accounts, and their opportunity to take their supplies more frequently from the wholesale and larger retail establishments of Burlington. These people are enthusiastically alive to their opportunity and are going to take advantage of it by a large majority "for subscription" on the first Tuesday in June.

ROBBING THE SICK.

An Exposure of The Most Depicible Form of Quackery.

This is the first of a series of articles telling about a kind of medical quackery that, so far as The Weekly Star knows has never before been exposed. The articles were furnished to The Weekly Star by a young man who lives in Kansas City, and are truthful accounts of his experiences, printed here just as he wrote them. The second article in the series will appear in an early issue.

No. 1—I Meet Up With "Old Drift."

I have a confession to make. The reason for that confession I will make plain as I go along. Every man does something at some time that he is sorry for. And the time is bound to come in every man's life when he would give almost anything if he could turn the clock of time backward and undo the wrong he has done.

Only a few weeks have passed since I was a party to a great wrong; worse than theft, worse than burglary in the night.

I am sorry for it; really and truly sorry. The more I have thought of it the more it has weighed upon my conscience. There is no way by which I can go back and undo the wrong already done. But there is a way in which I can ease my conscience, and that is by telling, in the most public manner I know of the things I did and thus, by exposing a great crime, try and prevent others from being wronged.

For the crime to which I was a party, and in which I aided, is still being carried on. Victims are yet being wronged, just as I wronged them, and the work will go on unless it can be stopped by exposure. I am going to make that exposure, in the hope that in that way I can make some amends.

You who read this may be sure that every word I write is the truth, with the exceptions that I conceal my own name, the name of the human spider who led me into his wickedness, and the names of our victims. The names of the counties and towns in Missouri in which we operated are given correctly, and the various incidents of my narrative occurred exactly as I tell them.

A Chance Meeting.

I call my accomplice a "human spider." He is all of that, a human spider, without conscience or pity, cruel and hateful, as you will agree with me by the time I am through, if you follow me that far.

First of all let me tell you how I met him.

I was out of work this winter. The war, or something, put me out of a job and made it impossible for me to find another. My money ran low. It is hard to go home to your wife night after night, after looking all day for work, and have to tell her you failed.

And so I got to loafing in hotel lobbies, where it was warm, and where the folks passing in and out made a diversion.

It was there that I met him, the spider. Sitting in adjoining chairs we got to talking of the weather and trifles like that.

Now I do not mean to convey the impression that he was repulsive or spider-like in appearance. He was not. On the contrary he looked impressive and dignified and prosperous. Across his lap as he sat lay a heavy black chinchilla overcoat with fur collar and he had gold-rimmed glasses, and he talked—oh, how smoothly and plausibly he talked.

that I was down and out, almost broke, and discouraged.
To make a long story short, the result of our talk was that he confided to me his name and business. He was a doctor, a great specialist, connected with a hospital in Kansas City, and his business was to travel thru the country, hunt out people who were suffering with diseases, such as cancer and chronic rheumatism, which the local doctors could not cure, and take their cases.
A Search For Victims.
He told me he needed a man to go along with him to drive and to hunt up cases and help in the work. He offered me a good percentage, promising that I would not make less than $100 a week in good weather. That seemed like a fortune to me, and I agreed to go.
Within a week the snow was gone, and the doctor and I went by tarin to Harrisonville, the seat of Cass county, Missouri. There we hired a pair of horses and a buggy and drove out to the eastward along a country road, starting from the hotel at 7 o'clock in the morning. Up to this time the doctor had told me none of the details of what I was to do, but this day, as we drove along, he disclosed it.
"I may as well let you in on our work now," he began. "I am not a doctor at all. Never saw the inside of a college. I am a drift."
"A drift," what do you mean? I asked.
"A drift" is a man who drifts through the country, finding out chronic and incurable cases of disease and guaranteeing to cure them. There are hundreds of us in that business. I have been at it in different ways for twenty-five years and they know me as the "old drift."
He spoke of his work as "drift," too, never as graft. If we had a good day he would say: "The drift was good today." If we struck a poor neighborhood he would say:
"Doesn't look like much drift here."
Well, on the drive out into the country he instructed me on how I was to do my part of the work. We had gone about eight miles. I should judge, when we came to a prosperous looking farm, and I went in and inquired if there was anyone sick there or in the neighborhood. They told me of a bad case, not far away, and directed me how to get there.
We drove up to the gate of the farm where the man was sick. Beyond was a house of two stories, large barns and out-buildings. I got out, leaving the doctor in the buggy, and went and knocked at the door. I was a little nervous when a woman opened the door.
"Lady," I began, "I have been told that you have sickness here."
"We have," she said.
"May I inquire the nature of it? Pardon this seeming intrusion, but I am with the Old State Hospital of Kansas City. No doubt you have heard of it. It makes a specialty of treating and curing diseases that baffle the skill of ordinary country doctors. I have in the buggy with me here at your gate the examining specialist of that hospital," a famous man, Dr. James Wilson. Of course you have heard of him, a man of wonderful learning and ability. You are fortunate, madam, that he happened to be in this neighborhood on another case and learned that your husband was sick. He expressed a desire to examine your husband. With twenty-five years' experience as the leading specialist with this hospital he is able to diagnose a disease almost at a glance. He makes no charge whatever for his service, it is as free as a drink of water," and so on, as the doctor had instructed me.

The "Good Doctor" Enters.
This work is called "touting." I was the "touter." It was my part of the business to get the doctor in the house. I had no trouble in this case. The good wife was glad to have the great specialist call. Her husband had been in bed three months with Bright's disease.
I went to the buggy and told him. Slowly the great specialist got out of the buggy and went in. I followed, carrying his sachel of instruments. On reaching the door he extended his hand and said:
"I am Doctor Wilson, examining specialist for Old State Hospital of Kansas City."
"Doctor," murmured the sick man, "the roads are pretty bad, aren't they?"
"Yes, they are, but no matter, roads and weather cannot keep me back when there is suffering to be relieved."
He mentioned for me to open the instrument case, and here is a good place for me to describe that. It was always an astonishing thing to me that people did not know, from that instrument case, that he was a fake. The valise contained just a jumbled collection of old second hand instruments he had picked up. Among them was an old rusty speculum, never washed, and I have actually seen him put this into a man's mouth and look through it into the throat. None of the instruments were ever washed.
But the world is full of ignorant and credulous people, and it was upon that credulity and ignorance that we were trading.
The doctor rattled his instruments, took out several, and then stripped the upper half of the patient's body and began making a most minute examination, feeling every part of the trunk, measuring with a tape line and making marks with a soft pencil upon the bare skin and noting the result upon a chart.
All of this was fake, of course, but it made a deep impression upon the patient and his wife. After the examination the doctor sat a long time in silence, with a wonderfully solemn look upon his face. He seemed in deep thought, studying the case.
Playing the Part.
The doctor was about 60 years old, large and impressive looking, with gray hair. The patient and his wife watched him in suspense, awaiting the verdict — great meant life or death. At last the great specialist spoke.
"Astonishing! Marvelous!" he said, with a shake of his head.
"What is it, doctor?" pleaded the wife, standing with hands clasped.
How have you lived so long is a miracle," he said to the patient. "Your case is critical, extremely critical, sir. you must have treatment at once or you will die."

Turning to the wife, he said: "You don't want to see the black shadow come over your home, do you?" Tears were in his eyes as he said it. The wife was weeping, too.
"Can you cure me?" pleaded the patient.
"You can be cured if you take the right course of treatment, otherwise you will die."
"How much will it cost, doctor?"
"Listen, folks," replied the doctor. "Money is not what I want. It makes no difference, financially, to me whether you take our treatment or not. I am a paid salary. I give you my service free. But it costs money to keep our hospital going. It is a large institution. I will send in for the treatment, the hospital will mail it to you. I will guarantee a cure, a complete cure in four weeks, for $150. Ordinarily your case would be $200, but in order to advertise our hospital in this neighborhood, I will cut it in half. I will guarantee to make you strong and well, to make your old helpmate happy, make you enjoy all the blessings of life in four weeks."
"What do you think, Ma," asked the aged man.
"I think you had better take it, Pa," she replied.
The doctor motioned for me to pack up the case and prepare to go. The wife got the check book and the feeble old man signed his name to it.
The doctor, buttoning up his coat, said: "Your treatment will come by mail in about three days. Rest easy now, we will have you out of bed for your spring work."
"I do hope so, doctor," the wife said, wiping the tears from the eyes of her husband. "God surely sent you to us."
Cashed the Check First.
We got into the buggy and drove away. We had gone into that home utter strangers and within an hour we had taken $150 from them and were away. It seemed an astounding thing to me. But I was to see more astonishing things than that in the following few weeks.
"Where shall we go now?" I asked the doctor.
"Straight to town and get this check cashed," he answered, and then he gave me a bit of advice, born of his long experience.
"When you get a check in this business, cash it just as quick as you can," he said. "Very often they get to thinking things over after I am gone and it dawns on them that maybe they have been hooked. Then they try to stop payment on the check."
We hurried to town and got the money before noon.
"Here, put this in your pocket," said the doctor, when he came from the bank, and he handed me $50.
"All of that for me," I exclaimed.
"Yes, that's your share of the drift. I want you to be satisfied because I believe you'll make a prime tout."
That night, after supper, I asked him: "Suppose the treatment don't cure him?"

"Well, you don't suppose it will do you?"
"But you guaranteed a cure?"
"Yes, in four weeks, and by that time we will be through working this country, and gone where the woodbine twineth."
"But can't they hold the hospital responsible?"
"The hospital? Quit your kiddin', old boy. The hospital is just a friend of mine in Kansas City. I'll send him $10 for his trouble and he'll mail the old duffer some tablets."
Made It Harder.
An Eastern college graduate applied for work in a Michigan lumber camp. He was told to get busy at one end of a cross-cut, the other end being in the charge of an old and experienced lumberman. At first all went well, but at the end of the second day the young man's strength began to wane. Suddenly the old man stopped the saw and spat.

"Sonny," he said, not unkindly. "I don't mind ver ridin' on this saw, but if it's the same to you, I wish you'd keep your feet off the ground."—Bayer & Taylor Co., "Four Hundred Good Stories."
The traveler had just handed a bell-hop a 15 cent tip.
"Excuse me," said the hop obsequiously, "but since the war tax went into effect there's 1 cent added to all tips of 15 cents or over."—Judge.

QUARTER-CENTURY CELEBRATION AT ELON.

The approaching Commencement rounds out the first quarter-century of Elon history. The record is a pleasing one to all the Alumni. The College was chartered March 11, 1889 and opened its doors September 2, 1890. The faculty contained seven members that year and 105 students were enrolled. The equipment consisted of the Administration Building and the East Dormitory. Two members of the original faculty are yet filling their chairs here—Dean J. U. Newman and Dr. J. O. Atkinson. Today the faculty numbers 24, the student body 402, and the equipment is valued at $300,000 and consists of seven buildings. The Alumni and "Old Guards" are scattered in every State of the Union and practically every foreign country. It is a splendid record and forebodes much for the future. The 1915 Commencement will therefore fittingly celebrate the quarter-centenary.

The Commencement exercises will begin Saturday afternoon May 22 with Class Day Exercises. That evening Society Representatives will contest for the Representative's Medal.

On Sunday morning Dr. Frank G. Coffin, of Alabany, N. Y., President of the American Christian Convention, will preach the baccalaureate sermon. Dr. Coffin is one of the most eloquent preachers of the Christian church, a profound thinker, and a great ecclesiastical leader not only in his own denomination, but in the nation. This is his first visit south of the Mason and Dixon line. That evening President Harper will give his parting official message to the Class of 1915. His subject is to be Aspiration and Life.

On Monday the Board of Trustees will meet. Society reunions will be held, and at night the Annual Concert occurs.

Tuesday will be illustrious besides being the occasion of the graduating exercises of the class of 1915 and of the Alumni Address by Rev. A. W. Andes, of Harrisonburg, Va., as well as the Alumni Rally and the Art Exhibit, particularly because a new type of orator for the literary address will be heard, in the person of President Fairfax Harrison, of the Southern Railway, Washington, D. C. It forebodes much for our country's progress and advancement in civilization to have at the head of its great industries and public utilities men such as President Harrison, men who combine business acumen with the most liberal culture, who see in life more than industry and aim more at the production of men than of money as forming the only sure basis for national prosperity. President Harrison will be heard with great expectancy by a great audience.

DR. LAWRENCE BACK AT ELON.

Elon College, April 30.—Dr. W. P. Lawrence, who has been critically ill for two months in the Greensboro hospital, returned to his home here yesterday afternoon. He will not be able to resume his duties either as dean of men or head of the English department until next fall. Dr. Lawrence has been a member of Elon's faculty for twenty-one years and is an invaluable man about the hill.

A Chicago washerwoman who had saved $247 and carried her money in her waist from which she lost it, would have taken chances if she had put it in a bank, but the chances would have been very small. The chances taken by people who are afraid of banks are very large.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A NEW YORK LETTER.

Norfolk Coats, Mannish Blouses And Tailored Skirts Favored.

Caught in the thrall of the season's first heat, which accounts for the smart set's sudden departure, the great city turns its thought to the country club, and the stores display trappings for tennis, golf, tramp- ing and riding to tempt those who may tarry in town and the few who motor in to do their shopping.

So exacting is the mode for sports that the time is long past when a woman can appear on the turf in baggy, ill-fitting clothes. Today her attire bespeaks the smart tailor. Separate coats are particularly prominent. Straight in Norfolk style, or flaring at the lower edge, they are made of white chinchilla cloth, white woolen barred in black, covert cloth, checks, tweeds, washable corduroy, awning striped linen and golf cord, the welt a silky rose and the stripe white.

A decided liking for the silk Jersey sweaters is also evident, the styles medium in length, ranging from the regulation model finished with a band at the neck of fancy sweaters with broad sashes and sailor collars. Plain colors, stripes and bars are shown in these, rose, blue and purple being favored barred or striped in white. Even raincoats have gained a few points in style, now appearing in attractive Scotch plaids and checks, rubberized to withstand the water.

Every detail of the costume is selected with care. Conventions are far more strict concerning the blouse madly wearing golfing than with the dress she dons for an afternoon tea. Plainly-tailored, long-sleeved

A Trig Costume Seen On The Golf Course, the Norfolk Coat of Chinchilla Cloth And the Hat And Skirt of Blue Linen.

Waists, buttoned in the front with adjustable collars, are considered correct for country wear. These are made in white, colored or striped linens, rose and green, predominating; in some cases the stripe measures an inch in width. Oftentimes, the buttonholes are bound in a color to match the stripes and the closing fastened like a cuff, with buttons of matching color linked together.

While the whims of fashion are not as a rule rigidly followed in the clothes for sports wear, the added width in skirts is readily accepted. To be sure, skirts for walking, golf and tennis are not extreme, but now measure from two and a half to three yards around the lower edge. Such fabrics as pique, plain and in novel stripes and bars, linen crash, khaki, tweed and herringbone mixtures are shown in these skirts, which are short and plain save for a lap closing or patch pockets.

Hats, too, have a swagger style. Panamas appear in every conceivable shape, from slouch to stiff sailor, with knitted silk bands made like the knitted ties the men wear. There are collapsible hemp straws and black felts faced in color, convenient to tuck in the corner of a bag when leaving town for a week-end. Broad-brimmed sailors of printed linen in two-toned effects and in natural linen faced with blue are also smart, while rolling brimmed sailors of grass straw in purple and white, and black and white lend variety to the styles; or you may have a bonny tam-o'-shanter loosely knitted in coarse silk jauntily tilted to one side, like the Scotchman wears on the heath.

It is interesting to note the studied carelessness of the clothes of the woman who loves sport for sport's sake. Two notables of New York society appeared at a golf club early in the season and I heard an idler on the broad veranda remark as they took the bunkers that they certainly knew how to wear their clothes. The very suitability of the garments made them stylish. With her fair skin tanned a delicate brown, the first was a perfect picture of what a robust American girl should be in her Norfolk coat of tan chinchilla, with blue linen skirt showing below, sailor hat of the same material, tan gloves and low-heeled ties of tan leather. The other woman, a trifle older, wore a white linen blouse with collar turned low, a striped pique skirt with large patch pockets and a panama hat with a checkered band of knitted silk that carried out the contrast of her white buckskin shoes, stayed with black leather, and her black leather belt. There was nothing to hamper their freedom, not a surplus frill or button, but every detail of the costumes showed the thought that had been given their selection by the women themselves.

WANTS REPRESENTATION.

Greensboro, May 1.—Candidate for mayor, James H. Cook, complaining that the poll-holding in the primary last Monday was improperly conducted, today appeared before the city commissioners and demanded a representative on the board of election judges. Mr. Cook is opposing Mayor T. J. Murphy and despite the fact that the primary vote was nearly 2 to 1 against him, he is still contesting and will appear in the election next week.
