ALAMANCE SCHOOLS.

Some Facts and Figures From Superintendent's Annual Report.

Some Progress Made—Leading in Improvement, Libraries and Debate—1st in Canning, Community Fairs, and Athletics.

The County Superintendent's report shows that there are 80 Rural schools in this County; 52 white and 28 colored. There are 5 town or city systems—Mebane, Haw River, Graham, Burlington and Elon. There are employed in the Rural schools 124 teachers—92 white and 32 colored. There are 58 teachers employed in the town schools. Of this number of white rural teachers, 66 hold first grade certificates and 23 second grades. There are 18 first grade rural colored teachers and 14 second grade. There are 17 white male teachers in the Rural schools and 75 white female teachers. There are 10 colored male teachers in the Rural schools and 22 female colored teachers.

There are 4,119 Rural white children and 2,048 Rural colored making 6,167 children on Rural census. There are 2,535 town white children and 585 colored town children, making a total of 3,423 in town, and a grand total for the County of 9,610.

The enrollment for the past year: Rural White 3,157 Rural Colored 1,406 Average Rural White 2,524 Average Rural Colored 998

These are 57 local tax districts including the 5 in towns. The average term of non local tax district is 101 days. The average term in local districts—excluding the towns—128 days. There are no log houses used by the white people and only 3 used by colored people. There are 31 houses having two or more rooms and 21 houses having one room, of the white rural schools. The colored rural schools have four houses with two or more rooms and 24 with only one room.

Progress Made.

One of the surest signs of progress along the line of education in Alamance is the fact that the people of the several communities are giving of their time and private means to improve the schools and houses and frequently to beautify the town. Much work has been done in laying out walks and planting hedges and flowers. Almost a campaign has been waged in painting houses inside and outside. Equipment has come in for a good share. The people of the county have given $3,566.90 to improvement work and to the school term during this school year. These are figures accurately kept by the several schools. This is especially encouraging when we know that the rich and the poor and the good liver, all lined up and gave according to their means.

The Libraries have held a growing department in our school work. Last year we established three new ones and added seven supplements. This makes Alamance forty-nine schools with libraries containing 4,937 volumes. Alamance has always come in for a good show in debates ever since the organization of the debating union among the High Schools by the University. Last year she sent two teams to Chapel Hill to the State wind up meeting because they had won both sides of the question over their opponents. These teams were from Burlington and Sylvan.

It was through the success achieved in community fairs in Alamance county that led the Department of Agriculture of the State to aid in this important movement. Last year there were added in this county two new communities that held complete fairs. These fairs are proving both interesting and instructive and giving to the communities great social and trade days.

The Sylvan High School of this county has held first place in the State in High School base ball for two years winning each year the silver loving cup given by the University Alumni Association. Friendship High School also has a peerless position in the State for track work and other field fetes. She won first place last year as usual. Graham came in strong for second place after Friendship. Thus giving Alamance schools more than first place.

The Rural Supervisor of White Schools last year in Alamance had charge of the Government Canning work and not only led the State but also the entire South in production. The closest competitor was Etowah county, Alabama. That produced 46,332 cans. Alamance led with 55,165 cans or 8,632 cans more than any other county in the South. Miss Mary Rice McCulloch of Alamance county, a beautiful fourteen year old girl, is the champion canning club girl of the South. She invested $24.47 in her tenth of an acre and realized from her investment $148.23.

Our county has had county commencement consecutively for the past four years. Last year it held its biggest and best. It was largest in attendance, largest in parade, largest number of graduates, largest in quantity and quality of exhibition, including literary work of various kinds, cooking, sewing and manual arts. The growth here recorded in these several lines as shown at the wind-up meeting of county commencement is fruit of a more fundamental growth—a vital interest on the part of a good people in a general educational uplift of the entire county.

Band Program of Many Features

ORCHESTRA SECTION, COLANGELO'S BAND.

There will be many very interesting features in the program given by Colangelo's Italian Band that comes to the fourth day of our Chautauqua for two concerts, afternoon and evening.

The band carries two vocal soloists, a tenor and a soprano and also features a cornet trio and an orchestra section, both of which appear in special costumes. The program will be varied and high class in every particular.

Signor Luigi Colangelo, the conductor, was born in Italy twenty-four years ago this summer (Aug. 1, to be exact). He has been in America only a few years, but has already achieved marked success in this country. He is not a freak in his manner of directing, but does not lack fire. The picture shows the orchestra section of the band.

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

DR. J. P. SPOON HONORED.

Dr. J. P. Spoon returned last week from Asheville where he attended the Veterinary Convention in session there for several days. Dr. Spoon was re-elected secretary and also made treasurer of the Association. The program was systematically carried out, Dr. Spoon having the distinguished honor of addressing the convention after the banquet.

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

AT GIRSONVILLE.

A meeting was held in the Gibsonville M. E. church last Sunday afternoon in the interest of the movement now being inaugurated to employ a secretary to give his whole time to the Sunday School work of Guilford county.

Following was the programme: Devotional service—Rev. W. S. Hales.

Address by A. W. McAlister, Esq., Greensboro.

Address by Miss Laura B. Coit of the State Normal College.

Duet—Mr. Young and Mrs. Sparger.

Talks by Dr. W. T. Whitsett, Mr. L. T. Barber, and Mr. D. P. Clapp.

Solo—Mr. Young.

Address by Dr. Chas. W. Byrd, of West Market St. M. E. church, Greensboro.

Although it has been but a few weeks since this matter was first mentioned, it is meeting with decided favor wherever presented, and it is hoped by its advocates that the plan can soon be put into operation. The idea is to have the new Secretary to begin work about September 1st, in case the plan is adopted by the county.

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

POSTSCRIPT POLICIES.

The Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Greensboro, N. C., has been offering to its own home State people during the month of June its Postscript Policy and it is reported that they have placed over a million dollars of it. It demonstrates that the Postscript Policy offers some very attractive features and that North Carolinians have backed their judgment with their money. The Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company is an old line legal reserve company, and with its $45,000,000 of insurance in force and carrying over one-ninth of all the Life Insurance in North Carolina, makes them absolutely secure and safe.

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

HOUR FOR PRAYER SERVICE CHANGED.

The prayer service of of the Front Street Methodist church will be held Wednesday morning, 6:30 to 7:15, instead of Wednesday evening at the usual time. Change is made so that all who desire, may attend Chautauqua. Boys specially invited to attend prayer service that they may hear the talk on Absalom's failure.

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

SEVEN FISHING VESSELS TORPEDOED.

London, June 24.—Seven fishing vessels, known as drifters, have been sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Scotland. Most of the crews of the fishing boats were saved.

The crews of the boats were taken aboard the American steamship Linman, which reported that the drifters were sunk last night at a point east of the Skerries.

The Democratic fear that Bryan may wreck the party's chances in the next election is greatly exaggerated. It is not easy to see that there is any chance left to be wrecked.

MR. E. M. KINNEY DIES.

Mr. Edwin M. Kinney, who went to the Stokes Sanatorium at Salisbury a few weeks ago for treatment, died there last Friday afternoon and the body was brought here Saturday. The funeral service was conducted from Webb Avenue M. E. Church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Durham. Interment was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Kinney was 53 years old, and had suffered with an incurable disease for several months. He was a good man, a highly esteemed citizen and a friendly neighbor. He united with the Baptist church about thirty years ago but for the past five years attended Webb Avenue M. E. church and Sunday School. He was one of the best workers in this church and Sunday School, having served the school as Assistant Superintendent and teacher of the Philathea class. Mr. Kinney was a firm believer in fraternal organizations, as he was a member of three lodges at this place, the Jr. O. U. A. M., D. of L. and I. O. O. F. These orders were presented in the funeral and burial services.

Mr. Kinney is survived by six children, three boys and three girls. The boys are: Arnold, John and George. The girls are: Carrie, Annie and Pauline. He leaves two brothers and five sisters: Mr. Anderson Kinney of Alamance Mills and Rev. J. W. Kinney of Rembert, S. C.; Mrs. R. E. Woods of Greensboro; Mrs. J. M. Crawford; Mrs. Cornelia Steward; Mrs. Elizabeth Shepherd and Mrs. F. S. Cheek of this city.

The large concourse of people that attended the funeral service and followed the body to the cemetery was evidence of the high esteem in which Mr. Kinney was held. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, especially the two representing tokens of respect from the Philathea class and Junior Order.

The Dispatch joins the many friends of the bereaved ones in extending our deep sympathy in this hour of sadness and multiplied grief.

SEVERE EARTH SHOCK REPORTED BY COLEXICO.

Terrified People Rush Into Streets But No Appreciable Damage Done.

Calxico, Cal., June 24.—Five severe earthquake occurred here tonight. The first was felt about 8:15 and the succeeding four at intervals until 10:10 P. M.

People terrified by their experiences since Tuesday night when the city was badly shaken up, rushed into the streets and open spaces, but no appreciable damage was done.

No injury to the irrigation system was reported. Wire communication was not interrupted. Some walls weakened by previous shocks collapsed.

El Centro, Cal., June 24.—Three earthquakes shocks were felt here tonight. They lacked the intensity of the tremors which partially wrecked the town Tuesday night, but were sufficient to renew excitement. No damage was done.

AMERICAN STEAMER SEIZED BY BRITISH.

London, June 24.—The American steamer Neches has been seized in the Downs and ordered to proceed to London to discharge her general cargo, which is to be thrown into prize court. The contention of the British government that the cargo came from a country hostile to Great Britain is denied by the shippers.

If this was done by Germany, President Wilson would set up a howl.

DR. CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tonic" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Give You Energy.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work; Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; Calomel injures your liver. If you are bilious, feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead of using sickening, salivating Calomel. Dodson's Liver Tonic is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headaches and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty Calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver; clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tonic because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't grip or cramp or make them sick. I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tonic to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous Calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.

CHRISTIANITY STILL HERE, TAFT SAYS.

As Orator at Swarthmore He Declares War Has Not Banished the Spirit.

Ex-President Taft, speaking to a huge audience in the open-air auditorium at Swarthmore College yesterday at the commencement exercises of its eighty-eight young men and women graduates, declared that even the great European war has not banished the spirit of Christianity. Also he defended Unitarianism and denounced Billy Sunday.

Declaring that war cannot be abolished permanently, "while the frailties and passions of human nature are reflected in the conduct of nations," Mr. Taft said that the nations of the world must take steps to make war less likely, and referred to today's conference on the proposed peace plan, to be held in Independence Hall.

Mr. Taft believed that the pessimism growing out of the sudden outbreak of war among the supposed Christian nations of Europe should not prevail among thinking people. He instanced the profound, if mistaken, belief of the people at war that God is on their side. "But they look to the God of the Old Testament," he said, "not the God of the New Testament as exemplified and pictured by Jesus Christ."

A distinguished group of men and women followed President Swain and Mr. Taft, and the forty-four pairs of young men and maidens in cap and gown who marched to the amphitheater from College Hall. Hundreds of alumni and visitors crowded the auditorium.

Mr. Taft's Address.

Mr. Taft, as the speaker after the diplomas had been conferred and the prizes awarded by Dr. Swain, was introduced by the head of the college.

"I am a Unitarian," he began, "and what I am going to say is a speech, not a sermon."

The first stage of Mr. Taft's address was devoted to a discussion of the development of religious liberty, with a view of emphasizing the importance of the church, as he put it, "from the standpoint of successful peculiar government; from the standpoint of the spread of civilization; of the restraint upon future wars; of the mitigation of the severities of war and the promotion of a return of fraternal feeling among the nations when this awful sacrifice of life and treasure that we are now witnessing shall have ceased."

Speaking of his service in the Philippines and in the Presidency, Mr. Taft said he had become impressed by the important part the Church plays in government. He also turned aside from his main subject to say a few things about "Ananias Clubs."

"Trade is supposed to be the means of increasing civilization," the speaker said, smiling, "but I found, in the Orient, that the trader is the charter member of that famous organization characterized by a former colleague of mine as the 'Ananias Club.' They are rather shrewd barterers.

"You could talk to Mohammed until you are black in the face, but you would not convert him to Christianity by doing it. But let Mohammed's sick child go into the Christian mission and come forth healed, there will be a conversion nine times out of ten. Mohammed does not understand your dogma, but he surely appreciates your practice of its principle."

The Hold of Religion.

Turning again to his discussion of the hold of religion and religious ideals upon the people, Mr. Taft said: "A change has come over our nation. There has been a spread of the spirit of brotherhood, a halting in the chase for the dollar, and we have now turned about to see if we cannot help our less fortunate brethren who have not shared in the general prosperity. Politics have been purified and corporations driven out of it. The day of plutocracy is past and new ideals been formed by the people."

It was at this point that Mr. Taft spoke about Billy Sunday. Frequently, in his address, the ex-President had reiterated his own connection with Unitarianism.

Gets After Billy Sunday.

"In these days, when Unitarians are catching it right and left," he said, "I feel the need of emphasizing the other side of the question. And remember, the function of the Unitarian faith is to show ahead, rather than lead the procession. The attacks delivered by a so-called great revivalist are the result of a tendency to abuse any absent party. I, myself, am not hurt by these vilifications, but this policy of living up to a well known French adage, 'The absent one is always wrong,' is to say the least, undignified, and our revivalist friend is dead wrong, who he accuses us of stumbling and struggling in utter darkness.

"I come now to the influence of the war, and this awful struggle in Europe. When the war began newspapers were filled with communications from Christian men and women who deplored what they called the utter failure of Christianity.

"The character of the war, the violations of agreements by belligerents, the inhuman features of the war, are declared to be justified by necessity, and when we listen to the prayers of such belligerents, praying for victory to perch on his banner, and praying to the same God, we wonder whether it is not a perversion of the object of prayer.

"In spite of this dark picture; in spite of the retrograde steps that civilization has taken, we must not become pessimists; we must not lose ourselves in despair. All the evil humors in the political conditions of Europe, the race hatreds and greed for power and wealth, have coincided to develop this world quarrel; to bring out the worst phase in human nature."

Turning from this to the self-sacrifice of neutral nations, and to the immense sums of money sent to the warring nations to aid the suffering and in support of the Red Cross, Mr. Taft found his silver lining.

"It is not true that when the war is over, it will be impossible to restore the fraternal feeling that existed among the nations. The Civil War is a refutation of that.

"We make war less probable in treaties that seemed so strong before all these countries. The utter exhaustion of all the belligerents when this war is over will be so prostrating that plans to prevent the recurrence of another war will meet spirit of acceptance more encouraging than we have ever had in the history of the world.

Make War Less Probable.

"We make war less probable by international arrangements. We can do it by invoking the joint aid of many nations, to stay the sanguinary hands of one or two about to appeal to the god of war. Men say treaties are nothing but scraps of parchment when the war is on. It depends upon the moral and physical force that is to constitute the sanction of these treaties. Sometimes they will be broken. But more often they will be kept. Because treaties have been broken is no reason why we should not make them again with the hope that they will be observed."

The United States has not signed the League of Nations. It is better than ordinary. It does not cause any harm and it is not in the way of the League of Nations. It is better than ordinary. It does not cause any harm and it is not in the way of the League of Nations.

Germany will have to carry the war into the Pacific if she wants to torpedo any more American ships. She's already got the one we had on the Atlantic—Durham Sun. The recently enacted seaman's bill has torpedoed the American ship on the Pacific—Florida Times Union.

TREE PLANTING.

"Tree planting," says the Louisville Courier-Journal, "is a matter far too important to be left to individual initiative, or left undone where individuals do not care to assume the expense involved." To this point of view alert municipalities are fast coming. A number of American cities have established forestry departments which not only attend to the planting of trees on thoroughfares and in parks but also supervise the pruning and general care of trees throughout the community. The expenditures required for this service are returned a thousand fold in benefits to the common interest.

"Trees are a public blessing, almost as much so as sunlight and air. They contribute to the community's pleasure and well being as surely as to that of their owners. They increase property values, they make for health and comfort, and in their beauty alone are of priceless civic value. The city, therefore, cannot afford to trust so vital an asset to ignorance and indifference. Certainly it should not neglect to provide skilled and constant care for the trees along thoroughfares and on other public places. No province of natural conservation is more important than this, and forward-looking cities are giving it more and more generous attention."

BOILED CABBAGE DECISION.

(Ohio State Journal.)

The decision of the Supreme Court of West Virginia that "the wanton and needless cooking of cabbage and sauerkraut for the purpose of annoying a neighbor is a nuisance," is very poor law, so far as the cabbage is concerned, because there can be no such thing as the wanton and needless cooking of cabbage; nor would it be possible to annoy any sane person in that way. The redolence that issues from a kitchen and permeates a household during the boiling of cabbage is a great delight. The people who say mean things about it do so because cabbage is a modest vegetable and has too much self-respect to insinuate itself on the boards of the aristocrats.

We common people, whom God made so many of, and which might not be were it not so, love boiled cabbage, not only for its noble self, but for its tender memories. There is no happier reminiscence than those days when the aroma of boiled cabbage floated through the old household, rubbing up against one's tender sensibilities, almost like a divine spirit, and telling one's appetite to get ready for the grand feast a-coming. People who don't have such memories as that have lived in vain.

A JURYMANS WISDOM.

(From the New York Times.)

The proposed ten-to-two verdict for juries in civil cases is a step in the right direction, writes a correspondent. I have served on juries for over ten years, working in the supreme courts, the city courts, and the criminal courts, and my experience has shown me that on almost every jury is found one or more of the following:

The man who has not enough education and experience to weigh evidence. The man who habitually votes for the poor or unfortunate, in a suit against a corporation or a well-to-do individual.

The deaf man who does not hear the evidence.

The man who is unable to comprehend legal language, as, for instance, the one who considers the weight of evidence dependent upon quantity rather than quality.

The self-sufficient man who won't argue.

The abusive man who insults his fellow-jurors and insists that one who changes his vote has been corrupted.

Many who have done jury duty will recognize the above types and will recall the time when one of them has caused eleven tired men to be needlessly locked up in a stuffy room for hours. In a case of statutory assault the man next to me, in advance of the introduction of any evidence, whispered to me: "The legislature had its turn; the district attorney is now to have his; we'll have our turn later. We should interpret this law in a 'common sense way.' It is needless to say that the case resulted in a disagreement the second time. Two men on the jury openly declared they would not vote for a conviction in this particular case, no matter what the evidence or the law in the case might be.

The solution of the civil jury question is a majority verdict and a determination of the intelligent business man got to "duck" this most important civic duty. If the men who should serve on juries would serve, the general grade of juries would be raised and attorneys would have a better opportunity to select juries, which could and would render verdicts according to the evidence and the law.

REFORMATION OF GIRLS.

It is harder to reform a girl who has gone astray than it is a boy, says an exchange. The records of the correctional institutions shows the same. That is more boys than girls who have been sent to such institutions make good after being released.

Now, there must be some reason for such facts. That is, either girls are different from boys in their nature, or the two are not given equal opportunities to make good after erring. Students who have devoted their lives to the study of the human animal will tell you that there is not a great deal of difference between the sexes so far as emotions are concerned. So we can more profitably consider the opportunities afforded boys and girls who have gone wrong to make good after having been disciplined. Or we might ask what is the parties have "made good." What constitutes "making good."

For a boy to "make good" he must be honest, sober and industrious. That is about all. He can go out with the boys occasionally and have "a good time." He can seek amusements wherever he will, within certain lines, at least. He can meet the world face to face, speak of his frivolous days, laugh over the errors of his youth, tell of his escapades, and so on.

But for a girl to "make good," much more is required. Her "past" haunts her like an evil spirit. She must be something more than honest, sober and industrious—a great deal more, aye, a million times more. And there is the difference between the reformation of the two. The girl can refrain from doing everything from which the boy refrains from doing, and the one has made good and the other has not.—Durham Sun.

If Mr. Bryan or Mr. Roosevelt contemplates a withdrawal from the busy haunts of man during the heated spell, we trust that their consideration for the front page will induce them to take along a wireless apparatus so that we can hear from them semi-occasionally.

Mr. Bryan brags about the telegrams of congratulation he received when he resigned. That's all right, Bill; but you ought to see the stack of congratulations the president got at the same time!

Burlington Chautauqua—seven big days—June 30 to July 6.

At West Point they tell a story of a man known as "Ginger" an account of the peculiar color of his hair, who graduated at the foot of his class after six years at the point.

Ginger distinguished himself while reciting to an instructor in ordnance by a remarkable answer to the question:

"How many pieces will a 12-pound shell burst into?" the average number having been determined well by experiment. After due reflection Ginger lifted his eyes to those of the instructor and replied:

"Not less than two."

"This is so sudden!" remarked West Virginia when the supreme court hung that $12,000,000 claim on her as her part of the Virginia "befo' the war" debt.

Some men object to wearing hats, but not many of them are wearing them.

Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Rosa Bonner, 825 N. 18th St., Birmingham, Ala., says:

"I have been suffering with nervous prostration for nine or ten years. Have tried many of the best doctors in Birmingham, but they all failed to reach my case. I would feel as if I was smothering; finally I went into convulsions. My little girl saw advertised in the papers and I at once began to take it. I continued to take it for some time and now I am well."

If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep, if you are in a general run down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. BIDDLE-DUKE WEDDING WAS BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Society of New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Other Cities Witnessed the Ceremony.

(Somerville, N. J. special to Washington Post, June 16.)

A brilliant assemblage of society folk from New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and other cities, witnessed the wedding this afternoon of Miss Mary L. Duke, daughter of Mr. Benjamin N. Duke, one of the American tobacco kings, to Mr. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., one of the younger members of the prominent Biddle family of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock at Duke farm, the magnificent estate of the bride's uncle, Mr. James B. Duke, which is one of the show places of America. The nuptials were celebrated in the conservatory, in the presence of a gathering, that in point of the number of distinguished families represented, has seldom been equaled in this country. Bishop James H. Darlington, of Harrisburg, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, combined with an overskirt of tulle, made with a square train of silver cloth. Bridal pink was the prevailing color of the decorations, and every plant of this shade in bloom being used in profusion.

Mrs. Angier Buchanan Duke, the former Miss Cordelia Biddle, was matron of honor. Her husband was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Duke were married in Philadelphia on April 28.

The bridesmaids, who wore frocks of pink, were Miss Ellen Yuille, Miss Florence Gilbert, Miss Carolina Fuller and Miss Luie Stokes of New York; Miss Yvonne Townsend, Washington, and Miss Anna Branson, North Carolina.

That the many guests might travel by rail direct to the scene of the wedding, the bride's father had tracks especially laid from Somerville to Oystertown, where the Duke estate is located.

The gifts received by the young couple are of matchless beauty and almost fabulous value, aggregating not less than $300,000. The parents and the brother of the bride presented to her rare gems worth a king's ransom, while the bridegroom and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, were generous as usual. Her uncle, Mr. James B. Duke, creator of the American Tobacco Company, and one of America's leading financiers, presented wonderful jewels.

A. J. Drexel Biddle gave his son a check for $200,000 as a wedding remembrance. Ex-President Taft Present. The great Duke estate of 4,900 acres, where the wedding took place, is filled with fountains and flowers, birds and trees of all kinds, a background for a romantic wedding which could not be equalled anywhere in the world.

"A marriage in Paradise," former President William H. Taft, one of the guests, called it, and Mrs. E. T. Stotenburg, another of the invited, pronounced his words "beautiful poetic, yet true."

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fell, leaders of the younger set in Philadelphia society.

The five years which have elapsed since Dorothy Randolph, before an outdoor altar of white roses and wild flowers, became the bride of John R. Fell on the plaza of Wildfield farm, have but confirmed the title to surpassing beauty conferred upon her when she made her debut at a brilliant ball given by her father in Philadelphia. She is the center of admiration, not only at her Fort Washington home, but in exclusive circles throughout the East. She keeps the glow of health by a life in the open, where she is recognized as one of the most skilled of American sportswomen. On the links, the tennis court or riding cross country to horn and hounds, she is equally at home. A long and honorable lineage, linking her with the best blood of the country, has given her an easy and delightful grace. Her charm of manner and her graciousness as a hostess impart that rare attractiveness which, in its sunny quality, "win where it wanders and dazzles where it dwells." She is showered with attentions wherever she may be.

A Real Love Match.

Today's wedding was the culmination of a real love match, the bride being one of the greatest of American heiresses and the bridegroom a sturdy young member of an American family, which is foremost in democracy, blood and wealth. Miss Duke had been wooed by princes and noblemen. She rejected them all for a keen, clean-cut, blue-eyed Yankee.

Millions and millions of dollars were represented by those in attendance. It is estimated that the bride and her brother will some day divide a fortune estimated at $30,000,000. The fortunes of the others present may be variably estimated, but added together they would most likely mount into billions.

TIPLESS CLOAKROOM GIRL.

Miss May Stehle, in charge of the cloakroom at the Hotel Washington, in Seattle, Wash., is untippable, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

If she would take tips, she could make $2,500 a year in addition to her salary. "But," she says, "I would lose my self-respect."

The hotel management could if it desired, fire Miss Stehle and save her salary, and to boot, sell the cloakroom "privilege" for $150 a month.

But the mere fact that it has an employee who actually spurns tips has proved such an advertisement that the hotel couldn't afford to let Miss Stehle go if it wanted to—which it doesn't.

The traveling public cannot believe its ears, when it hears Miss Stehle refuse tips. "Thank you," she says, with a gracious smile, "but I do not take tips."

Miss Stehle has kept a record of the comments of the great and near-great when their dimes, quarters and half dollars were refused.

Harry Lauder: "A vair-r-ry-pr-roper attitude."

Nat Goodwin: "Miss Woman, you're going down on my list of eligibles right now."

Forbes-Robertson: "Was not my offering large enough? I would be pleased to increase it."

President H. B. Earling, of the Milwaukee Railroad: "That was not the way John D. got his start."

Ex-Vice-President Fairbanks: "Important, if true."

Medill McCormick and wife (with one voice): "How extraordinary! It couldn't happen in Chicago."

Clarence Darrow: "The Millenium has come."

Gov. Lister, of Washington: "Now I can die happy. I have met my hat without its costing me one-tenth of its price." The proffered gubernatorial tip was 50 cents.

Blanche Ring, vaudeville actress: "Girlie, you'll be more famous than one of DeWolf Hopper's wives."

James J. Hill: "Humph!"

A CORRECTION.

Although our local papers made the positive announcement that the Chautauque would locate on the grounds of the Episcopal church, same as last year, there have been some persistent undercurrents of doubt, as well as uncharitable gossip that it was with difficulty that this place was secured.

The facts are that the church people welcomed them only to gladly last year co-operated most nobly in every way, and before the close, a most cordial invitation publicly extended them for this year, so it was indeed most surprising and uncalled for that there should have been any doubt or misleading gossip.

In justice to the Church people, we take this opportunity to correct all false impressions, which are indeed most unfortunate in so good and promising town like Burlington.

We should indeed be most thankful as well as proud of the fact that we are so blessed in having a place so peculiarly propitious for a Chautauque, so centrally and beautifully located, well shaded and adding a spiritual atmosphere to the natural uplift and dignity of a Chautauque.

For the children, or Junior Branch, the Parish School grounds are simply ideal, thus affording what looks like a continuous seven day picnic.

ROOSEVELT WITH BRYAN
 The World sent a reporter to Sagamore Hill yesterday to ask Colonel Roosevelt if he could be relied on to W. J. Bryan's criticism of the advocacy of military preparedness, made Saturday night in his speech at Carnegie Hall.

The former President had just returned from a long walk over the rolling country east of Oyster Bay. "What!" he exclaimed, "Never heard of it until you mentioned it." "I have a copy of it; will you read it?" the reporter asked.

The Colonel's answer was a long drawn out but emphatic "No-o." Then he quickly asked:

"Was it aimed at me?" "Well you're—" and the reporter started to relate some of the references to Col. Roosevelt Mr. Bryan had made. But the Colonel interrupted with a big laugh.

"I don't care a rap" he exclaimed. Then he waved aside further attempts to quote Mr. Bryan's utterances with:

"Heavens and earth, I've got serious things to do."—New York World.

GOVERNOR SLATON'S ACTION.

We read a good deal on the Leo Frank case, in addition to the various developments in a news way which the press accounts have carried; and as is usually the case when one reads more than a little upon a subject, without having opportunity to go into it thoroughly, we have reached the conclusion that we know very little about it. We have received several special pleadings, journalistic briefs for the defense, and friends have sent us copies of the Jeffersonian, Tom Watson's journal, wherein the chief of Georgia politician insists that Frank is clearly and obviously guilty of the murder of the girl, Mary Phagan, and charged against him for murder or otherwise.

We have a strong conviction of this, however; that Frank ought not to be hanged at this time. Whether the governor ought to have granted him a long reprieve, of whether he should have commuted the sentence to life imprisonment, as he has done, we do not know; but we feel, as will many thousands of people in Atlanta, in Georgia and throughout the country, that the governor of Georgia has done the right thing in that he has prevented the present execution of the sentence of the law by the exercise of his constitutional prerogative and duty—a sentence which troubled the eminent jurist who imposed it into his dying hour, and many have indeed hastened that hour.

Was Frank given a fair trial? We do not feel as sure as we have felt that he was not; but had we any official relation to the case, in the present state of our information we could but hold there was a reasonable doubt of this. Judge Roan doubted it; the governor of Georgia doubts it. These two doubts alone are sufficient to stay the execution. As long as they exist, it would be no more just to the state of Georgia than to the defendant, for him to be executed for this crime.

It is common report, and common belief, that the prosecution of this case has been strongly tinged with local and state politics, from the day of its inception. It seems to us an outrageous thing for the officials of any sovereign state to break a man's neck, ostensibly in the name of justice, but really in the name of politics. That is our main reason for satisfaction that Frank has been given further opportunity, assuming the burden of proof, to vindicate himself. This case has assumed such a large and so far-reaching importance that its final, complete clearing up is a thing greatly to be desired. If he is ever proved innocent, the fact of his innocence will constitute a tremendous

LISTEN, MR. SPENDTHRIFT!

So far we have told you only of the best feature of our method—the fact that it is best to the last—that of having the home. This is the real function of the building and loan. Unless you can afford to have it handed down to you you will not have the cash to pay down for building. To borrow the money means that you have to start with a heavy interest debt on your shoulder and the heavier you travel the heavier that paying of interest becomes. Sometimes tax-paying times come mighty often, but it is slow travelling compared to the frequency of note-renewal periods. By our method you are drawing interest at the same time you are paying interest. By our plan if you keep up your shares, you are sure to own your home some day but the other way you are not so sure.

More about the home later.

ous reflection upon Georgia judicial processes; but the state of Georgia will be in a much better case, at such a time, with Frank alive than it would be with Frank dead.

And if he is guilty? A life at penal servitude, millions of people in our civilization hold, is the utmost penalty that should be exacted for any crime that man can commit against his kind.

We are ready to believe that Mr. Slaton has proved himself a true man and a true governor, by this act of clemency. We trust that Georgia is a better, a wiser, a juster state than it might be inferred to be from Governor Slaton's suggestion that the performance of his duty, as he sees it, may result in ostracism. That would mean either that Georgia is a bad state or that Georgia believes the governor to be a bad man.

DR. CADMAN'S CHAUTAUQUA LECTURE.
 We clip the following from the Kinston Daily News:
 Dr. Cadman, the Brooklyn, New York, divine and lecturer, was the principal attraction at the Chautauqua tent here last night and he handled his subject, "A Modern Babylon," in a masterly manner. Dr. Cadman is a lecturer of national reputation and is one of the biggest attractions with this Chautauqua circuit. The Crawford Adams Trio in concert both afternoon and evening, were pleasing, especially the violinist. Large crowds attended both performances.
 A San Francisco lawyer tells of a Texan who, obliged to go to Denver before the termination of a suit brought against him by a neighbor, left orders that his attorneys should let him know the result by wire.

 "I Knew That During My Term of Office This Great Seal of State Has Not Been Dishonored," Says F. Governor.
 Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—At a luncheon given this afternoon by the Rotary club of Macon in honor of Georgia's new governor, Nat E. Harris, inaugurated today, John M. Slaton, the retiring governor, referred to the case of Leo M. Frank, his action in which evoked a hostile demonstration against him in the closing days of his administration.
 "Honest people may disagree with me, an honest man," said the former governor, "but we realize that we must be measured by our conscience. Two thousand years ago another governor washed his hands of a case and turned over a Jew to a mob. For 2,000 years that governor's name has been accursed. If today another Jew were lying in his grave because I had failed to do my duty, I would all through life find his blood on my hands and would consider myself an assassin through cowardice."
 Governor Slaton indicated that he intended going away next week for an extended vacation.

 Altoona Butcher Recovers Roll Lost By Woman Eight Hours Previously.
 Altoona, June 25.—A package containing $770 in bills lay unnoticed on a main street sidewalk from bank closing hours until midnight, when it was picked up by William Love, a butcher.
 The owner was found through a newspaper advertisement. A woman had lost the roll. She gave Love $50 as a reward.
 Mr. and Mrs. Love were returning from a shopping tour. He stumbled onto the package. His arms were full of bundles.
 "Pick it up," he told his wife.

NINETY-NINE "STILL HANGING" ON THE WALL.

Revenue Officers Acquired Just That Number for Collection During Month of May.

ONE LOST BY MR. GULLEY.

Despite the much talked of Grier law, which is making an enforced summer for many of North Carolina's inhabitants, both old and young, there were some comparatively wet places in the state during May. Had it not been for the sleuths of Uncle Sam, the said places might still be wet. But these gentlemen made a number of invasions of the wilderness during the month, though not a Maying, and converted 99 of the oasis into deserts. All of which, in the parlance of revenue reports to Washington, means that 99 illicit distilleries were seized and annihilated during the 31 days immediately preceding the first rare day in June.

There is considerable disappointment among the employes in the division office here because the number was not an even 100. And some members of the force go so far as to blame it all on Mr. Gulley, a deputy collector. Mr. Gulley, it will be recalled, is very fond of Randolph county and bull dogs. And right here a correction should be made. Mr. Gulley has been reported a number of times as having his residence in Cary. He asks that a correction be made; he says he is from Fetner. Mr. Gulley took some of his cohorts down in Randolph county again after a still and if this one had been seized the 100-mark would have been received.

But the still was not seized; and thereby hangs the tale. At least, thereby hangs just so much of the tale as is known. It leaked out that in going devious ways down through Randolph in an effort to dodge a former bull dog acquaintance, Mr. Gulley guided his companions out of the beaten path; and finally lost. In fact, they lost it several times. Mr. Gulley lost his hat. He had previously lost a coat down there, which may indicate that he is trying to assemble a Randolph wardrobe. Finally they lost the machine; and came back to Greensboro with the rising of the sun, afoot. Deputy Marshal Boger believes they found the still; but he doesn't want his suspicions made public.

Anyway, counting this still out, the officers got a total of 99. Forty-four of them were found in the fifth district, 31 in the fourth, 23 in the district of South Carolina, and one in the Virginia district that is included in this division. A small amount of whiskey was seized, and the beer poured out was something alarming—from the standpoint of the blockader.—Greensboro News.

HE WAS GOOD HAND AT BAD DREAMS.

Richmond, June 21.—Police and regional bank officials this afternoon after a close inquiry branded as imaginary the story told by L. C. Page, the night watchman, that burglars tried to break in there at 2 o'clock this morning.

NOT EXACTLY FILLING.

The Pittsburg Dispatch relates that an examination was being held in little Emma's school and one of the questions asked was:

Upon what do hibernating animals subsist during the winter? Emma thought for several minutes and then wrote:

"On the hope of a coming spring."

AN INTOXICATED BUTTON.

(From Leslie's Weekly.)

Few people know that the Indians of this country are becoming addicted to a habit-forming drug worse in its effects than the proverbial "fire water." The commissioner of Indian affairs in his 1911 report describes peyote, the drug in question, as "a relatively new intoxicant of a peculiarly insidious form which has come into favor with Indians in many parts of the country." Evidence of the little effort that has been made in an organized way to stop its use is the fact that it was lately given consideration for the first time by the Mohonk Conference of Friends of the Indians and Other Dependent peoples.

Peyote, known commercially as mescal, is a species of cactus grown in northern Mexico. The mescal button, about one and a half inches in diameter, is to the uninitiated disagreeable in both odor and taste. Although a tea is made from it, it is more generally eaten in its dry state, and has hence been called "dry whiskey." The effect upon the user is different from that of any other drug. There is trembling and nausea, a sense of dual existence, in some cases a delirium somewhat similar to delirium tremens, and an over-estimation of time—minutes becoming hours and hours long periods of time. The most extraordinary effect, however, is the visual hallucinations and the effect upon the hearing. The habitue enjoys "a regular kaleidoscopic play of most wonderful colors; an incessant flow of visions of infinite beauty, grandeur and variety, while each note produced on the piano becomes a center of a medley of other notes which appear to be surrounded by a haze of color, pulsating to the music."

But the most remarkable thing about the use of peyote and that which has hindered a vigorous attack upon it by the government, has been its adoption by a religious cult as a feature of its worship.

ONCE IN AN ANCIENT CITY.

Once in an ancient city, whose name I no longer remember, Raised aloft on a column, a brazen statue of Justice

Stood in the public square, upholding the scales in its left hand, And in its right a sword, as an emblem that justice presided

Over the laws of the land, and the hearts and homes of the people, Even the birds had built their nests in the scales of the balance,

Having no fear of the sword that flashed in the sunshine above them. But in the courses of time the laws of the land were corrupted;

Might took the place of right, and the weak were oppressed and the mighty Ruled with an iron rod. Then it chanced in a nobleman's palace

That a necklace of pearls was lost, and ere long a suspicion Fell on an orphan girl who lived as maid in the household,

She, after form of trial condemned to die on the scaffold, Patiently met her doom at the foot of the statue of Justice,

As to her Father in heaven her innocent spirit ascended,

Lo! o'er the city a tempest rose; and the bolts of thunder Smote the statue of bronze, and hurled in wrath from its left hand

Down on the pavement below the clattering scales of the balance, And in the hollow thereof was found the rest of a magpie,

Into whose clay-built walls the necklace of pearls was hidden. From "Evangelist" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

CAN A MAN STEAL PROPERTY THAT IS ALREADY HIS OWN?

Anyhow, That's What Alex Bonner is Charged With. Also With House-breaking.

Alex Bonner, colored, says he has a right to go into a stable and get his own horse any time he feels like it, but the police department and Dr. Herbert N. Holmes do not agree with him. On account of this difference of opinion, Bonner is facing the rather unusual charge of breaking into the stables of Dr. Holmes at 114 Queen street and stealing his own horse.

When Bonner was arrested by Detective Hanbury yesterday afternoon he stoutly contended that he had done nothing but take charge of his own property, but he overlooked the staple that had been drawn from the stable door. That was where the charge of housebreaking came in in connection with the alleged larceny of a horse said to be worth $200.50 in the warrant.

The horse in question was suffering from cramps or some other form of equine indigestion, and Bonner took him to the veterinary for treatment. He was informed that he could get the animal yesterday morning, but as the exact hour was not mentioned, Bonner went around about 1 a. m., hitched the horse to his wagon and drove off.

When the horse was found to be missing yesterday morning the police were notified and the horse was located in another Queen street stable. The arrest of Bonner followed. In the warrant the horse was mentioned as the property of Samuel Berman. It is said that Bonner bought the horse, but had not finished paying for him.

Bonner denies drawing the staple in the door. He says the door was open and a light, dark man was in the stable.

THE OPPORTUNIST.

Robinson Crusoe was watching the sea from his lonely isle. Suddenly he jumped to his feet.

"Friday," he called, not being familiar with Sunday, "there's something floating to shore."

Whereupon the two castaways dragged a baby grand player piano to land by its ears. Crusoe gazed sadly upon his capture.

"I don't know anything about music, and we have no perforated rolls," he wailed.

But Friday, with the resourcefulness of the aborigine, tore a pop-pous plaster from his manly bosom and soon the lonely isle was resounding with the noble strains of Goodbye, Girls.—Philadelphia Ledger.

EASY MONEY.

"I've got a great money making idea," said Mr. Binks to his neighbor, according to the New York Sun.

"What's that?" inquired the neighbor.

"Do you see that motor car of mine?" asked Mr. Binks, pointing with all the pride of a campaign speaker.

"Well, every time I take that car apart to fix it and put it together I always have fifteen or twenty parts left over and I can't find room for them. I have taken that car apart three times and I have got the back end of my garage full of parts and the car runs just as well as it ever did. My idea is this: I think when a man has taken a car apart, say six times, he will save enough parts left over to build a new car, another of the body. I am going to take my car apart every week and I think I ought to be able to build at least three new cars out of it. Then I will sell the old car and get another and start taking that apart. I figure that I ought to clean up about 300 per cent on every car that I buy."

PORCH FROCKS AND CRETONNES.

Two Midsummer Fads That Bid Fair To Be Even More Popular.

SUMMER A SEASON OF CONSERVATISM.

Porch frocks and cretonnes are the present proteges of Fashion. The first comes as a natural sequence to the veranda habit, but the latter descends without reason or forewarning—an overnight invasion. The very mode of their entry bespeaks their duration. It is not difficult to predict that the fad of the porch frock is destined to last to the third or the fourth season; in fact, as long as porches themselves endure; but the craze of cretonne, volatile as it is, is a whirlwind fancy.

Both are American ideas. With the handicap of Paris temporarily removed, the American designer has awakened to new activities and, as ever centers his attention on the practical, salable side of dress. It is a season of simplicity and conservatism. The one-piece frock, which has long flourished under the "Made in America" label finds a new channel. Women today think quickly and act quickly. There is no hesitation, they like the idea of the porch frock; of having a costume that fits in with the swinging hammocks, grass, rugs, and wicker furniture on the broad verandas of their homes.

Life on this side of the Atlantic grows more methodical. As distinct a style as motor togs and sports clothes, porch frocks are primarily built for comfort and coolness. The necks are low, either Dutch fashion or V-shaped, the sleeves short and the material sheer. Rose mulls, figured crepes, white lawn, and striped and coin-dotted voiles predominate. An attractive pink mull is pictured on this page with the new tucked skirt and yoke blouse. The convertible collar and turn-back cuff of black-and-white striped mull give a character to the dress, which is noteworthy in all of these new designs.

A Fresh Branch of Dress and a Child's Playtime Dress of Cretonnes

Cretonnes are far from startling. It's a long jump from sofa-pillows to smocks; smocks bridged over the space to hats, and thus opened the way to neckwear, skirts and children's dresses. This furniture covering, with its quaint wall-paper patterns, broad stripes and checks, seems to have fairly bewitched the town. Last year the fad was chintz interior decoration and this season it is chintz dresses. Indeed, at the beach and mountain resorts you are conspicuous for the lack of it. Hats, coats, collars, bags and children's dresses are fashioned of this fabric. The designs of the material, always in gay colors, range from wild flowers and butterflies to conventional roses and stiff bouquets.

The cretonne is especially summery and youthful. It is shown everywhere in vacation clothes for misses and children. The misses' dresses are jumper effects and the children's slips and regular garden smock. Even little boys' rompers are shown in the chintz, and certainly the flowers are prettier than the dull linens and chambrays of past seasons.

In the millinery field the material plays even a more important role than in dresses. Here, there are no sports and playtime labels. The cretonne is made in trim sailor shapes that are par excellence in hatdom. These are worn both with suits and one-piece dresses. The figures in the material give an elaborate effect. But little extra ornamentation is needed. A pleated rosette at the side, or a plain colored binding, this and no more is the trimming.

In view of all these things, it is not surprising that the season has been called one of "Portrait Fashion." Certainly, nothing could be more picturesque than the cretonnes. Yet, like the porch frocks, they are simplicity personified. It would seem that stability steadies the whole mode. Nothing is bizarre or extreme. These are left to Paris when she shall once again take up the question of clothes in earnest. At present, we are satisfied with the altogether wholesome and womanly styles that the American designer gives us and tremble to think that the small waists of the Catherine de Medici period or the tight sheath skirt may again be thrust upon us.

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.

If The Durham Sun does not watch out it will run up against a boycott on society items, as that paper remarks: "The society editor will never be entirely happy until half the words in use are adjectives and the other half adverbs." Would the heartless Sun deprive us of "the most beautiful of maids," and "the most chivalric of men," when talking of the bride and the bridegroom? Perish the thought! Out upon the Sun!—News and Observer.

Invigorating to the Pale and Sickly

The Old Standard general strengthening tonic, GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC, drives out malaria, enriches the blood, and builds up the system. A true tonic. For adults and children. 50 cents.

They say it's worth the trip to Boystawkawlooshuh, Louisiana, just to see the name.

Recognizing a Mexican government is a good deal like identifying a victim of a powder mill explosion.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY CONFESSES THAT IT WAS WRONG WHEN IT SAID THAT COULD AND WOULD REDUCE THE COST OF LIVING. It admits that the great argument which it made in the last Presidential campaign was based entirely on theory, and not on fact. It has the humiliation of showing by its own figures that its campaign cry was a false one, and that any voter to whom it was effective was misled and deceived. The cost of living has increased since the Democrats came into power, not decreased, and even the figures of the Administration prove this fact.

The Government statistics as to retail prices are now made up and given to the public. This latest compilation has been due. Various excuses have been made at Washington for the failure and the delay. There has been a suspicion that the statistics when they appeared would not be pleasant reading to Democrats, and that there was no eagerness on the part of the Administration to make public this new argument against Democratic promises being seriously considered. At last, after a long delay, the Department of Labor made public yesterday the result of its investigation into the matter of retail food prices, or cost of living.

This statement of the Department takes up the prices of food for the past seven years. Its investigation included fifteen different articles of food, and these represent approximately two-thirds of the expenditure for food by the average workingman's family. For all of these articles combined there has been an advance of five per cent in retail price since 1912. It was in 1912 that the Democrats raised the cry that it was Republican protective tariff that was causing high prices in the United States, and declared that if they were put in power they would so fix the tariff that prices would at once come down. So the year is a fair one to consider in discussing the question of how Democracy has fulfilled its promise.

Meats have gone up ten per cent in price since the time of the Presidential election. Yet the Democrats sought to lower the price by putting meats on the free list. Something must have been much out of gear in their reckoning. The American producer now has no protection upon his meat animals, and foreign herds can wander across the border lines or arrive in ships without any notice being taken by a custom house. But the workingman is paying twelve per cent more for a sirloin steak, sixteen per cent more for a round steak, thirteen per cent more for pork chops, and eleven per cent more for ham and bacon than he did before the tariff was changed by the Democrats. To the injury of the American farmer milk was put on the free list in the Wilson-Underwood law. Since then the price of milk has increased three per cent. Under the former tariff there was a duty of five cents a dozen on eggs. The Democrats took off this duty entirely to lower the price. The price of eggs has increased over three per cent since this was done. There was a duty of forty cents a hundred pounds on corn meal. This the Democrats removed. Corn meal is today four per cent higher in price than it was before the tariff was changed.

That is the way the story runs. It shows that a protective tariff does not make high prices. It proves that prices are the result of worldwide conditions, and that the tariff is but an infinitesimal factor in the retail price of an article sold over the United States. This doctrine the Republican party has preached for years. The Democrats have ever declared that high prices are caused solely by a high tariff. Now by their own figures they are utterly discredited. It is little wonder that there was delay in publishing the result of their price investigation. It pricks the bubble which they had long kept before the eyes of the American people.

Well, if war follows, Mr. Bryan is free to enlist.
 If W. J. B. had a few more offices to resign he might yet make a reputation for wisdom.

PROFIT IN WAR.
 Italy evidently believes there can be profit in war. In fact, that seems to be the only reason she went into the struggle. She was not forced into the contest. Her national honor was not "insulted." Her people were not being imposed upon. She had no complaint against Germany or Austria or Hungary or Turkey, so far as treatment of her subjects was concerned.

But Italy was looking for profit. She seemed to believe that it would pay her to take up arms with the allies. Unquestionably she knows what she will be given in case of victory—that matter has probably already been settled. She is to have her reward—and it is to be territory. She could hardly expect a monetary consideration, for the nations that are defeated in this struggle will not be able to pay indemnities. Personally we believe Italy has made a bad bargain. We do not believe that war pays a profit—that it ever did or ever will. Most nations go to war for profit—that is, they figure that the advantages will be profitable, if they win—but few nations ever went to war so deliberately for profit as Italy has done in this instance.

If Germany believed she could profitably go to war, she was sadly mistaken. The disadvantages she imagined she would suffer were not so great as the disadvantages of strife will prove to be. If England was jealous of the commercial supremacy of Germany, if she went to war because of that jealousy, she also was foolish. The supposed advantage which Germany would have gained in Commerce could not have hurt England as badly as she will be hurt by the war, regardless of how it ends.

We do not believe that war is profitable under any circumstance. A nation should consider the sacrifices she will be called upon to make, rather than the advantages she will gain. We believe there are times when sacrifices should be made. It is better to make sacrifices and go to war and pay the price, than to be insulted and abused. The protection of the people of a nation justify sacrifices being made through war. But as to war for profit—there is no profit to be made by fighting.

TWINS KILLED BY TRAIN.
 Mother Had Run Short of Milk for Four-Day-Old Children.
 (Philadelphia Record.)
 Warm tea given in place of milk recently caused the sudden deaths of the four-day-old twin daughters of Gregor Weinoiteg, of 1904 South Sixth street, Camden. The babies were found lifeless by their mother an hour after she had given them the tea, and Coroner Bushey decided that death was due to indigestion.

The mother told the coroner that she gave her babies the tea because she had given birth to the twins without the aid of a doctor or midwife, and the coroner learned that she was up and about the house the following day.

TIP FROM A FIGHTER.
 Richard Bennet, the actor, was a pugilist when young and has many friends in the ranks.
 One evening during a performance in the Middle West, Abe Attell went behind the scenes and called on Bennet in his dressing room.
 "Are you going to play San Francisco?" asked the pugilist.
 "Yes," replied the actor. "I think we'll put on the play in the Greek theatre over at Berkeley for one or two special performances."
 "Take a tip from me, Bennet," cautioned Attell, not getting the real significance of the theatre's name; don't do that. If you do you'll lose a lot of money. There ain't enough Greeks in that town to fill a moving picture house."—Philadelphia Ledger.

IN A HURRY.
 This poignant bit of literary realism was pulled off in a downtown restaurant, not more than a week ago. The diners, a man and a woman, appeared to be anxious to get away to some highbrows show in plenty of time for the curtain (going up). So they went to the feed shop before dinner time, and got the order in early, says The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

After that they sat for a long while, watching customers and waiting. Finally the woman nudged the men and wanted to know, "Isn't it about time we were being waited upon?"

The male half immediately ceased his sport of winning at the company of some other male, and replied, in part:
 "Why certainly, darling. What did you order?"
 "I ordered turtle soup. And I ordered it 15 minutes ago!"
 "But, darling child! Don't you know that turtles are slower than any other animal in the natural history? Snails, even, are faster. Why didn't you order snails, if you were in such a rush?"

CHAPEL HILL LETTER.

Chapel Hill, June 28.—Eighty-six counties of North and twelve states are represented in the personnel of the Summer School this year. Orange heads the list with 32 members, while Wake is a close second with 31. Durham has 26, Guilford 17, Person and Granville 16 each, Sampson and Mecklenburg 14 each, and Columbus and Rowan have a round dozen apiece. Other counties have representations varying from eleven to one. Twelve states are represented: Virginia has 10; South Carolina 9; Florida 2; Tennessee 2; and New Jersey, Minnesota, Louisiana, Ohio, Maryland, Georgia, New York and the District of Columbia have one each.

The week's most important attractions will be the celebration by the students of the Fourth of July on Saturday, July 3. This event attracts annually a large crowd of visitors and this year's production gives promise of surpassing all former efforts. Full program of the exercises will be ready soon and will be carried by the daily papers of the State in order that those who wish to attend may make all arrangements.

What is a county survey? Orange county is taking an inventory of herself and is seeing how she stands in regard to sanitation and other matters which are of vital interest to every community. Realizing that country life is the ideal life under healthful conditions, Orange county is trying hard to make her citizens healthy, happy and efficient. Data are being collected covering the most important matters of rural life, and every where the workers are receiving heart encouragement. "Things could not go better," says Dr. Harrington, one of the health officials. "We are being received with the best enthusiasm and friendliness."

LARGE DISTILLERIES FOUND IN CALDWELL.

Sheriff Triplett Locates and Destroys One Saturday and One Sunday.

THE MOONSHINERS ESCAPED.

Lenoir, June 21.—Two illicit distilleries of large capacity were seized and destroyed by Sheriff J. A. Triplett and his deputies Saturday and Sunday, on the top of Green mountain, some four or five miles from Lenoir. The operators were on the lookout and made good their escape as the officers approached.

The still seized and destroyed Saturday was estimated to be of 90 gallon capacity and was running in full swing, when the officers located it. The equipment was first class in every respect and everything tended to show that the big plant had been run for some time. Sentinels had been placed by the operators to give warning of the approach of any legal guardians and consequently as the sheriff and his posse were going along as unostentatious as possible, of course, suddenly there rang out the sound of several shots, and in a little while the noise of what might have been a small herd of buffaloes passing through and over the underbrush were heard by them.

About 4,200 gallons of singlings were found by the officers in three large vats and in a few hours more this would have been passing thru the worm as distilled spirits only to emerge as first class Western North Carolina "moonshine liquor." All this was frustrated by the officers. Not satisfied with his Saturday's catch, the sheriff again Sunday made a further visit to the same territory and located a second distillery within less than a mile of the one destroyed on Saturday. This one was of a smaller capacity, being only a 60 gallon one and was perhaps erected to take care of the increasing and overflow business of the "daddy" plant. This one was not being operated at the time but the cistern was full of singlings, containing several hundred gallons and everything was being made ready for a run. After emptying the vat and cutting it to pieces the still was brought to Lenoir by Sheriff Triplett and his men.

Malaria or Chills & Fever

THE COURSE DOUBTFUL.

District Attorney Hammer and the Grand Jurors, in Federal Court.

Just how far a prosecuting officer may go in preventing cases from being brought to the attention of the court, The Landmark is not prepared to say. District Attorney Hammer admits that he used his influence to prevent a grand juror presenting a case to the Federal court at Greensboro because he believed the grand juror, prompted by malice, simply desired to use his position to punish his enemies.

That being so, the case had no place in court, but under the circumstances The Landmark thinks it questionable whether the district attorney's course was the wise one. The grand juror is a Republican and from Mr. Hammer's county—Randolph. The case he wanted to present was against Democrats for alleged election frauds. A case which the Republicans charge the Dandolph Democrats with election frauds is now pending in the state courts. This Republican may have been actuated entirely by malice, as Mr. Hammer believed, but the Republicans will charge that the district attorney was using his official position to shield his friends. It would have been better to have allowed the case to be presented to court, so that unbiased persons, without any feeling in the Randolph controversy, could have passed on it. Then if it was found to be a purely malicious prosecution, Mr. Hammer and his home people would have been vindicated. As it is, the matter will continue to be cause for dispute. Landmark.
