JURY GIVES MISE EN ABANDON OF $1000; JUDGE SETS VERDICT ASIDE

In Setting the Verdict Aside Judge Bond Declared 'I Have Done So Because I thought There Was no Merit in the Plaintiff's Action'—He Dictates Formal Statement.

Pittsboro, July 8.—“Gentlemen, no power beneath high heaven could make me let that verdict stand,” dramatically exclaimed Judge W. M. Bond today in the middle of a statement following an award of $1,000 to Miss Loula M. Riley in her damage suit against W. H. Stone, Jr., of Greensboro, which ended here this morning.

It was chief of the thrills that attended the trial covering the week, one in which unabated public sympathy must have impressed itself upon a jury that wrestled hard with the issue of damages. It slept upon the six last night and arose this morning, a solid eleven contending with a single one for a verdict five times as large. Finally Willie Thomas, the standpat, yielded to $500 on the issues of slander and false imprisonment, and at 11:15 the courthouse bell called the little town together.

The omniscient knew what had taken place. Those who affected to have been on the “inside” smiled patronizingly when a newspaper man guessed that $1,000 would be the smallest and $1,500 the largest. Eight had been for $7,000 or more, it was whispered; three for $10,000, one for $15,000, and a majority always for $5,000. The defense hoped thruout for an award of nothing. At 11:20 Judge Bond called for the issues and the first as to the defendant's speaking the words of the plaintiff as alleged in the complaint, was answered against him.

Total Verdict for $1,000. The jury held that these words were not true. On the question of damages it gives $500.

On the second cause of action as to imprisonment of the plaintiff, the jury answered against Mr. Stone. Again the assessment was $500.

The silence that met this return was the supreme tribute to Judge Bond's overpowering the partisan spirit. The hearing of excited sobbings could be heard over the courtroom which, despite the absence of notice was nearly filled in the five minutes between bell and opening of court. Judge Bond bit down gingerly upon his new cigar and A. L. Brooks, leading counsel for Mr. Stone, moved the setting aside of the verdict on the ground of its violence to the principles of law and to the weight of the evidence. Mr. Brooks declared it manifest that the spirit of the outside had been all pervasive and felt itself on the inside of the jury box.

Colonel Barringer rose. His disappointment was apparent. Judge Bond had not yet remarked but the Judge did not betray his amazement. The colonel expected far more and his theory was that Judge Bond's charge and daily admonitions to the jury had really made it give less than any jury without any knowledge of the case would have done. When Judge Bond made his statement, Colonel Barringer protested with vehement eloquence. Judge Bond had turned to an animated block of stone.

Judge Bond called Miss Hoover, the young Ashboro stenographer who has done such splendid work on the case and asked her to take down what he said. “It is most unfortunate,” he began, “that any case should be tried with a whirlwind of passion, excitement and prejudice sweeping through the courthouse. There is an unfortunate tendency of this age among people to get excited over important cases and this feeling imparts itself in juries.”

The Frank Case. Judge Bond referred to the Frank case. He had a fine chance to show what dictated his course here today. The great outside world clamoring for justice to Frank found it strangely combating the Georgia crowd clamorously asking for the life of a man convicted by that clamor.

“A few days ago the governor of Georgia while having upon him the responsibility of standing between a man and the gallows, had his mansion surrounded by excited crowds; so much as to necessitate his protection by armed force. This was done to make him disregard his own convictions of duty and rule a question to suit the whim and caprice of an exasperated mob. If that spirit is to take charge of the so-called courts of justice, and exact decisions, instead of having them based upon cool and deliberate consideration of the evidence in the case, then we'd as well do away with court houses and let enraged or excited groups of people deal out what to them appears, thru their excited vision, necessary to assiate the cravings of a crowd acting with reason partially dethroned.”

Judge Bond declared that he is as keenly sensitive to the cares of womanhood and that in an experience of 30 years at the bar he had been appealing for the husbands, children and relatives of women. He did his duty as a lawyer he said, but he has a very different one as a Judge on the bench. “The Judge is the only man who can stand between a jury and the crowd. And we unconsciously drift with the crowd” he said by way of explaining how influences gather and dominate public acts.

“When I came to this district I had never heard of this case,” he said and told what he did immediately after discovering that in the interest of the plaintiff's cause, the complaint against Mr. Stone had been published in the Greensboro Daily News. A large number of these papers had been caused to be circulated in the county in which the cause was to be tried,” he continued. “I removed the case and would have done so if every man in North Carolina had signed a petition asking me not to do so. As soon as I got here, I saw the swells of passion and prejudice of the crowd. The second day I saw but allowed to pass unnoticed a small ripple of applause. Another day this occurred and I warned the crowd.”

Couldn't Understand Jury. He briefly referred to the facts, told what Miss Riley admitted and what she denied, what Messrs. Stone, McCuiston and Hicks, and Misses Ball, Moore, Morrow, Mrs. Pritchett and other witnesses had said against the denial of Miss Riley. “Three white men and five or six ladies admitted by council to be of good character, gave their testimony against her. The men said she confessed, the ladies said they saw her take goods.

“The jury have said that what these witnesses said was untrue and (Continued on Page 3.)

“MAN FROM HOME” ENDS CHAUTAUQUA

Seven Joyous Days of Entertainment an Enlightenment Came to Close Tuesday Night.

MANY HEARD MRS. PICKETT

Wife of Great Confederate General Delighted Audience With Stories of Men Who Fought For the South.

The presentation Tuesday night of “The Man from Home,” preceded immediately by the concert by the Granville-Hines Company, brought to a fitting close the seven joyous days of the 1915 Chautauqua. But the end was a fitting climax. Lovers of the good and the true and pure on the stage rejoiced that the Chautauqua had brought such a well-known and such a widely recognized popular drama here as that from the pen of Booth Tarkinton. “A Pageant of Average Town,” the Junior Chautauqua Play, given under the direction of the Association, but by children of the city, was presented Tuesday afternoon, and was a delight to the big audience that saw it. It was fun and frolic for the children, and, of course, was made particularly for them. They seemed to enjoy it.

Mr. Granville, of the Granville-Hines Company, proved one of the favorites of the stage this year. To him was given the distinction of being Burlington's favorite male vocal star. Miss Bentley last Saturday evening won the hearts of local Chautauqua goers, and Mr. Granville performed the same feat Tuesday afternoon. He was assisted by an artist in his profession in Mr. Hines, who prances over the keyboard with as much ease as though it had never been an effort for him to acquire the familiarity with the piano which is his. Both afternoon and evening the two performers were anchored again and again, and when they thought that they had satisfied their admirers they had come to that place where the applause was the louder and the longer. Mr. Granville had to refuse positively to sing more before he was allowed to go in peace Tuesday, night but that was expected from the reception given them on their first appearance in the afternoon.

Mrs. Pickett Speaks. Daughters of the Confederacy, Confederate Veterans, and admirers of the brave endurance of the men who followed the leaders of the South a half a century ago listened with almost breathless silence to the address on “Friends of Yesterday” by Mrs. George E. Pickett, widow of the man said to have led the greatest infantry charge in all history. Mrs. Pickett's address was much in the nature of recollection of the men associated in the governmental affairs of the Confederacy and with the carrying on of the Civil War. She gave vivid illustrations and delightful insights into the character of Jefferson Davis, of Stonewall Jackson, Robert E. Lee, and of General U. S. Grant and Mrs. Grant. One of the most touching also, was the incident of Abraham Lincoln, tall, lanky, bony man that he was, staggering upon the porch of her home in Richmond after the Confederate Capital was burned almost to ashes in 1865. He came there to see the home of George Pickett and to speak a word to his wife, since he and Pickett were such good friends in their boyhood days. He said that he just wanted to see George Pickett's home.

FRANK HOLT COMMITS SUICIDE BY JUMPING FROM JAIL WINDOW

Man Who Shot Morgan and Wrecked Senate Room Crushes Skull on Concrete Court Yard

HIS SECOND ATTEMPT TO END HIS EXISTENCE

Opened Artery in Arm With Lead Pencil Earlier in The Day; Attendant Leaves Door Open a Moment and Prisoner Slips Out, Climbs on Top of Cell and Jumps Fifty Feet to Sudden Death, Leaves letter Asking Wife to Care of The Babies, Says Life Useless to Him and Ends With Request For Prayer That Slaughter Will Stop.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 6.—Frank Holt, the Cornell professor who shot J. P. Morgan in his home here last Saturday, committed suicide here tonight by jumping from a jail window to concrete floor of the court yard about fifty feet below.

Holt was under the guard of Jeremiah O'Ryan, a jail attendant. The prisoner apparently was sleeping soundly, and O'Ryan hearing a noise on the other side of the cell tier, left his place in front of Holt's open door and started to investigate. O'Ryan heard a noise, which, he said resembled an explosion, and hastily returned to Holt's cell, only to find it empty. Holt had slipped through the open cell door and climbed to the top of the cell tiers to an open window through which he plunged to the narrow courtyard below.

Dr. Guy Cleghorn, the jail physician and District-Attorney Lewis J. Smith were summoned. Dr. Cleghorn examined the body and found that the skull had been crushed and that death had been instantaneous.

Useless New To Live.

District-Attorney Smith searched Holt's cell immediately after arriving at the jail and found a letter written on yellow paper. This letter, which Holt must have written before he attempted suicide early this morning when the pencil with which he tried to sever an artery, was taken from him, was addressed “To My Dears,” and follows:

“I must write once more. The more I think about it, the more I see the uselessness of living under circumstances such as these. Bring up the dear babe in the love of God and man. God bless you, my sweet. Affectionately, Frank.

“P. S.—All please pardon me for all the heart-ache I have brought you. Pray with me that the slaughter will stop. My heart breaks. Good-bye.”

Conflicting Stories of Death.

At midnight there was still considerable confusion in the jail and conflicting stories as to the manner in which Holt was killed were told by those attached to the institution. The attendants disagreed as to the place where he body was found. Jeremiah O'Ryan, the keeper, detailed to watch Holt's cell, declared that he was positive the body was in a pool of blood in the cell when he first saw it.

“It sounded to me like an explosion,” said O'Ryan, giving his version of what occurred. “You will have hard work to convince me that it was not. The cell was in partial darkness as the lights had not been fully turned on.

“I was fifteen feet from the cell when it happened and my back was turned. I heard a noise and then ran into the cell and looked around. It was dark. “I couldn't see at first. Then I found the body in a pool of blood in a corner of the cell.

“Holt had been in remarkable good spirits. He had laughed and joked earlier in the evening. That made me suspicious.”

BARACAS AND PHILATHEAS TO MEET.

The Baraca-Philathea City Union, composed of nearly all the organized Baraca and Philathea classes of the various churches of the city, will hold its regular monthly meeting in the Webb Avenue M. E. church next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. This meeting was to have been held last Sunday afternoon, but owing to the presence of the Chautauqua, it was postponed one week.

We understood the program committee is arranging a very interesting program for this meeting, which will doubtless be both delightful and helpful. Among the business matters that will be transacted is the semi-annual election of officers. Because of these very important matters that will claim the attention of the Union at this meeting, every class holding membership in the organization is urged and expected to have a large representation of its members present. The public is also cordially invited to attend the meeting.

There's a lot of peace plans running loose about the country. Why not try them out on Mexico?

If Mr. Bryan would only go to Europe we believe he could end the war. He would talk it to death.

It's a poor mother who can't discover extraordinary brains in her own offspring without the use of a microscope.

BRYAN DOESN'T LIKE THE BIG NEWSPAPERS.

Say "One-Man Weekly" Preferable, Would Compel Their Secrets.

San Francisco, Cal., July 6.—Passage of a law to compel editors to show their financial interest in policies they advocate was recommended by William Jennings Bryan today in an address before the International Press Congress at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Mr. Bryan put peace and politics aside and appeared as a journalist.

Mr. Bryan further advised signed stories and editorials in newspapers. He commended the influence of the "one-man edited weekly" as being greater than that of a corporation-owned daily newspaper and expressed disapproval of "independent publications."

Experience in the State Department, Mr. Bryan said, had convinced him that public welfare would be benefited by a law compelling editors to tell that pecuniary interest in governmental policies they advocated so the public might know what weight their editorials deserved.

"It seems reasonable to suppose," Mr. Bryan said, "that the signing of editorials and news reports would contribute both to accuracy and to the reputation of writers. It is one of the injustices of the present system that men who furnish the literary ability, editorial writers and newspaper correspondents, often live in obscurity while the corporations from which they draw pay reap an unfair profit from their genius."

Mr. Bryan said that no man could write on public questions without bias and suggested that "independent newspapers" become "bi-partisan," and present articles signed by representatives of both sides of political questions.

GERARD EXPECTS GERMANY TO MAKE COUNTER-PROPOSAL.

Seeking to Prevent Shipment of War Munitions on Passenger Ships—Exchange of Views Now in Progress.

ALL DIFFICULTIES MAY BE SOLVED.

Washington, July 5.—Indications in official quarters tonight were that difficulties between the United States and Germany over submarine warfare may be solved in informal diplomatic discussions prior to the final drafting of the German reply.

The seriousness of the issue between the United States and Germany has so impressed officials in Berlin that they are undertaking to learn through Ambassador Gerard informally exactly what modifications of the submarine campaign will satisfy the American demand for the protection of its rights, without reducing the effectiveness of the submarine as a weapon against Germany's enemies.

COLONEL HARVEY HAS HIS SAY.

Mr. Bryan had ample cause to resign. How long would Thomas Jefferson have continued as secretary of state after receiving a completed message to a foreign power with the curt direction to "sign here?" What would Daniel Webster have done, if every morning for four days after the arising of a crisis laden with portents of war, he had been obliged to say that President Filmore had not consulted or even communicated with him, the secretary of state? inquires Colonel George Harvey.

"It is a simple fact beyond the possibility of successful dispute that no President has treated a secretary of state as contemptuously as Mr. Wilson has treated Mr. Bryan; none would have dared to do so; none could have done so without evoking sharpest criticism from press and people. And it does not suffice to say that the President had no time to waste in considering suggestions or advice that he knew in advance would be worthless; if this were true, then nothing could be more certain than that the President himself was decisively culpable in naming and retaining such an one in the only position whose occupant's authority and name are recognized by every government on earth. Happily for Mr. Wilson, Mr. Bryan, conceited and blundering as ever, did not set up at once his real and just cause of resentment, but the end of this chapter we surmise has not yet

"Because Mr. Bryan means war. He means to torpedo the Democratic party precisely as Mr. Roosevelt shot the fatal bolt into the Republican organization three years ago this very month. Just as there was nothing personal then, so there will be nothing personal now. The ground of underlying principle upon which Mr. Roosevelt took his stand was only high; Mr. Bryan's is both high and dry. Today it is peace-at-any-price; tomorrow it will be Prohibition; next week, Woman Suffrage; next month, the Single Term; and finally, of course, Government Ownership and the Money Power. Sadly but firmly, step by step, the Commoner will draw farther and farther away from the President until the break, as the experienced Mr. Roosevelt clearly foresaw, will become personal and irreparable."

If it is ever to become government ownership and the money devil it is very much the business of Col. Harvey, we suppose. The clever and caustic editor of the North American Review is there to look out for government ownership and the money devil, or if not he might as well be, as that is the position accorded to him by common consent.

In the North American for July Colonel Harvey reminds Bryan and Wilson and all and sundry that he urged more than two men ride an ass one must ride behind." He now produces a Jeremiad from another proverb, this from Isaiah, "That which is crushed breaketh out into a viper."

Mr. Bryan, says Colonel Harvey, "was never trained or even designed by nature to be a household pet." He needed room and air from the day of his birth, and "in recent years he has so accustomed himself to sit at the head of the table that occupying a subordinate place could not but be irksome to a degree, to say nothing of pretending to enjoy playing a second fiddle by the kitchen stove after supper." Colonel Harvey continues as follows:

"That the conciliatory note to Germany was a pretext, not a reason, is clearly proved by Mr. Bryan's own muddled explanations no less than by a comparison with the peremptory declaration of February 19 and May 13 to which he attached his signature without making protest. * * * His patience was exhausted, his spirit was sore, even his abundant flesh was weak. Nothing so became him as secretary of state, it is commonly remarked, as his retirement—a verdict from which we should hesitate to dissent. But it was not the act itself which caused for exhortation; it was the manner, the disingenuousness, the chosen time of his doing, that was ignoble. To gratify his passion for notoriety and lucre and incidentally to revenge himself upon the man who had humiliated him, he did not hesitate to strike a foul blow which might easily have constituted a betrayal of his country.

"That a secretary of state of this union should have seized upon a moment which might have been fateful to emphasize by both words and act an impression which he must have known to be false seems even in the face of the fact incredible. But that is precisely what Mr. Bryan did, and he can never be forgiven and can never again be tolerated by American citizens who are not wholly devoid either of intelligence or of patriotism. Mr. Bryan's official career is ended. That he will continue to exist as a public nuisance must be assumed."

The colonel finds it impossible to withhold from Mr. Wilson a very considerable measure of responsibility for his own premier's ruthless tempting of fate. He appointed Mr. Bryan secretary of state "with full knowledge of his mental incompetency and of his moral delinquencies. Excuse for the selection was found in the President's presumed obligation to the man who achieved his nomination at Baltimore, but none knew better than Mr. Wilson himself that no such debt existed as a consequence of any intention on the part of Mr. Bryan, none knew better than he that the very consummation so gratifying to himself was the result of as base a betrayal of trust as ever stained the annals of American politics; and yet he accorded to him the highest honor within his gift and as since lauded to the skies Mr. Bryan's character, his justice, his sincerity, his transparent integrity, his Christian principle—and so on ad nauseam.

"Let us recall for a moment the instance to which we have referred as the chief indication of Mr. Bryan's possession of these admirable attributes which confronted Mr. Wilson. (1) Mr. Bryan demanded and obtained in Nebraska primaries for the election of delegates to the Baltimore convention who should pledge themselves to heed the instructions from the primaries respecting candidates. (2) As a candidate for delegate, he promised definitely to support either Clark or Wilson, but announced that he would not serve if instructed for Harmon. (3) Clark carried the primaries and Bryan, as an instructed delegate, accepted his commission. (4) Bryan deserted Clark as soon as Clark obtained a majority of the votes in the convention and seemed certain to be nominated, upon the ground that he must be unworthy because he had received the vote of New York. (5) Bryan proposed several candidates who were obviously unavailable, carefully excluding Mr. Wilson's name from his list. (6) Wilson was nominated, not in consequence of Bryan's support but in spite of his subtle efforts to the contrary. (7) Bryan urged the nomination of Clark for Vice President—of the self-same Clark whom he had pronounced unworthy of the Presidency, to which as Vice President he might at any moment succeed; thereby in his fright at possible consequences to himself brazenly belying his own professions of virtuous opposition and revealing himself as a self-seeking marplot, disloyal to a friend, a repudiator of his own pledges and a betrayer of his own people.

"With this record of perfidy before his eyes President Wilson took Bryan to his bosom rather than have him on his back and extolled him to American youth as the embodiment of character, justice, sincerity, transparent integrity and Christian principle. If now he has discovered that he said, 'that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper,' and 'later shall learn with Job that 'the viper's tongue shall slay him,' can any but himself be held to blame?"

Sometimes a man is a crank and also a self-starter.

If Mr. Bryan takes the chair of political economy in the Indiana university, Tom Taggart ought to take the chair of practical politics in the same institution.

British Steamer Escapes From Submarine by Bravery of Father and Son—The Captain is Killed.
Son Then Steps to the Wheel and Steers Vessel to Avoid Torpedoes While Shells Fly Thick and Kill Nine Men; Destroyers Come to Rescue.

Queenstown, July 5.—With nine dead sailors stretched on her deck, eight men lying wounded below, and her sides riddled with shot and shell, the British steamship Anglo-Californian steamed into Queenstown harbor this morning after having withstood the attack of a German submarine for four hours. The ship's escape from destruction was accomplished with no other means of defence than the indomitable spirit of her captain and crew, combined with masterly seamanship, which enabled her to frustrate the efforts of her assailant to torpedo her.

The story of how Capt. Parslow stood on the bridge of the Anglo-Californian amidst a rain of shot and calmly directed the movements of his ship until he was killed by a shell, and how his place was taken by his son until British destroyers appeared and compelled the submarine to flee, was told by the survivors.

The Anglo-Californian left Montreal for the British Isles on June 24. The submarine was sighted at 8 o'clock last Sunday morning. Capt. Parslow ordered full steam ahead and wireless calls for assistance were sent out.

meanwhile deluging her with shells. One shot put the wireless apparatus on the Anglo-Californian out of action. Finding he could not escape by running for it, Capt. Parslow devoted all his attention to maneuvering his ship so as to prevent the submarine from using torpedoes effectively.

Captain a Brave Man.
"Our captain was a brave man," said one of the narrators. "He kept at his post on the bridge, coolly giving orders as the submarine circled around us vainly seeking to get a position room which it could give us a death blow with torpedoes. All the while the underwater boat continued to rain shot and shell upon us and at times was so close that she was able to employ rifle fire effectively. At least one shell blew the captain off the bridge killing him outright and terribly mutilating him. Just before that he had given orders to launch the boats, but this was very difficult under the shell fire. Several men were struck down while working at the davits. Ultimately four boats were got overboard and we rowed away until picked up."

Son Takes Father's Place.
The son of Captain Parslow, serving as second mate, was standing by his father's side when the latter was killed. The son was knocked down by the violence of the explosion. Springing to his feet he seized the wheel and as ably as his father had done, continued dodging the submarine. Another shell burst alongside him shattering one of the spokes of his post.

The wireless S. O. S. calls that had been sent out at the first alarm had reached those able to give more than passive assistance however, and British destroyers appeared. On their appearance the submarine abandoned the attack and submerged. Young Parslow was still at the wheel when the destroyers came up.

Turks Lose Twenty Thousand in Three Days; Many Allies Slaughtered.

London, July 5.—The total Turkish casualties in the Dardanelles operations between June 28 and July 2 were 5,150 men killed and 15,000 wounded, according to announcement today by the British official bureau, Berlin, via The Hague and London, July 5.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Zeitung Am Mittag reports that the British lost 10,000 men in the last twelve days fighting around Seddul Bahr on the Gallipoli peninsula. He states that he saw thousands of wounded transported to hospital ships while the dead were left unburied. The dispatch continues:

"The climax in this awful carnage was reached on the morning of July 1, after a three-day offensive that failed utterly. Boats traveled to and from the transports for hours with the wounded.

The Turks learn that Alexandria, Cairo, and the islands occupied by the British are literally choked with wounded.

"The Turkish losses were measurably less and lighter; half the injured already are back in the fight."

ALFALFA KNOCKS OUT THE "BLUES," SAYS HOMEOPATHS.

Persons Fed on Tincture Get so Hungry They Can Hardly Wait For Meals.

Chicago, Ill., July 4.—Members of the American Institute of Homeopathy concluded their annual convention here today and adjourned.

Alfalfa as a remedy for indigestion and mental depression was recommended by Dr. Alexander L. Blackwood of Chicago. He told of experiments made with the new remedy at a Chicago hospital.

"During the past year observations were made of the action of alfalfa on seventeen persons," he said. "All of them noted that they grew so hungry that they could scarcely wait for their meals. Their minds were clear and bright, all bodily functions were stimulated and it was impossible to have the blues."

Alfalfa is converted into a tincture and used internally. Its use, said Dr. Blackwood, was accompanied by an immediate delightful feeling of well being increased appetite and weight.

"All bodily functions were stimulated and it was impossible to have the blues," said the physician's report. The tincture is known as Medicago Saltiva.

Dr. Ben Bradley of Hamlet, Ohio, also has made experiments with Alfalfa, said Dr. Blackwood, and he believes it to be a coming drug.

It stimulates digestion and will prove of great value in dealing with

RACE RIOT FOLLOWS MURDER IN GEORGIA.

Farmer Shot to Death and Mob Goes Out and Kills Two Innocent Negroes.

Macon, Ga., July 5.—An all day search by officers and an armed posse of farmers failed today to reveal the whereabouts of the negro slayers of Silas Turner, prominent planter of Jones county who was shot Sunday near Round Oak. Two negroes were killed by infuriated friends of Turner shortly after the murder, but quiet prevailed in the county today and the authorities said they expected no further trouble.

Sheriff Etheridge said he had heard that several negroes had been killed in the race riot Sunday night but that he had seen the bodies of only two, Alonso Greene and his young son, of Wayside. "They had nothing to do with the murder of Silas Turner," added the sheriff.

Will Gordon, one of three negroes brought here for safekeeping by sheriff's deputies, is said to have told the Jones county authorities that he saw the shot fired that killed Turner. Gordon, the officers said, accused Thomas Brooks of killing the planter.

According to Gordon's story, Turner went to Brook's home near Round Oak to collect a bill, and Brooks shot the planter in the back of the head. Friends of Turner found his body and started out to avenge his death. Telephone wires to Round Oak and vicinity were cut last night, it was said, and news of the disturbance did not reach here until early today, when the deputies arrived with three negroes, who were taken in custody before the mob found them.

RUSSIAN SUBMARINE DESTROYS BIG FOE.

Leader of German Line in Baltic Fight Torpedoed, Petrograd Reports.

London, July 4.—The Russian general naval staff, according to Reuter's Petrograd correspondent, reports that a German battleship of the Deutschland type, leading the enemy's line in Friday's naval battle in the Baltic Sea, was blown up by two torpedoes discharged by a Russian submarine.

Plucky Fight of Albatross.

Berlin, July 4.—By wireless to Sayville.—The plucky fight of the German mine layer Albatross, against four Russian cruisers of the armored class and what is charged by German naval officers as a Russian violation of Swedish neutrality claimed public attention in Berlin today.

According to Swedish and Danish reports, the Albatross in a dense fog lost sight of accompanying cruisers and suddenly was attacked by four big ships. The mine layer fought desperately for several hours, but was driven towards the Swedish coast and finally entered Swedish waters. The captain ran the ship aground near Henviker.

The Russians, it is said, continued firing long after the Albatross entered Swedish territory. The Oestegarn lighthouse was hit and the keeper was compelled to flee.

The Albatross was hit about thirty times. Lieut. Loewenberg and 27 men were killed and many others were wounded. One shell entered the ship hospital, killing ten wounded men and fatally wounded a doctor.

German Crew Interns.

After the Albatross was beached the captain assembled the crew around the flag flying aft, the foremast having shot away. They sang the national hymn and gave three cheers for the Emperor and the Fatherland. The captain then struck the flag and relinquished the Swedes to intern ship and crew.

The Swedish government, these advisers say, immediately ordered the Swedish minister at Petrograd to protest vigorously against the violation of Sweden's neutrality.

The Russian cruisers, after the action with the Albatross, were engaged by one large warship and sev-

SMOKING ON FARMS.

Time was when smoking in the country was infrequent but in these days of high prices and automobiles thousands of farmers enjoy pipes and cigars and their help use cigarettes. In the olden days there was little danger from fires on this account, but there is danger today. The owner of a farm would not think of lighting his pipe in the barn, but his hands will. Farmers should watch their help so as to guard against carelessness with fire. Farmers should carry insurance, but they should see to it that buildings are not burned. In very few cases does the policy really cover actual loss to the insured.

Washington needs a pay-up day. There is not a town in North Carolina that is as badly credit ridden as Burlington. Our people have money and make money, but some of them forget their creditors. Pay your just bills, and what money you have left is yours to spend as you please, but no man has the right to take money that he has promised to pay his debt, and spend it unless for sickness or death, and then he should acquaint his creditor with the circumstances and request his permission for an extension of time upon his account, the time must come when the man who has no regard for his obligations will be ostracized by his neighbors and expelled from his church. Imagine a supposed Christian going to heaven owing just debts that he has refused to pay, very it will be much easier for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven than for a dead beat to walk the golden streets with a song upon his lips and a harp within his hand.

RAISING SALARIES.

This is an age of salary raising with our public officials. The salary of our Mayor is now twelve hundred dollars per year, or a hundred dollars per month and in addition the town is to feed his horse, but he is to furnish his own horse and buggy. The chief of police is to receive a salary of $960.00, or eighty dollars per month, and in addition to his former duties, he is to collect the water rents and help to look after the sanitary condition of the city while both of these salaries look large compared with what the former officials have been receiving, still it is not large if the officials get busy, keep busy and upon the job all the time, they can earn this much and more by close attention to business and guarding the city interests by vigilant inspection of all matters in which the city is interested in. We have no criticism to offer in regard to the high salaries until we see the interested manifested.

CHATHAM NEGRO HELD FOR ASSAULT.
 Freeman Wrenn, Nephew of Negro Hanged for Like Crime in Jail—Victim Twelve Years Old.
 Pittsboro, July 6.—Freeman Wrenn, a negro about twenty years old, is alleged to have attempted criminal assault upon a little white girl, Estel Foster, the twelve-year-old daughter of Charles F. Foster, a respected farmer living about two miles west of Mt. Vernon Springs. The little girl with a cousin about fifteen years old and the negro were in the field Friday afternoon chopping cotton, when the negro got the white boy to go to the spring for some water. Fortunately Mr. A. W. Dixon, an uncle of the child, was riding along the road by the field and his attention was attracted by some one scuffling in the field and saw that one of them was a negro. The negro, not seeing him, had gathered the child up in his arms and was carrying her to a nearby thicket. Mr. Dixon picked up a hoe as he went, and found the brute in the act of carrying out his hellish intentions. He hit the negro two or three times on the head with the hoe, bending it, which made very little impression on the negro's head. He made his escape and late in the afternoon Mr. Foster saw wrenn on his porch. He got his gun, and while getting a shell in he again escaped. Upon reaching Siler City Saturday morning, Sheriff Leon T. Lane was notified and at once set out to get his man and finally caught him Monday morning a little after ten o'clock at the pumping station in Lee county, two miles of Sanford, at Lige Wrenn's an uncle of Freeman. quietly and tried before Justices of the Peace Willett and Phillips and was sent to jail without bail.

Many beautiful incidents in the life of this great Southern woman and of her acquaintances with leaders of the war thus days, were told from the stage Tuesday afternoon. Southern people love her for her sweetness of character, and because of the haloed memory of the man she married, after being engaged to him, a soldier, when she was at the age of five years. Mrs. Pickett was entertained while in the city by the various women's clubs of Burlington and Graham. They met her at the depot, and she met with the organizations after the lecture at the home of Mrs. T. L. Sellers, where a reception was given in honor of Mrs. Pickett. The veterans were also present at this reception.

After the concert Tuesday night by the Granville-Hines Company, the Avon players gave their fine presentation of "The Man from Home." It is considered one of the best efforts from the pen of its author, Booth Tarkinton, and it more than measured up to its reputation. The caste would be hard to improve upon on the most cultured stages of the country, yet their show of Tuesday night would have been even better than it was if exhibited on the stage of an opera house, particularly because of the four walls that would have held the voices. The scene of the story is laid in a little Italian town. Two young Americans, brother and sister, heir and heiress to the big fortune of a late wealthy Indiana man, become acquainted with the titled family of an Englishman, and a French woman in the resort. The American heir is about to be entrapped in matrimony by the French woman who wanted nothing but his money, and the son of a titled English family was to be married to the American heiress that she might have a title, the condition of the engagement being that she pay the fellow three quarters of a million as "a settlement" before the wedding could be solemnized. The guardian of the young American, brother and sister, a rising young attorney of Kokomo, Indiana, arrived on the scene, and told the girl of the trifling character of the man to whom she was engaged, and finally broke up the marriage. Pike, the guardian, himself finally won the hand of his ward. A fugitive from Russia was befriended by the American attorney and his traveling companion, incognito.

STOCK AND STOCK.
 There was one man who had a lot of money, but no discoverable ancestors, and so it came that he affected contempt for pride of birth, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. And there was another man whose family tree was tall and umbrageous, but who possessed no other assets worth mentioning. A discussion between those two men was of profound interest to us. Each avoided hurting the other's feelings, but it was easy to detect an undercurrent of antagonism. We remember the closing sentences of the conversation.

"Say what you will," asserted the one. "It's a fine thing to come of good stock."
 "It's a finer thing," replied the other, with finality, "to own it."
 There is intense feeling in the vicinity where the crime was perpetrated, but no act of violence has been observed.
 The prisoner is a nephew of Allidy Wrenn, who was hanged in Pittsboro about thirty years ago for a similar crime.

LISTEN, MR. SPENDTHRIFT!

If you haven't a family now you may have some day and how are you going to leave them? While you are young and vigorous are you going to provide a home for them when they will at least have somewhere to stay? Or will you leave them in a rented house to be chased from pillar to post by unsympathetic landlords? They will miss your not being there to provide for them enough without having to hustle for shelter. This institution offers you the opportunity to provide for that proverbial "rainy day" while you can. What is your duty?

We have one more say and we are through for the present.

LOST HIS RABBIT FOOT.
 Our good friend, Jeter Lucky Patillo, Ex-Chief of Police, who has held the office of chief for a long number of years possibly ten or more, lost out last Monday night, when Mr. E. M. Long was elected to fill his place. Jeter felt that had them all beat until the very last minute, but when he learned that Mr. Long had consented to accept the position, he had a weakness of the knees and knew that he had at last lost out. Like all policemen, he had made some enemies and of course, they are glad of his defeat. No man can be the chief of police and do his duty without making onetaind $1.50 to buy food for her husband and herself, both weak from the exertion, and again they trudged on to Excelsior, where she obtained employment as maid in the home of F. H. Meyer, and her husband, Claude W. Deelany, was given work as gardner. "Claude was a chief in Chicago," said Mrs. Deelany, "and we were getting along nicely. Then he was stricken with tuberculosis. He lost his job. Then our landlord turned us out.

"We decided to come west. We started to walk and at first made only a few miles a day, but when we got into the country Claude gained strength. I carried the blankets and coffee pot. We camped by the roadside and slept on the ground.

"When we got here I looked for work, but couldn't find any. Then I was talking by a hair store and they and the thought of selling my hair occurred to me.

"I went in and they clipped my hair. I got $1.50 for it. That gave me something to eat. The next morning we walked to Excelsior and both got work at the Meyer home."

Idaho has a law, we are told, which makes it mandatory upon county commissioners to find work for the man out of a job. But are they also empowered to compel the man to hold down the job after it is found for him? The horse that is led to water can not always be made to drink.

WARNING!

Delinquent Tax Payers.

All 1914 and prior taxes which are not paid to me before noon of Monday, the 5th of July, 1915, will positively be advertised and the property to cover sold.

The law allows no further indulgence to Delinquents.

I am an officer sworn to obey the law. I have no other recourse than to advertise and sell. I shall, therefore, be unable to evade the unpleasant duty of levying on the property or garnishing the wages of each and every delinquent who does not settle at once the amount of his delinquency.

I can make not one exception—it will be useless to ask further time—it is beyond my power and legal right to extend it.

Those who have not settled with me by July 10th, can only blame themselves, and I solemnly warn those, here and finally, that if they do not at once respond to this notice, the steps required by law will without further warning—be regretfully but unhesitatingly taken.

It cannot be expected that I shall personally call on every delinquent, and I shall not attempt to do so.

It is your duty to settle for your taxes at my office, and unless you do so before noon on Monday, the 5th day of July, I regret to advise that the unpleasant and expensive method of enforcing collection by law must be employed against you.

Respectfully,
R. N. COOK,
Sheriff Alamance County.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Advice of This Burlington Woman is of Certain Value.

Many a woman's back has many aches and pains.

Ofttimes 'tis the kidneys' fault.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

Many Burlington women know this. Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. B. Goodman, 501 Lexington Avenue, Burlington, says: "I was bothered a great deal at times by rheumatic pains in my muscles and joints. My back also ached and was weak. After taking two or three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, my back felt strong again and the rheumatic pains went away. Whenever my kidneys get the least bit out of order now, a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills gives me quick relief."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Goodman had. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Greensboro, July 3.—The North Carolina State Publicity Bureau temporary organization of which was effected at a meeting of some 70 of the state's most progressive men at Raleigh last Tuesday, June 29th, is less than a week old but is already receiving the strong endorsement of thinking men in every part of North Carolina, evidenced in expressions of the press and letters from individuals. This endorsement is given on the general plan of the organization as published from Raleigh following the meeting—to set on foot a campaign of publicity that will place before the people of the outside world a true representation of this state's matchless resources and advantages, agricultural, industrial, to the settler and investor. It is believed that a still stronger endorsement will be given when the full impact of this work is understood. The object of the State Bureau, as set forth in full in the plan of organization at last Tuesday's meeting follows:

1. To study the needs, resources and community progress of the state by sections.
2. To secure and create such publicity, as will promote the development of North Carolina by bringing people of Christ and industry to us, especially to our agricultural lands.
3. To acquaint people in one section of the state with advantages and progress in other sections.
4. To aid in offering homes at fair and reasonable prices, and protect prospective settlers from unjust speculators and false representations.
5. To assist each section in securing the class of settlers suitable to that locality.
6. To co-operate with local community organizations and civic organizations, railroads and any other organization, corporation or individuals interested in promoting the purpose set forth.

The 70 men who formulated this broad object represented 23 counties of the state and every congressional district save one. The one congressional district not represented is known to have many strong men within its borders who heartily approve this movement, and were doubtless prevented from being present by the press of other engagements, or by illness. Many of the state's best known progressive men, in fact, were unable to be present because of such reasons, but wrote letters explaining their inability to attend and pledging their earnest support. Strong men were in attendance from Asheville in the West, to Wilmington, in the East. The four leading railroads were represented; and it is believed that with such co-operative effort as indicated in the beginning, this organization will accomplish something worth while in placing North Carolina where she belongs—on a plan with her resources.

The earnestness with which the problem of the state's future was debated at the Raleigh meeting, the stability and broad business experience of the men participating in these discussions, and the character of the men selected to guide the destinies of the organization through the dangerous shoals to a permanent organization, all combine to secure the respect and co-operation of every citizen who has the welfare of his state at heart for the work now in hand; and there is existent a feeling that every public spirited citizen, as many of them have already done, will rally to the support of these men, who are attempting a great altruistic work for North Carolina that will prove of at least indirect interest to every man, woman and child within its borders. This work, it is conceded, will eventually mean a bigger, better and more prosperous North Carolina. Therefore, it is argued, every citizen should feel it a personal privilege to lend his aid. They are asked not to wait for personal invitation, but to encourage the men who have been selected as officers of the temporary organization by writing them and offering such suggestions as may seem good and offering assistance in the undertaking.

The plan of organization, in brief, is an executive committee consisting of the President, six Vice-Presidents, Treasurer & Secretary, elected by the board of directors. The board of directors is to consist of not to exceed three members from each congressional district, these to be selected by the members in such district from among their own number. By this means the organization will be truly representative of the entire state and be, in fact, a state-wide organization.

The officers elected to serve until the first annual meeting which is to be held on the first Tuesday in October, are: Henry A. Page, Aberdeen; President; E. C. Branson, Chapel Hill; A. E. Tate, High Point; F. R. Hewitt, Asheville; Clarence Poe, Raleigh; A. W. McLean, Lumberton; O. L. Joyner, Greenville. Vice-Presidents: Alf A. Thompson, Raleigh, Treasurer; and J. C. Foster, Greensboro, Secretary.

Upon these men rests the gigantic task of perfecting the organization that it is hoped will mean the salvation of North Carolina, agriculturally and industrially; and they seek the aid and co-operation of every man in the state who has a bona fide interest in the future of his state, and in giving thanks to the movement that provides access to the people of this state and to the people of other states, and to the people of other countries, and to the people of other continents, and to the people of other worlds.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who carried his tooth brush about with him in his vest pocket as a badge of his respectability?

The Cad Albright Farm Sale

16 FARMMS 16

MONDAY, JULY 12th, at 10 A. M.

WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT?

That magnificent farm—known as the Cad. Albright farm—will be sold—and sold to the highest bidders on the above date. It is located about 1 1/4 miles South of Graham on a splendid macadamized road—just where the Graham, Saxapahaw and Swepsonville roads fork. It has been subdivided into 16 small farms—or Villa Sites—ranging in size from 5 to 31 acres. The home place goes with the 31-acre tract. Nothing better has ever been offered the public; nothing better can be offered than these splendid farms. And remember they will be sold—each and ever one—to the last man or woman that places a bid on them—A straight, bonafide sale all the way through.

Keep in mind that land values depend upon location, and fertility of the soil, and especially with reference to proximity to a good town, schools and churches. Keeping all this in mind then think where you can find a better investment or a more delightful place to buy for a home site.

Do Not Deceive Yourself Any Longer--Cad Albright Farms Offers You Opportunity.

One of these farms will give you a home in the country with beautiful environments, where you and the family will have plenty of light and air and all the things that make life worth living, where the little ones can play and romp in the grass, and where you can have beautiful flower gardens, can raise chickens, have plenty of milk, and where you can have good neighbors, where you can have all the advantages of country life and at the same time be near fine good villages and cities.

Fathers and Mothers You Have A Mighty Obligation.

Did it ever occur to you that you owe your children the very best opportunity for healthy development at your command? You cannot give your children the full advantages and the opportunities for development they should have when you live among crowded surroundings in a town or city—no chance for them to play except in the street or a narrow yard.

$35 : IN GOLD : $35

Just for a little fun and amusement on the side we offer to the one guessing the nearest to the amount the farms sell for—(16 farms, 175 acres in all)—$10.00 in gold and for the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th nearest guesses $5 in gold each. Everyone can guess—secure your tickets from the advertising man or we will give you one at the sale. At our last sale Col. J. E. Long guessed within $2.35 of the sales—winning 1st. gold prize.

Another Big Surprise--A Pot of Gold.

As a little extra measure for the purchasers we have asked Mr. A. L. Davis and Charlie Scott to bury a pot of gold on one of the farms—from $25.00 to $100.00—and the buyer of that farm gets the POT OF GOLD. They buried it in the dark hours of the night and they alone know it's location.

MR. BRYAN WOULD RATHER BE RIGHT.

A number of publications are asking if Mr. Bryan has made a mistake which is irretrievable, and if he has openly invited oblivion. We think it quite possible that he has done so. Moreover, we know that Mr. Bryan has fully counted the cost. In some respects that cost has not been so dear as he foresaw. Condemnation of his act in retiring from the cabinet has been severe in certain quarters, but the former secretary assured this paper the other day that Bryan is just neutral and he says he has no trouble at all in being that way. Some one has said, in bitterness, that Pilate was the greatest of all neutrals, but Mr. Bryan cannot help what the people say. He is neutral and he believes this country ought to be neutral, treating all the nations at war alike. That is a thankless task as matters stand, Mr. Bryan doubted all the time whether the Germans would care to hear him at Chicago, with his straight message of peace, with special favors to none. Those who sympathized with the Allies, on the other hand, will have none of him, because they understand that he favors now, and that as a cabinet member he favored, the policy of dealing just as firmly and just as sternly with Great Britain, in whose army his son-in-law is fighting, as we are dealing with Germany. We must assume, therefore, that Mr. Bryan would rather be right than to make any more presidents. What with speaking of the speaking he is going to do, and then speaking, and then speaking of the speaking he has done, Mr. Bryan appears to be the busy man all right, all right.

OUR NATION'S PRAYER.

Oh God! Thou great and Holy One, Look down from Thy mighty throne, Upon those war stricken nations, and send, Mercy which comes from Thee alone. Drive hatred from the hearts of men, Arouse them from their dream, That they may know Thy mighty power, And Thou alone rules supreme. Give strength to the orphaned ones, Left by this awful strife, Take them under Thy sheltering wing, Give them the bread of life. God be with those homeless ones, Stretch forth Thy loving hand, Teach them to fear Thee alone And not the wrath of man. Look down upon that blood-stained battlefield, And aid men's quick ghastring breath, Teach them to say, "Thy will be done," Before their eye-lids close for death. May the cannon's roar cease its thunder, And each head bow in shame, And lips that shouted the battle cry Sing Praises to Thy name. -JAMES W. ELLIOTT, May 18, 1915.

RACCOON CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

(From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.) Harry Parker, a resident of Alton, has gone to the country for eight weeks and will live on the meat of raccoons, rabbits and other wild animals as a cure for rheumatism. Several years ago, when attacked by the disease, he was removed to the country. He started a diet of wild animal flesh and was cured. He again is suffering and will try the cure that brought him relief before. That Georgia mob dispersed when the saloons were closed up. That's where it is expected to get its courage.

BID TEN CENTS FOR COFFINS.

Market for Burial Supplies Not Lively at This Auction Sale. (St. Louis Star.) Coffins, which the auctioneer facetiously said could be used for flatboats in these high-water times, brought a bid of 10 cents each at a sheriff's sale in Belleville recently when the property of the Britchler-Bucholz Livery and Undertaking company was sold under an execution on an $11,000 judgment held by G. W. Brichler, of East St. Louis. Constable Ben Lantz was the auctioneer. A horse brought a bid of $2 and 100 shrouds a bid of $10. The sale was conducted in two ways. The property was offered piece by piece and then offered as a whole. Under the first plan the total amount bid was $3,389.60. G. W. Brichler then bid in the property as a whole for $8,000.

THE PRINCE HIMSELF.

German Petty King Was the Man Captured. Paris, July 3.—In the fighting front near Arras an officer of a German hussar regiment was captured. His uniform was covered with blood and dust, but he looked every inch a soldier. A French officer asked him to sit down and inquired if he spoke French. "Yes," he replied, and added with a bit of irony, "I had much practice at Lille lately." "Your men are happy to be prisoners. Are you?" "No, it is the most cruel fate for an officer." Then, after a short silence as if arguing with himself, the prisoner went on: "At least I have an excuse. I am wounded and so weary that I can hardly stand. For two days I have been on guard. For forty-eight hours I have not slept." One of the prisoner's eyes was terribly swollen and quite closed from a fragment of shell that had struck him in the cheek bone. One of his ears was lacerated by another fragment. "Is my eye gone?" he asked the attendant surgeon. "No." "My ear is cut in two?" "Not in two, but in three!" "It was in Von K.'s trench that you were captured?" asked the French officer. Von K. is a prince of an ancient German house. The officer started, but this time did not reply. Afterward it was learned that the prisoner was Prince Von K. himself. The House of Never is filled with Might-Have-Beens.

Don't Make Curiosity Telephone Calls

IT is beyond the bounds of possibility to answer promptly the mass of curiosity telephone calls that threaten to swamp our exchanges every time there is a large fire. Calls for physicians, the ambulance or the police, held up at such times might result in the loss of human life. For your protection, as well as for the protection of your neighbors, we ask you not to call the telephone operator merely out of curiosity. After all, she has no more information than you have.

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr. Hughes Would Die, But One Helped Him to Recovery. Pomeroyton, Ky.—Is interesting advice from this place. Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good. I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Dr. J. H. Williams' Black-Draught, and get taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it. I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it. I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me." Dr. J. H. Williams' Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest. JUST GIVES MISS RILEY AWARD OF BLAME; JUDGE SETS VERDICT ASIDE

(Continued from Page 1.) ... what she said was true, Gentlemen, I would like to know by what rules of evidence you reach such a verdict as that. ... The jury sat in utter silence. Col. Barringer twisted in his chair. The reply in mind was apparent. The colonel thought the verdict should stand. Judge Bond went on. He said he recognized the sympathy which Miss Riley had been shown, "I am not an enemy of hers, I am to see that justice is done and I want it understood that there is a difference between a judicial determination of facts and one based on pity, sympathy and public clamor. So far from being a malicious prosecution by Mr. Stone in the municipal court of Greensboro, it appears to me to have been essential to his protection."

Barringer's Warm Answer. Colonel Barringer was invited to say anything he wished. The colonel had a somewhat protracted say. "I don't see why your honor has made this statement before this jury," Colonel Barringer said with some feeling.

"I have said it," Judge Bond said with firmness, "because I am determined to break up this running of courts by public sentiment as far as I can."

"I hope that it will not be published in the newspapers what your honor has said here," Colonel Barringer replied, "so that this woman may not be discredited upon the next trial that she may have before a jury of this county."

Judge Bond retorted: "I have nothing to do with that. You took occasion to have published the complaint that she filed."

"I did not take occasion to do it," Colonel Barringer retorted with more warmth, and again in answer to Judge Bond's declaration that he gave it to the newspapers said: "I did at the request of the newspaper man who came to me to get it. He asked me what the facts were in it, and I said the facts are stated in the complaint. He said 'have you any objection to my publishing the complaint?' and I said 'none in the world if you want to get the facts before the public.'"

"I hope, may it please your honor, that your honor's statement here in open court to the people of this county and to this jury will not prejudice my client the next trial she may have of this case." Judge Bond said: "I have nothing to do with that. I do not want to do her any injustice. What I am trying to do is to see that justice is done."

"I give your honor credit for being sincere and honest in saying justice should be done in this case," the colonel continued, "but I think your honor has misconceived the facts connected with this case and that your honor is on the other side of it without considering as I believe, the facts full as the jury did. I am sorry, may it please the court, that your honor has throughout the trial, as I see the case leaned toward the defendant."

"No Merit in the Case." "I have done that because I thought there was no merit in the plaintiff's action," Judge said with hesitation. "Your honor charged the jury that if they found the facts to be as this poor plaintiff in this case said, then they might find that verdict. I have seen, may it please your honor, in the court house, where one man of good and irreproachable character was believed by a jury when there were 12 who swore against him. I believe that she is a modest, truthful, sincere woman. I believe that she was oppressed by this man," he shouted, turning to Mr. Stone. Your honor may be of the opinion that she is a pretentious woman. The jury has found differently on the evidence and they are the judges of the facts. I can't see why your statement is made before the public against this poor girl. She has rights in this court," again the colonel said in strident voice. "Her testimony is to be weighed by the jury, and if they believe what she said, she has been outrageously treated by this man. She was not only detained, but she was slandered, and according to my own view of this testimony, she explained every single piece of property that was found in her possession; not only at the store but in her room, and not one of these good ladies would say that they saw her take this property nor would they say that she did not send a ticket up for it.

"I feel this case greatly, your honor or please. I have been connected with it from the beginning, and this girl has made the same statement here that she made before me when she came to my office. She made the same statement before the justice who tried the case in Greensboro that she made upon the witness stand, and the other side have changed their testimony; and if your honor please, I do not think you would have made the observations before this jury that your honor did had you been connected with the case as I have."

Colonel Barringer again referred to "this poor woman" and the disposal of the case that way. Judge Bond said "Colonel, I must ask that you desist from that sort of argument. I have made this observation with the view of impressing every man in this county, so far as I can, that cases must be tried upon the evidence and that public sentiment, however much of it may be aroused, must not be used in a court of justice to the prejudice of any man or any woman."

Jury Otherwise Impressed. "I think your honor absolutely correct," said Colonel Barringer in the first concurring opinion with the court. "But there is nothing to indicate that the jury was in any way influenced by anything that it heard on the outside by any crowd. I believe that the jurors have gone the other way on that account. I believe that jury wanted to render a ten thousand dollar verdict in this case because it means the destruction of this woman by this man."

And then everybody went out. Pittsboro was cowed. The Judge single-handed, had taken charge of the town. The people swore, but not openly. The Judge driving back the sympathetic influences of the people was nevertheless the rollicking school boy when he left the bench.

He won many friends who did not go back on Miss Riley but who applauded courage. It took nerve to do it. All issues giving the case standing in the court were non-suited upon motion of A. L. Brooks and as he said: "Put it up to three men in Raleigh. It is up to them."

Poverty is an incentive to push. Nine out of every ten rich men were poor boys.

Keep your eye on Mr. Bryan. Our guess is that he has that single term plank up his sleeve.

Temperance in drinking, eating and sleeping will be worth more to you than rich relatives.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 7.—Frank Holt, who attempted to take the life of J. P. Morgan and who committed suicide last night in the Lincoln jail, today was identified as Erch Muentner, the Harvard instructor who disappeared after being indicted as the murderer of his wife, Leona, in Cambridge, Mass., in 1906. The identification was made by S. P. Smith, State detective of the district attorney's office of Middlesex county, Mass., Theodore Hillier, an automobile man of Cambridge, and A. T. Brown, a Boston newspaper man.

The identification came after the three men, Smith, Hillier and Brown had made a careful examination of the body. Smith said the gold bridge in Holt's upper right jaw was the same as that in the mouth of Muentner. The Massachusetts detective declared he was positive of his identification, Hillier, who lived with Muentner and who drove him to the railroad station, the night he disappeared, was equally positive and so was Brown, who had known Muentner personally. Smith brought with him the Bertillon measurements of Muentner and they tallied with Holt's measure-

District Attorney Lewis J. Smith, of Nassau county, announced he considered it definitely established that Muentner and Holt were the same persons.

Keeper Tells His Story. Jeremiah O'Ryan, the keeper who was on guard at Holt's cell when Holt committed suicide, had recovered his composure today sufficiently to tell a connected story. O'Ryan said he had been employed by Sheriff Pettit to guard the prisoner from 8 p. m. to 8 a. m. Last night at 8 O'Ryan went to the entrance of Holt's cell. Holt seemed to be asleep.

"I had some food today and managed to retain it," O'Ryan says Holt told him. "I feel much better, but I must get some sleep. These detectives have been coming in and asking me all kinds of questions and they have been bothering me day and night. I must get sleep. I have got an important statement to make tomorrow and I must be able to convince people that what I say is true."

O'Ryan said Holt turned over on his side and remained there for about an hour. At the end of that time O'Ryan heard a noise in the next corridor. He glanced at Holt and saw he had changed his position so he was facing the door but apparently was sleeping. O'Ryan then crept, he says, on his hands and knees down the corridor to check a disturbance so Holt might sleep. He looked into the other corridor and found there was nothing there. As he was about to start back O'Ryan said he heard a noise that sounded like a revolver shot.

"I ran back to the cell and said to myself, 'He's done it. Somebody slipped him a gun.' I looked into his cell and did not see him. Then I thought that maybe he had been shot from the outside. I said to myself he might shoot me, so I drew my revolver and went to the cell, expecting him to jump at me. It was dark and I could not see him. I tripped and fell. When I looked down I saw Kept Inside Cell. Martin H. Littleton, who had been retained as counsel for Holt, visited Mimsela today and announced that cell closely.

Mr. Littleton climbed up the bars inside of the cell as Holt apparently had done before committing suicide, to see if it were possible for a man to kill himself in that manner. Mr. Littleton was convinced that it was.

William Hulse, warden of the Nassau county jail, issued the following statement today:

"Holt met his death by plunging from the bars of his cell. He fell 10 feet. His keeper, O'Ryan, was in charge of him and I always believed that O'Ryan was a trustworthy man. His orders from me were never to take his eyes off the prisoner. He was told that if he wanted anything he should rap on the bars with a club and that his summons would be answered by another keeper.

"In running along the corridor to see what the disturbance was O'Ryan disobeyed my positive orders. But I did not employ O'Ryan; he was employed by Sheriff Stephen P. Pettit."

ENGINEER SEES STRANGE DOINGS BETWEEN MOSS NECK AND PEMBROKE.

Lumberton, July 6.—When the Seaboard passenger train arrived here from Charlotte last night at ten o'clock the engineer reported that between Moss Neck and Pembroke, about ten miles from here, he saw one man shoot another, saw man stagger as if about to fall when gunman seized him and tried to throw him on track ahead of train, but as train was too close body was dropped near track. Sheriff Lewis and deputies hurried to the scene but could see nor hear nothing indicating that anything had happened.
