SAW MISS CAVELL BEFORE HER DEATH

British Chaplain Tells of Last Minutes of Nurse Prior to Execution. London, Oct. 22.—The British foreign office this evening made public the report of the Rev. H. S. T. Gahan, the British chaplain in Brussels, who visited Miss Edith Cavell just before her execution and a letter from Brand Whitlock, the American Minister to Belgium, to Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador in London. In his letter Mr. Whitlock says he requested that the body of Miss Cavell be delivered to the school for nurses of which she was the directress, his request being referred to the ministry of war in Berlin. The Rev. Mr. Gahan in his report said: "On Monday evening, the 11th of October, I was admitted by a special passport from the German authorities to the prison of St. Gilles, where Miss Edith Cavell had been confined for ten weeks. The final sentence had been given early that afternoon. "To my astonishment and relief, I found my friend perfectly calm and resigned but this could not lessen the tenderness and intensity of feeling on either part during that last interview of almost an hour. "Her first words to me were upon a matter concerning herself personally but the solemn asseveration which accompanied them was made expressly in the light of God and eternity. She then added that she wished all her friends to know that she willingly gave her life for her country and said: "I have no fear nor shrinking. I have seen death so often that it is not strange or fearful to me. She further said: "I thank God for this ten weeks of quiet before the end. My life has always been hurried and full of difficulties; this time the rest has been a great mercy. They have all been very kind to me here. But this I would say standing as I do in view of God and eternity: I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness towards any one." We partook of Holy Communion together and she received the gospel message of consolation with all her heart. At the close of the little service I began to repeat the words 'Ade with me,' and she joined softly in the end. "We sat quietly talking until it was time for me to go. She gave me parting message for relatives and friends. She spoke of her soul's need at the moment and she received the assurance of God's words as only a Christian can do. "Then I said good-bye, and she smiled and said 'We shall meet again.' "A German military chaplain was with her at the end and afterward gave her a Christian burial. He told me: "She was brave and bright to the last. She professed her Christian faith and said she was glad to die for her country. She died like a heroine." Mr. Whitlock, in inclosing the letter he wrote to Baron Von Der Lancken, the German Governor, at the request of President Faider, of the court of appeals in Brussels and the president of the Belgian school for nurses, asking that Miss Cavell's body be delivered to the school for nurses, of which she was the directress, says: "I have not received a written reply to my note to Baron Lancken on the subject, but he came to see me yesterday afternoon and stated that the body had been interred near the prison of St. Gilles, where the execution took place, and that under the regulations governing such cases it was impossible to exhume the body without written permission from the Minister of War at Berlin. "He added that he had no authority to ask for permission to exhume the body, but that immediately upon the return of the governor general he would request him to take the matter up. "I shall hope to be able to tell you that we have at least been able to accomplish this small service."

Lensing had no report today either from Ambassador Page or American Minister Whitlock on the execution of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse, by German military authorities at Brussels. So far as the Washington government is concerned, the case appears closed, every diplomatic effort apparently having been exhausted previous to the execution. Called Great Martyr. The Hague, Oct. 22 (via London).—Indignant over the execution in Brussels of Miss Edith Cavell, an English nurse, the Nieuwe Courant calls her "one of the great martyrs of centuries," but recognizes the fact that by sheltering her own countrymen, who were enemies of Germany, she committed a punishable crime. "But the execution was inhuman," the paper declares, "the Germans apparently desired to give a terrorizing example which, however, only aroused embitterment and strengthened the opinion in neutral countries that Germany is ruling Belgium with unnecessary cruelty and harshness." THE ROSE OF GETHSEMANE. Beneath the ancient olive trees In sad Gethsemane, May still be seen the very spot Of Jesus' agony. The ground that drank that bloody sweat Disilling from His brow, Brought forth a flower there's none the like From Eden until now. All Heaven's beauties in it bloom, Its petals never fade, And they who pluck one fragrant leaf, Of death are ne'er afraid. And if thou seek for very love DOES SEEM LONG TIME. (Philadelphia Public Ledger.) A school teacher who had been telling a class of small pupils the story of the discovery of America by Columbus, ended it with: "And all this happened more than 400 years ago." A little boy, with eyes wide open with wonder, said, after a moment of thought: "Oh, my, what a memory you have got!" CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF GERMAN EMPRESS. Newport News, Va., Oct. 22.—The fifty-seventh birthday anniversary of Empress Auguste Victoria of Germany was celebrated with a reception on board the interned German cruiser Prinzregent Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich this afternoon and evening. German residents from this city and section gathered on the ships by invitation of Commanders Thierichens and Thierfelder of the Eitel and Wilhelm, respectively. All Austrian and German ships in Hampton Roads flew flags to indicate the event. German flags were also flown from ships of the United States Navy at the Norfolk Navy Yard. Where one marries for money, Cupid steps out and cupidty steps in. JUST KIDS. An eastern school principal recalls half a dozen "stock school jokes," which he declares, are undoubtedly known to every man or woman past thirty-eight. For instance: The Tennessee boy who described a volcano as a "mountain where the world busts through." The boy who described a museum as a "dead circus." And "there's a great many donkeys in theological gardens." A deity is described in histories as "never to be feared." The boy who writes: "My teacher wanted me with her despot." "You seem to be better fed than I ought," said the teacher to the fat boy. "Yes, mam," says he, "but you see I feed myself."

ECLIPSE REPORTED SEES OFF BERMUDA COAST

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—What local shipping men believe to be the auxiliary yawl Eclipse, upon which six of the German officers interned on the Kronprinz Wilhelm at Norfolk, are said to have made their escape, was sighted last Sunday about 75 miles northeast of Bermuda by the Italian steamship Labor which arrived here today from Genoa. In a report to the Hydrographic office Captain Monzali of the Labor said that he had sighted an overturned white vessel in latitude 33.20 north, longitude 64.23 west, which answered in every way the description of the Eclipse. The Italian ship passed the abandoned craft at a distance of about six miles and as there was no signs of life about her, Captain Monzali proceeded to Norfolk. He had not heard of the escape of the Germans and did not make a report at the Virginia port. Shipping circles advance the theory here that the Eclipse either was capsized and its occupants drowned or else the German officers abandoned her when they were picked up by a friendly ship. Some men can't even blame cirgrettes for their failure to make good. It usually costs the man who is elected to office a lot of money to convince his opponent that he was the people's choice. Too many men take as their guide wine today and soda water tomorrow. There is more sham-pain in wine than most men are willing to believe.

One evening Smith jitted to the suburbs to call on his friend Jones and while they were sitting on the veranda enjoying their after-dinner ragweed, large volumes of music broke loose in the adjacent bungalow. "Some music," commented Smith, glancing through the fireflies in the scenery beyond, "who might the performer be?" "It is my neighbor Green," answered Jones. "And would you believe that he plays by ear alone?" "I would not," was the prompt rejoinder of Smith. "I can easily imagine that he might make that much noise by using both hands and feet and an axe, but you can't make me believe that he does it by banging the side of his head on the keys." To an outsider it appears that the anti-saloon league has much to lose and nothing to gain by injecting the issue into state politics at this time. In the coming election it is not supposed that the democrats will lose any time in pointing with pride to the savings made in the running expenses of the government. A HATEFUL JOB. Pat and Mike were crossing the river on a ferryboat. They were watching intently a big dredging barge that was sending its mammoth scoops under the water and bringing up tons of mud. "Pat," says Mike, "wouldn't yez loike to be workin' over there on that mud-digger?" "Yis," says Pat. "but, begorra, O'd hate to want of the the fellows under the water that's fillin' up thim shovels."—Liverpool Pat.

THE GAME LAWS FOR ALAMANCE.

The recent Legislature enacted a law which makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $50.00 or by imprisonment for thirty days, for anyone to sell or offer for sale, or to buy or offer to buy, quail within the county of Alamance for a period of two years from March 8th, 1915.

Carrying or shipping or in any manner transporting quail out of the county for the purpose of selling same is forbidden. And the fact of taking quail out of the county is prima facie evidence that it was done for the purpose of sale.

The open season for hunting quail is from November 15th to March 1st.

The Federal Laws also prohibit the killing of any migratory game or insectivorous birds during the closed season, as prescribed by regulations of the Department of Agriculture under Act of March 4th, 1913, (37 Stat. 847.)

They also prohibit: (a) The shipment from the state of any game the export of which is forbidden by local law.

(b) Export of any games killed in violation of local law during the closed season by illegal methods or for illegal purposes.

(c) Shipment at any time from the state of game in packages not marked so that the name and address of the shipper and the nature of the contents may be readily ascertained by inspection of the outside of the package.

These laws are designed for the protection of the agricultural interests of our county, for the birds are of great value in destroying harmful insects. And it is hoped to stop that practice, indulged in by one, of killing the birds in large numbers, not for the sport of hunting but for the money they can make in selling the birds and without regard to the loss to our county by the extermination of the game.

This new law makes it the duty of every Justice of the Peace and every township officer to arrest and prosecute any violation that may come to their attention.

GIRL, 17, LOSES SUIT AGAINST CLUBMAN.

Jury Returns Verdict For Mt. Holly Lawyer in Breach of Promise Case.

Mays Landing, N. J., Oct. 22.—The jury in the $75,000 breach of promise suit of Kathryn Rosa Abram's, the pretty seventeen-year-old girl, against Robert S. Gaskill, sixty years old, Mt. Holly lawyer and clubman, at 5:45 o'clock this afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant after deliberating two hours. Neither principal in the suit was in the courtroom when the verdict was returned.

William I. Garrison, senior counsel for the fair young plaintiff, denounced Gaskill as "rivaling Stanford White." "This man," said the attorney, "who had sworn to uphold the law, a lawyer made of every move in the iniquitous procedure to evade the law. The alibi of the defendant contained one break," he declared, "that was on the day he was met on the road, when he claimed he was homesick, was the day he asked the girl plaintiff to become his wife."

Judge Cole pleaded for acquittal of the defendant, telling the jury that the whole affair was a "frame-up"—"had at the time the girl was writing letters brimful of love to Gaskill, she was pouring her heart out in love and affection for the 'nice young man,' Joseph Markley. 'The girl was a mother,' he said, 'when she told Gaskill she loved no one but him.'"

Judge Carrow charged the jury that they were "not to be swept off their feet either by sympathy or prejudice." He confined their consideration only to whether or not a promise of marriage had been made by the elderly defendant to the pretty seventeen-year-old plaintiff, during the month of September, 1914. Her alleged marriage to the dancing master, Siatka, must be assumed as a fact in the jury's mind if a verdict for the defendant on that point be returned.

This afternoon Circuit Court Justice Samuel D. Littlepage, of the Tenth Division, Charleston, West Virginia, was a visitor at the trial and was given a seat on the bench beside Judge Carrow.

Witnesses were called by the defense this morning to substantiate the allegation that Miss Abram's either was married to Jacob Siatka, the dancing master, or passed herself off as his wife.

Evidence to show that Siatka had an active interest in the case also was introduced. George Bakley, a chauffeur from Woodbury, friend of the Abram's family, testified that Mrs. Abram had tried to get him to testify that he had heard Gaskill say he was going to marry Kathryn. When he told her, he said, that he had heard nothing of the kind, Mrs. Abram said that she would go on the witness stand and swear that he had told her he had.

Following the testimony, the defense rested and Siatka was called by the plaintiff in rebuttal. He denied absolutely that he had been married to the girl or that he had had any relations with her.

SHE'D HEARD THAT BEFORE.

Ananias went home to Sapphira the other day, after having lost heavily through some shady venture, and he was feeling very penitent and repentant, says The Kansas City Star. "Sapphira," he said, "I'm going to reform. Pitch in fix up the house, buy shoes and clothes for the children and get yourself just about everything you want to dress up like a perfect lady."

But Sapphira just smiled wearily. "Go on," she said; "you talk like a police commissioner."

Colonel Bryan is going to stand by the President. He says so. He also makes it plain that he is going to have his trusty mouth ready to blow to pieces any defense plans the President may put forward.

Carranza ought to hustle to his capital, organize his Government and get on his job. Outside recognition won't do him much good unless he recognizes himself.

KING GEORGE ASKS FOR MORE TROOPS.

"More Men and Yet More," He Says Needed to Wage War Against Germanic Allies

London, Oct. 22.—King George has issued an appeal to his subjects to come forward voluntarily and aid Great Britain in her fight against the Germanic allies. "More men and yet more," the monarch says, "are wanted to keep my armies in the field and through them to secure victory and an enduring peace."

The message of the King follows: "To my people: At this grave moment in the struggle between my people and a highly organized enemy who has transgressed the laws of nations and changed the ordinance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you."

"I rejoice in my empire's effort, and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my subjects all over the world who have sacrificed home and fortune and life itself in order that another may not inherit the free empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices."

"The end is not in sight. More men, and yet more, are wanted to keep my armies in the field and through them to secure victory and an enduring peace. In ancient days the darkest moment has ever produced in men of our race the sternest resolve. I ask you, men of all classes, to come forward voluntarily and take your share in these fights."

"In freely responding to my appeal you will be giving your support to our brothers who for long months have nobly upheld Great Britain's past traditions and the glory of her arms."

Married life should be a unit: "One and one are one when one by one is won."

JEALOUSY OF SISTER OF HER OWN HUSBAND RUINS WOMAN'S LIFE.

What made you most jealous? Did "another woman" ever come between you and happiness? The Sun will be glad to hear your story.

The following letter was received from S. A.:

The woman who has made me so jealous that she has ruined my life is my husband's sister!

My husband married me when we were both very young, and while his sister of whom he was always talking, was studying music abroad.

I'm not the least bit musical, although I appreciate music, nor am I temperamental, but my husband is very musical and he has the real musician's temperament.

When his sister first came to visit us, we had been married only about a year. She is a wonderful musician.

Her visit lasted for a week. During that time she and my husband hung over the piano every minute—they simply reveled in music and completely forgot me. My husband was a different man when she was around.

Every time she touched the keys she added another pang of jealousy to my heart, for she had a power over him that I could never have because she spoke his language—music.

I hate this woman because my husband worships her. She has the place in his life that I should have. Whenever she comes to our home I suffer agonies. She has ruined my life. I know I should not have permitted her to do so but I have been powerless. Yes, I'M JEALOUS.

HUSBAND'S MEN PALS, NOT WOMEN FRIENDS CAUSE HER JEALOUSY.

Editor The Sun:

What makes me most jealous is not the fact that my husband likes nice-looking women, or that he drives the office girls home in his auto, or sits across the table at lunch with a girl; it is none of these, as I try to be broad-minded about such things. But what does cause me many a tear and headache is the fact that other men demand his company. At least three nights a week he phones me he cannot be with us at dinner. They are not married men, either but bachelors or divorced men who want a game of billiards or to go to the theater. Why cannot such men as these go with single men or girls, where there are hundreds of girls wanting to be entertained in the evening? That's what makes me jealous and if it were not so "unlady-like," I'd go and tell those men so.

CALVES AND BABIES IN KANSAS

When last seen, Kansas legislators were hunting tall timber in a hurry.

The indictment charges them with being stingy in appropriating money to protect the lives of children and lavish with cash to protect calves and cattle.

Year by year, 1,100 babies die before they are two years old in Kansas. The legislature appropriated $3 apiece to save them.

But the money voted to save the 1,400 calves and cattle sick with foot-and-mouth disease averaged $221 apiece. That is to say, a sick calf is worth seventy times as much as a sick baby in Kansas!

The wives and mothers are burning the brush behind these Kansas legislators.

WHAT WILL CARRANZA DO?

The recognition of Carranza has not brought peace along the Rio Grande, where a marauding band of Mexicans has just fought a small battle with a squad of fifteen American soldiers on American territory, killing three Americans and wounding eight. This will probably not interrupt our firing salutes in honor of the First Chief of the de facto Government of Mexico. His sway is not de facto in northern Mexico. Chaos still reigns there. Villa commands some forces in that section and the Mexicans killed in the fight with fifteen United States soldiers had white bands on their hats thus bearing the words "Viva Villa."

That chieftain has always been more or less friendly in his expressions toward the United States and showed a readiness to accept the suggestions of our Government when Carranza was defiant. President Wilson has forbidden the export of arms to that portion of Mexico where Villa still is believed to possess power. Perhaps that has soured him against this country, but it is more likely that the Mexicans that are troubling our border and making incursions into Texas are bands practically independent and conducting their own guerrilla warfare. These marauders, who kill Americans, are not soldiers but bandits and should be followed up and captured or shot wherever they go. This Mexican border that is without government or responsible control, should not be a safe hiding place for men intent on harrowing and killing Americans whenever the opportunity offers.

What will Carranza do with Villa? He just now appears to have obtained the better of him, but has not subdued him. As the recognized head of the de facto Mexican Government, we hold Carranza responsible for the safety of Americans in Mexico. At the same time we know that his power is uncertain and limited. He has never shown any disposition to secure the safety of American life and property even within his clear jurisdiction. Will he do better now? We are letting him get all the arms he wants in this country while cutting them off from Villa. Will he reward us by making Americans on the Mexican border secure from the attacks of armed Mexican bandits? If he cannot do this he surely cannot object to our protecting ourselves by wiping out of existence the lawless bands that harass our borders.

There is no great confidence felt anywhere that our recognition of Carranza is going to help the Mexican situation greatly. Our particular grievance just now is with the Mexican border where Carranza's limited power does not extend. We cannot be expected to endure indefinitely a situation that is intolerable. The question is, will Carranza make it unnecessary for the United States to intervene with force in Mexico for the protection of American rights, American lives and American property?

WHO LOVETH MUCH.

In certain villages of Herault, a province of France, a curious and touching custom has grown up since the great war began, says The New York Evening Post. The villagers write upon the doors of their houses the names of any members of their families who are fighting for the defense of their native land, and after each name they set down the glorious or tragic details of what has happened to these loved ones at the front. There you learn that the son of the house is wounded and a prisoner, there that the father has been decorated and a little further on that the son-in-law has been killed.

Upon one door a passer-by found this eloquent and pathetic inscription: "Jean Mestre, my husband, has been mentioned for gallantry in army orders. The past is no more. I forgive him. May he come home again! I will welcome him with open arms."

He had a drove of spiritless steeds and paused to give them a much needed rest. The store-keeper came out and looked them over casually.

"Want a horse?"

"Guess not."

"I'll take it out in goods," said the stranger. "I'll take it out in tobacco, in fact."

"Might do some business along these lines" responded the store-keeper, "if we kin agree on a basis."

"Well, I'll trade with you, plug for plug."—Judge.

The New Jersey suffragists are not dismayed, of course. All the ladies have to do is to keep their powder dry.

Perhaps the President was on the wrong side of the suffrage question to really help the case in New Jersey. Some people seem to think so.

THE SLOW CHILD.

Every school has its slow child. Some teachers simply look upon such a pupil as one of earth's unfortunates, while some few go so far as to call the pupil a dunce and lay the blame on Providence.

Such children are unfortunate—to have untrained and unsympathetic teachers. They are likewise unfortunate in another sense, but not as the ignorant teacher thinks. Recent studies of backward children demonstrate the fact that such unfortunates have some physical defect as their misfortune.

Bad eyesight, adenoids, diseased tonsils, bad teeth, enlarged glands, anaemia, malnutrition, one or more, may be the cause of the dullness.

Fortunately all such defects can be eliminated if properly treated. Providence is not responsible—parents and teachers are.

HOT-HOTTER.

Oh, where is Mr. Winter gone? Why don't he come along? We've mowed and mowed and mowed the lawn, Till we are far from strong! We've put our Palm Beach suit away And now each day we melt; We melt so fast that every day We tighten up our belt.

We are not one to sit and knock; The summer lasted long, It burned our hair off from our block But did not stop our song; And then the autumn tangoed in The way the autumn does, And twice as hot, doggone our skin, As ever summer was.

When the cold snap came for a day We got a winter suit— A heavy one! That is the way. We do things—we're a beaut! And then the days grew hotter yet, And then they grew more hot, And now with perspiration wet, We wear the suit we got.

We measure off the blocks in twos, And each two blocks we pause To pour the sweat out of our shoes And wipe our streaming jaws, We'd gladly put the stoves up now And get all over-hot, But if we did put them up—wow! It would get hotter yet. —Jurd M. Lewis, in Houston Post.

NEGROES TAKE TO TIMBERS WHEN SNAKES GO FORAGING

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—Five snakes crawled leisurely out of their cage late last night into the heart of Louisville, which was depopulated hurriedly when the vicious reptiles were seen.

The snakes created a panic along Third street, between Chestnut and Walnut streets, before two of them were killed and the others captured.

The snakes were kept in a large cage on the second floor of a garage. Their owner evidently had forgotten them. The snakes became hungry, got together and forced their way out of the cage, which is just a large box.

Several families of negroes live in an alley off Third street. The negroes became hysterical when the snakes were seen to enter the alley, five abreast, on their way to the street. A fire call was sent to police headquarters and two wagon loads of "coppers" were dispatched on the snake hunt. One snake was found in the bed of a negro. The negro has not been found.

PLENTY OF VACATIONS.

As in former Democratic administrations, the present one is giving the people of the United States plenty of chances to take a vacation. In Indiana alone the number of unemployed is running away up into the thousands and in New York and other states it is the same way. If our coins across the pond were not so busy pumping lead into each other that they have no time to manufacture anything but ammunition, the conditions here, under the present tariff regulations, would be doubly worse. It is a strange coincidence that these conditions come along at a time when the Democrats are in control.—Mt. Vernon (Ind.) Republican.

THE PIANO.

The janitor of a hall out in the country was asked by an entertainer from the city if there wasn't a piano that he could use for the evening's entertainment, says the Baltimore Sun.

"Wall, yes, there is a piano down in the cellar," said the janitor, "but you couldn't play in it; leastways, not as it is, for it's full of books."

Then the janitor bawled to his wife: "Susan, where's the works of that piano?"

And Susan's voice floated down from upstairs: "Ain't they out in the garden?"

In the growing Devon district lives H. B. Burkhart, a well known investor in real estate, who regularly journeys downtown on a certain northwestern elevated train. The friendly crew of this train often chat with the real estate man, but one guard expressed difficulty in "rememberin the name."

"That ought to be easy for you," said Mr. Burkhart the guard being an Irishman. "My name, though Dutch, is made up of two good old Irish names—'Burke' and Hart."

At this an old Irishman who was sitting behind Mr. Burkhart took his cutty pipe from his mouth and growled: "Shure, an' that's th' foorst toime I iver heerd that it tuk two Irishmen to make wan Dootchman!"
